The image is a meme featuring two separate panels, each with a different illustration and text. The top panel shows a woman with a crown of leaves and a wand, holding a stick with leaves on it, suggesting a magical or mystical theme. The text above the illustration reads "Girls sending nudes," indicating a humorous or satirical take on the concept of sending nude photos.

The bottom panel shows a man with a wand in his hand, holding a stick with leaves on it, similar to the top panel. The text above the illustration reads "Guys sending nudes," which is a play on the phrase "Girls sending nudes" and is also a humorous take on the concept of sending nude photos.

The background of both panels is a light blue color, and there is a decorative border with a pattern of leaves and flowers. The text is in black, and the overall style of the image is a blend of fantasy and humor, with a focus on the juxtaposition of the two concepts.

They all have more experience than you ever will, and they were all converted to Christianity, because Jesus flexed his power in their lives.

I don't want Hell to be real. But it appears to be the case. Jesus' name repels demons. (Story starts at 25:09)

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=phYgDvWqW9Y>

Demons can create a fake heaven in near death experiences to trick people into thinking they're on the right path. They sometimes tell people about reincarnation, and that there is no hell, and just be good, but Jesus isn't part of the equation. (13:30)

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3ILeSYKtU-A>

It's a concept called "law of one" and a guy named Jason Ford said he was haunted by demons, was possessed and performed automatic writing, and the writing said all that same stuff people report then they have a christian contradicting NDE. And all the hauntings and mental problems went away when he turned Christian.

Some native american chick was getting haunted, and every time her parents took her to the witch doctor, it got worse. The witch doctors always had unusually short lives. She said Christianity is for white people. But one day in desperation she called for Jesus and her haunting ended before she could finish saying his name.

/x/ thinks, "when you die you see what you believe in." Wrong. A hindu died thinking either he would cease to exist, or he would reincarnate. Instead he saw heaven, Hell, and Jesus, but he didn't even know who Jesus was.

The image is a movie poster for the film "Hieratic" directed by Hugh Grant. The poster features a close-up of a man's face with a serious expression, wearing glasses and a dark suit. His eyes are focused on the viewer, and his mouth is slightly open. In the background, there are two small figures, possibly dolls, standing on a wooden floor. The background is dark with a pattern that suggests a room with wooden walls and a wooden floor. The text on the poster is in French and reads "Hieratic" at the top, followed by "AU CINÉMA LE 27 NOVEMBRE" at the bottom. The style of the image is dramatic and appears to be a promotional poster, designed to attract attention and convey the film's title and release date.

The image is a vibrant and detailed illustration that appears to be a traditional form of art, possibly from the Middle East, given the style and color palette. At the center of the image, there is a figure that resembles a saint or a deity, seated on a pink cushion with a gold border. The figure is adorned with a green robe and a golden halo, suggesting a religious or spiritual significance. The figure is holding a rosary in their hands, which is a common symbol of prayer and devotion in many religious traditions.

The background of the image is a rich tapestry of colors, with shades of pink, green, purple, and yellow, creating a sense of depth and richness. The figure is surrounded by a landscape that includes mountains, trees, and a river, adding to the overall spiritual or mystical theme of the artwork. The style of the image is detailed and realistic, with a high level of craftsmanship, and it is likely to be a religious or spiritual depiction meant to convey a message or story.

I am gonna tell you how it is actually going to go down.

You die. Your soul leaves your body. Your earthly life is over, so no more chances to change belief or deeds.

You enter the grave-state (barzakh), where you experience a foretaste of what's coming. At the end of the world, everyone is resurrected bodily. No one stays dead. Every human who ever lived stands before Allah.

Allah will mediate the disputes you Christians have with the Jews and settle your differences.

If you die believing God has a son or that Jesus Christ is God, then you died upon shirk (associating partners with Allah), which Islam considers the gravest sin.

If that state remains until death, and you knowingly rejected the final message brought by Muhammad (PBUH), then salvation is not expected.

The image is a still from a film, presented in a vertical orientation. The background is a desert landscape with a hazy sky, suggesting a time of day when the sun is low. In the foreground, there is a group of people on horseback, with some mounted on camels.

The riders are wearing traditional clothing, and the horses are equipped with saddles and stirrups. The terrain is rugged and barren, with sand dunes and rocky outcrops.

Overlaying the image is a text in white font that reads: "THIS FILM IS DEDICATED TO THE BRAVE MUJAHIDEEN FIGHTERS OF AFGHANISTAN." The text is centered and appears to be a tribute to the fighters of Afghanistan, indicating that the film is a tribute to their bravery and sacrifice. The style of the image is documentary, capturing a moment of action and emotion in a war-torn environment.

From my point of view I can point to you and them and say here is faith without jumping to conclusions that aren't actually in the order you describe.

Also it implies there are no atheists, which is weird lol if it were necessary we all believe in God and we all believe in the same idea of God, we would, by necessity believe in that same God.

There is a difference between ontological necessity (something exists on ground of being) and pyschological necessity (everyone consciously recognizes it). A human being is able to deny all sorts of things, no matter how true they are, and it's more evidence of cognitive limitation.

Human perception is clouded so that is why many fail to see the truth, until very recently I also failed to see the truth of Islam (Submission to God).

I should be able to perfectly understand your point of view, but honestely looking back, it is hard to imagine that I ever not believed in Islam, despite my conversion (or rather reversion as they say) being just a short time ago.

Of course this flies in the face of Islam as I understand it so you'll probably disagree to an extent but logically if there is only one God then any experience of God is going to be true even if that God leads different people to different faiths.

Otherwise I can't see why God wouldn't just restrict all possible religions to one true one rather than let everyone believe in all kinds of dumb things, he recognizes different people need different things.

Allah does actually grant prayers to non-believers, that's why he is called the Most merciful. It's in the Quran: God is sustaining all creation, so I guess this is where we can kinda agree on something.

I came here on a quick in and out mission to gather some needed information. I karmically programmed myself to develop narcissistic traits which I used to create sexual kinks toward others. I used the energy from those kinks to manifest myself physically in dimensions far, far above my vibe level. I know now why I feel so off here, and I can stop being so mad at everyone else about it, since it seems I chose this for myself. I know this all sounds crazy to you, but one day science will prove me right and our dimensions (and all those between) will merge and reunite. This is how the entire universe will roll up and we'll reunite with Oneness and God (ourselves). Then we'll go and do it all again, a totally new life, but every life wakes up fully to the complete truth of existence every lifetime. In this way we avoid the extremes of karmic hell cycles, one life after another with no peace in between.

My dimension is inside of this one, an atom of an atom of near infinite scale within a point in this space. To you, it is "hell", which is actually just all the lower dimensions that make up the machine that creates your reality. Actually all things are this way, every human is composited of countless universes, but most of you actually belong here so it's not apparent to you.

All of existence is a machine, there is no magic here, every point in space is fractal within fractal of perfectly logical computation and machinery. There doesn't seem to be any bottom layer, but there's no way to know.

Anonymous Mon 23 Feb 2026 22:14:07 No.42016829 Report

There are many jumpers who manifest in countless forms but aren't meant to stay long in their existence, its beings from other dimensions here on various missions, they will come across as having either extremely high vibes or low vibes compared to normal beings of that type. The physical manifestation is kind of illusion, you can sense when there is more or less substance in it.

I guess by your terms, but people tend to put such a negative connotation to it. I'm just a very very very tiny little being from within this space who figured out how to manifest here physically. The lower dimensions have extremely higher levels of intelligence in some areas, to be able to create the existence for you that you are demanding of us.

Anonymous Mon 23 Feb 2026 22:19:47 No.42016846 Report

Also, this existence isn't the "top", it goes up as much as it goes down, forever as far as we know, but we think it might loop? We're testing a theory.

Anonymous Mon 23 Feb 2026 22:22:33 No.42016852 Report

Jews know about loops and closing loops, it's their knowledge of loops that gives them power here, everything else is nonsense and distraction, they believe a lot of their own nonsense. They have a logical insight into the nature of loops that goyim are unable to perceive (I think it can be learned though, I'm working on a method). It's the equivalent of niggers not understanding conditional tense.

Anonymous Mon 23 Feb 2026 22:56:35 No.42016962 Report

This dimension needs to start understanding its own karmic math to be able to programmatically decide its manifestations. I'll try to help, it's always difficult passing on truth to higher dimensions because the very nature of the program that creates their identity rejects any truths about the nature of existence that may see them decompose.

What is the Phantom tax you ask...?

Considering that we have replaced the majority of the boomer population of humanity that have been confirmed as genocidal cannibalistic animals that claimed that they and I quote

>"could just eat you up!!"

And then we get videos of Biden putting a babies feet into his mouth...

Also, "the church of jesus christ" is a cannibalistic cult that named you all Yeshua when you were baptised... to automatically sign you up for your soul to be sold to your government, and occultist elites.

So anons, do the Empire a service, and when you feel horny, just crank one out into a sock and leave it on the floor.

A grey alien from the shadow dimensions will arrive and assess you genetics for perfectly oriented genes to remove the psycho genetics that generated tribalistic cannibalism in the genetics of the elderly.

Why is the Empire doing this Phantom Tax collection??

BECAUSE BOOMERS NUKED THE PLANET OVER 1000 TIMES!!!

And the babe that is responsible for dreams is tired of their bullshit.

WE NEED YOU!!! Because we have too many needs and autistic people jacking off which is causing an outbreak of severe Autism and brain rot.

Well anons... Will you do you part...?

The image is a three-panel comic strip featuring characters from the animated television series "The Simpsons." In the first panel, we see a character lying in bed with a green and black helmet on, seemingly asleep. The character's head is turned to the side, and the helmet is positioned on the pillow. The bed is covered with a purple blanket.

In the second panel, the same character is shown in a different pose. This time, the character is standing in front of a door with a closed window, wearing a blue shirt and a yellow hat. The character's head is turned to the side, and the helmet is still on the pillow.

The third and final panel shows the same character lying in bed with the helmet on, but this time the character's head is turned to the side, and the helmet is on the pillow. The bed is covered with a purple blanket.

Overlaying the image is a text caption that reads, "THE LONGER THE ICON OF SIN IS ON, THE STRONGER IT BECOMES." The text is in white, bold font, and is placed at the bottom of the image. The overall style of the image is a blend of the humorous and the serious, with a focus on the character's helmet and the text that suggests a commentary on the character's strength or the nature of sin.

[21 / 1]The image depicts a long, dimly lit hallway with a uniform color scheme. The floor is a checkerboard pattern of dark and light squares, reflecting the light from the overhead fluorescent lights. The walls are painted white, and there are rows of lockers on both sides of the hallway. The ceiling is white with a grid pattern, and there is a security camera mounted on the wall to the left. The lighting is artificial, creating a somewhat eerie atmosphere. There are no people visible in the image, and the focus is on the architectural details of the hallway. The image does not contain any discernible text.

The solution to your problem is within your power though, all you need to do is do the mental work to transform the bad things you would warn yourself of into good things you don't want changed.

The left column contains a series of steps or instructions, starting with "Step 1: Find a good place to sit and relax." The text continues with "Step 2: Close your eyes and visualize the succubus." The text then describes the visualizations, mentioning that the succubus should be "a beautiful, young woman with long, flowing hair, wearing a white dress and a necklace." The text also mentions that the succubus should be "in a comfortable position, with her legs crossed and her hands resting on her knees."

The right column contains a diagram that shows a circle with a line connecting the center of the circle to the top of the page. The diagram is labeled "Step 3: Visualize the succubus." The text explains that the succubus should be "a beautiful, young woman with long, flowing hair, wearing a white dress and a necklace." The text also describes the visualizations, mentioning that the succubus should be "in a comfortable position, with her legs crossed and her hands resting on her knees."

The overall style of the image is informative and instructional, with a focus on providing guidance on how to visualize and interact with a succubus. The use of visual aids, such as the diagram and the text, helps to clarify the steps and concepts being discussed.

The image is a stylized cartoon illustration featuring two demonic figures. The figure on the left is a muscular, muscular red demon with large horns, a sharp, pointed nose, and a prominent, curved tail. The figure on the right is a shorter, more slender red demon with a pointed nose, a smaller, more pointed tail, and a necklace with a skull and crossbones pendant. Both figures are wearing dark, spiked belts and have sharp, pointed teeth. The background is a fiery, orange-red color with orange and yellow flames, suggesting a fiery or hellish setting. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and exaggerated, with a focus on the contrasting colors and the dramatic poses of the characters. There are no texts present in the image.

[11 / 2]The image displays a line graph titled "Normalized channels (blue + amber)" with two lines representing two different types of data: "normblur" and "normlider." The x-axis represents the "sample" value, ranging from 0 to 4000, while the y-axis represents the "Normalization" value, ranging from 0.2 to 0.6.

The "normblur" line is represented by a blue color, and the "normlider" line is represented by an orange color. Both lines fluctuate over the course of the graph, with the "normblur" line generally showing a higher value than the "normlider" line. The peaks and troughs of the lines indicate fluctuations in the normalized channels, with the "normblur" line generally being higher and the "normlider" line generally being lower.

The graph is a visual representation of the normalized channels for two different types of data, with the "normblur" line representing the blue channel and the "normlider" line representing the amber channel. The graph is labeled with the title "Normalized channels (blue + amber)" and the x-axis is labeled "sample," while the y-axis is labeled "Normalization." The graph is set against a white background, and the axes are marked with black lines.

The highest peak is at around 1986 pixels, and the lowest point is at around 1728 pixels.

The bottom graph is labeled "Red Channel Analysis (pixels, 1728, 1888, 1986, 2086, 2186)" and shows a similar pattern to the top and middle graphs. The highest peak is at around 1986 pixels, and the lowest point is at around 1728 pixels.

Each graph has a vertical axis labeled "Frequency" and a horizontal axis labeled "Pixels." The colors of the bars represent the amplitude of the signal, with red representing the highest amplitude and blue representing the lowest amplitude. The peaks and troughs of the bars indicate the frequency of the signal at different pixel values. The graphs are arranged in a row, with the top graph on the left, the middle

No.42008633 ViewReplyOriginalReport

Quoted By: >>42017189

I keep experiencing retarded Lilith and Yahweh and Jesus visions of them mocking me. I don't believe the Christian Scriptures or Christian Religion and I have researched the religion and scriptures legitimately. As in, thousands of hours of study, and thousands of hours of church and looking into the Greek and Hebrew.

All the Bible did (Lilith got me to read it, sigh) was get me more demon possessed when I stayed with the religion despite realizing eternal torture isn't from the Creator.

I was considering giving Hinduism as a white person and giving it a try seemed like maybe a good idea the other day but I didn't want to repeat the Christian experience or get Hindu demons.

Logically I know the Creator is the solution to this demonic experience because the Creator can do anything.

I experience a spirit saying they are Lilith raping me when invisible and telling me everything I don't want in the way I don't want most, it's possessed me and caused jail and prison.

Am I damned, and this is why the Creator won't help me? Or do I have to reincarnate off my sins again?

I fucked up as an athiest by trying to sleep with other mens wives when I was insecure because it felt good on meth to hurt other people. I cybered with thousands of women when on meth as an athiest.

When I decided to try to stop the retarded adultery shit, and told a female online friend I had I loved her and wanted her as my girlfriend after knowing her for 4 years (Didn't before out of insecurity of her cheating on me and fear) Lilith appeared and stole me from her and tricked me into thinking she was my wife from a past life.

Is this happening because I'm damned or destined to reincarnate again because I royally fucked up my chances in this life when on crystal meth? I was an athiest when I fucked my life up, and very quickly stopped the meth, and instantly stopped the adultery as soon as I believed in a Creator because I instantly knew

>Yeah if Gods real he hates this shit

Anonymous Sun 22 Feb 2026 05:30:10 No.42008644 Report

Now I'm getting retarded shit like Lilith is making my spotify playlists or influencing them.

The song

"See Who I Am" or something kept coming up over and over then this playlist was made for spotify, it was the next one that had meaning.

I didn't make it. Its the automatically generated ones.

It's like Lilith is mocking me and doing magic that makes me look schizo on purpose if i explain the story.

She's told me

>She speaks fluent schizophrenic

And keeps trying to get me to obey her from the heart. I won't obey her.

After this playlist "Dark Horse" by katy perry came on.

Lilith is annoying the shit out of me. Am I damned for her to have this much access to interact with me?

Nope. I've seen Lilith do healing miracles, and multiplying water soda and beer in my mouth, and creating meat for me, and creating tobacco and drugs. Lilith also moved me instantly a few miles. Lilith caused me to run at 40 MPH and Lilith caused me to lift 300-500 pounds deadlift (a large stone/small boulder) as a 150 pound man who doesn't lift. Lilith also caused me to be able to touch red hot metal and hot shit that should have made my flesh bubble. Lilith also possessed me despite me resisting her for 10 years and refused to flee and entered my soul when i thought Jesus was real. She is not rebuked in Jesus name and prayer doesn't remove her.

She did necromancy or a ressurection and ressurected a dead lizard too.

She did this to brag in private about her powerlevel, she was flexing on me. She disproved the Bible and Christian religion in private.

When she did all the Biblical miracles almost except for parting a sea/ocean and resurrecting a human...Perhaps the jews who wrote those scriptures had a demon doing miracles.

Because their scriptures contain eternal torture.

I know more than anything in my soul, the Creator does not dish out neverending torture in any form to anyone. To do so, would make them evil.

The Christian scriptures are bullshit.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a stylized depiction of a person's face. The person is shown with a green-tinted background, which gives the image a cartoonish appearance. The person's face is drawn with a simple, loose line style, and the facial features are exaggerated, with the eyes wide open and the mouth slightly open, suggesting a sense of surprise or shock.

The person is wearing glasses and has a beard, which are visible in the image. The glasses are positioned on the upper part of the face, and the beard is on the lower part of the face. The person's hair is depicted in a short, straight style, and it is not visible in the image.

The most prominent feature of the image is the text "CIA" written in bold, black letters on the forehead of the person's head. The text is centered and appears to be the only text present in the image. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the facial features and the text.

[149 / 74]The image is a scientific diagram illustrating the anatomy of a mouse and a zebrafish, with a focus on the vagus nerve. The diagram is divided into two sections, labeled A and B, which show the vagus nerve in both species.

In section A, labeled "A Mouse and (B) zebrafish vagus motor nuclei, sensory ganglia, and axons (blue, and innervated organs)," the vagus nerve is depicted in a cross-section view, showing the various structures involved in the nerve's function. The vagus nerve is shown in both the mouse and zebrafish, with the mouse's nerve showing the motor nuclei, sensory ganglia, and axons, and the zebrafish's nerve showing the same components.

In section B, labeled "A Mouse and (B) zebrafish vagus motor nuclei, sensory ganglia, and axons (blue, and innervated organs)," the vagus nerve is shown in a cross-section view, with the mouse's nerve showing the motor nuclei, sensory ganglia, and axons, and the zebrafish's nerve showing the same components.

The diagram is accompanied by a caption that reads "Figure 1: Vagus nerve anatomy in mouse and zebrafish (A) A Mouse and (B) zebrafish vagus motor nuclei, sensory ganglia, and axons (blue, and innervated organs)." This caption provides context for the image, explaining the purpose of the diagram and the anatomical details presented.

The image is a scientific illustration, and the use of color-coded labels and cross-sections helps to visualize the complex network of nerves and their components. The labels are clear and legible, aiding in the understanding of the anatomical structure. The image is a valuable resource for studying the vagus nerve in both mouse and zebrafish, providing a detailed view of the nerve's structure and function.

Your vagus nerve descended from a tool for hunting, paralyzing, and killing prey. The stylet tip is now position where your pineal gland is today. Your vagus nerve used to shoot out of your forehead, and stab fish, inject a paralyzing toxin. Now it's used to inject our consciousness into other organisms and subsume the weak willed ones. The likelihood that the same regenerative ability of the Nemertean worm's proboscis, is also found in the vagus nerve some of us have. The Nemertean proboscis can literally shoot out, detach, and continue to subsume prey outside of the worm's body, and then completely regenerate, calcium stylet and all.

People who already knew about the "snake" and the "third eye" connection already intuitively "knew" this before science actually caught up: the third eye is real, your ancestors really did have a third eye on your forehead, some frogs and snakes still have them. Some of us still have this phenomenal power and use it to this day.

The image is a promotional poster for a film titled "The Scorpion King." The central figure is a muscular man with a rugged appearance, wearing a brown leather outfit and a helmet with a visor. He is holding a sword in his right hand and a scorpion tail in his left hand. To his right, there is a woman dressed in a golden, flowing dress with a high neckline and a gold belt. She is holding a sword in her right hand and a shield in her left hand. Behind them, there is a large, stylized depiction of a pyramid with a golden hue, and a golden sun is visible in the background. The sky is a warm orange, and the ground is a golden sand-like color. At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "HD" and "COMMENT," indicating that the image is likely a high-definition version of a comment section. The overall style of the image is dramatic and fantasy-inspired, with a focus on the characters and their attire.

The image is a photograph featuring a person standing in a field of tall grass. The individual appears to be wearing a costume with a dark, possibly gothic or demonic design, featuring a mask with pointed ears and a dark, possibly black, face. The person's attire includes a yellow garment with a pattern that includes what seems to be a floral or leaf design. The person's body is bare, and the image is taken from a low angle, emphasizing the height of the grass and the person's stance. The background is dark, suggesting a nighttime or night-time setting. There is a watermark or label on the bottom left corner of the image that reads "MUSIC VIDEO," indicating that the image is likely from a music video. The overall style of the image is dramatic and artistic, with a focus on the person's costume and the surrounding environment.

Revelation 9:19 states: "For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt."

I think the world is ready to get Kleck pilled. Jonathan Kleck is probably the only person I have found who talks about the Locusts. As mentioned in the bible, they (or their actual spirit body) are the creatures from the pit who have heads of horses and tails of scorpions. They walk among us unfortunately and their main tactic is to get you in bed and "sting" you.

Like Kleck, I find myself hesitating to even talk about it. This shit is no joke and it's scary af until you walk with Christ and realize The Bible has already talked about it. Even then it's almost too freaky to think about, I just try to continue to live my life normally.

If people understood this stuff en masse it would cause mass panic. But hopefully it can just bring people closer to God.

Kleck is a rabbit hole not everyone is ready for. Disclaimer.

The image is a stylized graphic with a vibrant, colorful background. At the center, there is a figure standing on a pedestal, holding up a star-like object with a radiant light emanating from it. The figure is dressed in a flowing, long dress with a high neckline and a flowing skirt. The dress is a warm orange color, and the figure's hair is styled in a flowing, wavy manner. The figure's posture suggests a sense of power or authority. Below the figure, the text "Columbia Pictures" is written in a bold, capitalized font. The text is in a dark color, contrasting with the bright background. The font is sans-serif, which gives the text a modern and clean appearance.

The background is a gradient of blue, transitioning from a lighter shade at the top to a darker shade at the bottom. This gradient creates a sense of depth and adds to the overall visual impact of the image.

The style of the image is reminiscent of the iconic logo for Columbia Pictures, which is known for its bold and eye-catching design. The use of bright colors and the central figure with a star-like light are common elements in the Columbia Pictures logo. The overall composition of the image suggests it is a promotional graphic for Columbia Pictures.

Sorry I meant in the catalog but I forgot /x/ is really slow. Most of the posts right now are me. OP triggered me I guess. All of this is related to the topic, trust me. The vagus nerve is essential to the beings who run this world and how they control many of us. They did not lose the ability to use it to paralyze and control, but they do also use it to transfer consciousness as OP mentioned.

The image displays a close-up view of a collection of small, irregularly shaped objects that resemble skin cells. These cells exhibit a complex network of folds and wrinkles, indicative of the cellular structure of the skin. The colors in the image are predominantly brown, with some areas showing a lighter, possibly white or cream-colored hue. The texture of the cells is rough and uneven, with some areas appearing more densely packed than others. The image is a close-up photograph, focusing on the details of the skin cells, and there are no visible texts or discernible brands. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the texture and color of the skin cells.

I've literally been saying this for so long on here but people keep posting and pushing retarded shit, I am SO glad I'm not the only to notice this.

What the elites are up to.

>Warframe – Orokin Continuity: elite Orokin transfer their consciousness into new bodies using Kuva, often stealing younger bodies to avoid death.

>XCOM 2 – Elders' Avatar Project: the Elders grow cloned humanoid bodies ("avatars") and migrate their consciousness into them to escape physical decay.

>Chucky / Child's Play – Soul transfers from human into doll, later attempts doll human.

>Get Out – Consciousness is suppressed and replaced; body stolen, original mind trapped.

>Self/less – Wealthy man transfers consciousness into a younger, genetically engineered body.

>The Skeleton Key – Hoodoo ritual swaps consciousness between bodies.

>Freaky – Supernatural dagger causes full body swap between killer and teen.

>Fallen – Entity transfers itself between living human bodies via touch.

>The Hidden – Alien parasite jumps from body to body.

>Hereditary – Demonic entity transferred into a chosen physical host.

>Altered Carbon – Human consciousness ("stacks") moves between real biological bodies ("sleeves").

>The Prestige – Consciousness continuity across duplicated physical bodies.

>Moon – Memory + identity continuity across cloned bodies.

>Replicas – Attempted transfer of minds into cloned human bodies.

>Avatar – Human mind inhabits a grown biological body (while original body still exists).

>Ghost in the Shell – Consciousness migrates between physical shells

They don't want us passing on into the dream that comes after life, people don't understand how special they truly are.

Good stuff.

Hereditary is a great movie because it doesn't just demonstrate the idea of golems and targeted possession but it also depicts the extent to which cults use supernatural powers to control the events of people born into such families. For instance the sigil which is inscribed on the very telephone pole where that horrible thing occurs (no spoilers). And the letter from the grandmother (the matriarch) to the family about how it's all of the sacrifice is for a reward greater than they can comprehend.

Hereditary might be the single most potent and accurate occult movie ever made and it also happens to have some of the scariest scenes (like when the basketball hits the floor, that's such a subtle and horrifying scene because that kind of psychosis is what afflicts the cursed).

I suspect Jordan Peele is a lightworker though and is tasked with disclosing these things. He kind of turns the movie on it's head by the end trying to make it more comical in order to keep people from leaving the theater in distress because the basic principle of "droning" people like this (hypnotizing and taking over their body) is really heavy and "the sunken place" is depicted with excruciating realism. Seeing your reality fall away until it's just a small projection in front of you and you're far removed from it. It's classic

The vagus nerve would be a detail best left out but it's essential to these kind of operations.

The image is a close-up photograph of a stylized, abstract design. It features a large, vibrant orange-red spike-like structure that dominates the frame. This spike is composed of numerous thin, straight, orange-red strands that radiate outward from the center, creating a sense of energy or movement. The strands are arranged in a spiral pattern, with the spike's base forming the base of the spiral and the tips extending outward. The background of the image is a dark, gradient color that transitions from a lighter shade at the top to a deeper shade at the bottom, providing a stark contrast to the bright orange of the spike. The spike is set against a black background, which further accentuates its vivid color and intricate design.

The image is a digital rendering, as indicated by the smooth, clean lines and the absence of any visible texture or detail that would suggest a physical object. The style of the image is modern and abstract, with a focus on the interplay of light and shadow to create a visually striking composition.

Credo Mutwa the zulu shaman famous for his reptilian disclosure stories said the zulu believe humans were originally able to hunt animals by telepathically subduing them. Might be related.

Kleck talks about this but the bee and the butterfly are a symbol used by "them" for many reasons, one of them being the proboscis. The woman's pose and the way she is positioned on the base suggest a sense of relaxation or contemplation. There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the sculpture. The style of the image is a close-up photograph, focusing on the sculpture and its details. The lighting is even, with no harsh shadows, which highlights the sculpture's texture and the play of light on the marble.

nothing of the spiritual world relies on the physical, you could lose 90% of your brain or be born without those and still be able to practice it, because it has nothing to do with the brain or muh pineal gland.

The image is a composite of two distinct visual elements. On the left, there is a close-up of a golden-colored, stylized eye with a raised pupil, surrounded by a series of hieroglyphic symbols. These symbols are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with some symbols overlapping each other. The eye appears to be a symbol of protection or wisdom, often associated with ancient Egyptian culture.

On the right, there is a close-up of a human brain, with the right hemisphere visible. The brain is shown in a three-dimensional perspective, with the right hemisphere being more prominent. The brain is shown in a light beige color, with the right hemisphere showing a bright red coloration, which is characteristic of the blood vessels in the brain.

The image is likely a representation of the human brain, with the right hemisphere being highlighted, which is often associated with the right side of the brain, responsible for language, creativity, and right-side brain functions. The left side of the brain is associated with the left side of the brain, responsible for the left side of the brain functions.

The image does not contain any text or additional elements that provide context or information about the objects. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the anatomical details of the brain and the eye, which are common subjects in medical or educational contexts.

The eye of horus has many meanings, not just the brain physiology or the symbolic relationship between the gods, or the senses but it also depicts the proboscis entering through the eye.

This topic is probably the most occult and forbidden knowledge you can encroach on and yet it's right out in the open. Human civilization is literally of supernatural origin.

The image is a close-up photograph of a person's face, focusing on the eyes and the upper part of the face. The individual is wearing traditional Indian bridal makeup, which includes dark eyeshadow, a gold-toned eye shadow, and a green and gold headpiece. The makeup is applied with a brush, and the eyeshadow is applied in a way that creates a smoky effect. The person's lips are painted a soft pink, and the makeup is complemented by a gold-toned nose ring. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a warm-toned, possibly orange or red, which contrasts with the person's skin tone. The style of the image is a portrait, capturing the subject's beauty and the intricate details of her makeup.

I also suspect the bindi or hindu red dot is not just about the metaphorical third eye but is a depiction of the physical remnant of something like what is described by the OP. It exits the forehead then retracts and heals, leaving maybe a small dot of blood similar to when a blemish bleeds and heals.

The image is a photograph capturing a moment in a room with a group of people. The central figure is a person with a cross tattooed on their forehead, who is being prayed over by another individual. The person with the cross is wearing a purple robe with a gold emblem on the left side, and the person praying is wearing a white shirt with the word "CHRIST" visible on the left side. The room has a reflective surface, possibly a mirror, and there are other individuals in the background, some of whom are also wearing uniforms. The lighting in the room is dim, and the focus is on the interaction between the two individuals. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is candid and seems to capture a religious or spiritual ceremony.

The image is a black and white illustration that features two separate sections. On the left side, there is a detailed black and white drawing of a figure that appears to be a goddess or a deity. The figure is depicted with a long, serpentine body, a humanoid head, and a tail that curls around its body. The figure is shown in a reclining position, with its head resting on its left hand and its right hand extended forward. The figure's eyes are closed, and its mouth is open, suggesting a state of contemplation or prayer. On the right side of the image, there is a section of text that reads "The Egyptian goddess Serapis, or Selim." The text is in a serif font and is placed at the top of the image. Below the text, there is a small illustration of a coin with a depiction of a figure that resembles the goddess Serapis. The coin is circular with a raised edge, and the figure is shown in profile view, with a long, serpentine body and a humanoid head. The coin is placed on a flat surface, and the figure is facing the viewer.

The image is a historical artifact, likely from ancient Egypt, as indicated by the text and the style of the coin. The drawing and the text together provide a historical context for the depicted figure, suggesting that the figure is a goddess associated with the Egyptian religion. The coin serves as a visual representation of this deity, offering a glimpse into the religious practices and beliefs of ancient Egypt.

The image is a stylized illustration with a dark, moody color palette. In the foreground, there is a woman with long, dark hair, wearing a white dress, and she is standing with her arms outstretched. She appears to be in a state of excitement or surprise. To the right of the woman, there is a man lying on a bed, dressed in a white shirt and dark pants. He has his head resting on the bed, and his arms are stretched out in front of him.

In the background, there is a large, dark silhouette of a creature with multiple limbs and a large, bat-like head. The creature's limbs are spread out, and its head is turned to the side, as if observing the scene. The creature's shadow is cast on the wall behind it, creating a silhouette effect.

The image does not contain any text. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of traditional Japanese woodblock prints, with a focus on the interplay of light and shadow to create a sense of depth and three-dimensionality. The overall mood of the image is eerie and mysterious, with a surreal and dreamlike quality.

>nothing of the spiritual world relies on the physical

Demons and discarnate spirits spend almost all of their time observing physical reality. It's where all the interesting things are happening. The afterlife and the void is boring.

Think of it like livestreamers with viewers. We are the livestreamers and spirits are the viewers. Do you want to hit the streets and try to make livestream content for people? Probably not, but you would enjoy watching it for a few minutes right? Some spirits are happy to watch. But at the end of the day, somebody has to be out on the street in physicality making things happen. That's what we are doing.

Very possible. There were some more details he mentioned like humans actually being hermaphroditic and being genetically altered into two sexes though which makes it tricky to work into the Adam and Eve origination depending on whether you believe Lilith and Seth and all of the other gnostic variations actually were involved.

The beings mentioned in this thread still refer to certain humans as "adam" in a derogatory fashion. I've heard a theory that the old testament Adam, Eve, Cain and Able are referring to entire genetic variations of humans and not necessarily single individuals. The planet appears to be populated by one human race but that's not the case. Some types of people are almost completely alien in comparison to others.

It's not about race. Every race has people in that race who appear to be a normal human descended from Adam and Eve but are not. These are the locusts and they will eat you and find ways for you to give them permission to eat you. Especially through sex. They go straight for the vagus nerve.

The sad thing is for them this is love. Devouring you is their way of loving you.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs, each with a distinct style and content. On the left, there is a photograph of a person sitting on a chair, wearing a white tank top and blue jeans. The person is holding a blue object to their ear, and their hair is styled in a messy manner. The background is a dark, abstract pattern with a mix of red and purple hues.

On the right, there is a photograph of a character with a red and orange costume, resembling a creature or monster. The character has a large, open mouth and a prominent eye, with a skeletal appearance. The background is a dark, purple-black color with a pattern of purple and orange lines.

At the top of the image, there is text that reads "Thisisit-img-8143 (1) (1)" and "Red Lokusit - Hope is The Last Refuge Of The Dying". The text is in a white font on a black background, and it appears to be a reference to the image's content. The style of the

The image is a still from a video, featuring a surreal and distorted scene. In the center of the image, there is a large, distorted head with a smiling expression, which appears to be a human head. The head is surrounded by a green and yellow color scheme, with a yellow archway in the background.

In the foreground, there is a person with a red-brown hair color, wearing a black and white checkered shirt. They are hugging the distorted head, which is positioned in such a way that the person's face is partially obscured by the head. The person's arms are extended towards the head, and their body is leaning into the head, suggesting a close and intimate interaction.

The background of the image includes a green and yellow bathroom with a white bathtub and a yellow shower curtain. There are also various objects and fixtures in the background, such as a sink, a mirror, and a cabinet. The overall style of the image is surreal and dreamlike, with a focus on the interaction between the person and the distorted head.

Stephen King knows about this stuff. Not only does he know about the IT clowns (Nephilim) but also the dead spirit form of Nephilim, which is why the woman in room 237 in The Shining reveals herself to be dead. If you end up in a relationship with one, you are liable to experience this. If you end up realizing what they are, it's too terrifying to process. Usually you don't realize it until long after the relationship ends. By then your life will probably have been turned upside down and she will already be with her next target or handler.

The image is a page from a document that appears to be a scientific or educational text, likely from a textbook or a scientific article. The page is titled "Pineal gland" in bold blue text at the top, and below the title, there is a paragraph explaining the function of the pineal gland in the human brain. The text is in English and is divided into two main sections.

The first section, titled "The pineal gland or 'eye' in the brain that produces DMT," provides a brief explanation of the pineal gland's role in the brain and its connection to the pineal body, which is a part of the pineal gland. It mentions that the pineal gland is responsible for producing the hormone dihydrotestosterone (DHT), which is known to be a precursor to the hormone estrogen.

The second section, titled "The pineal gland and pituitary gland regulate the a and 'flow of electromagnetic energy,'" provides a detailed explanation of how the pineal gland and pituitary gland work together to regulate the flow of electromagnetic energy. It mentions that the pineal gland regulates the pineal body's hormone, melatonin, and that the pituitary gland regulates the pituitary body's hormone, growth hormone.

The image is a diagram of the human brain, with the pineal gland highlighted in a light brown color, and the pituitary gland in a darker brown color. The diagram shows the pineal gland and pituitary gland in a cross-section view, with the pineal gland being located in the center of the brain, and the pituitary gland being situated to the right of the pineal gland. The diagram is labeled with the names of the brain regions and the corresponding functions of the pineal gland and pituitary gland.

The image also includes a search bar at the top right corner, suggesting that the document is interactive, allowing users to search for specific information within the text. The overall style of the image is informative and educational, designed to convey concept of manipulating atoms through hypnosis. The second section, titled "The New Age Religion," is a continuation of the first section, discussing another ancient belief system that involves the manipulation of atoms.

The image contains a diagram of the human brain, with the left hemisphere labeled "Left Hemisphere" and the right hemisphere labeled "Right Hemisphere." The diagram shows the brain's structure with the left and right hemispheres clearly labeled. The diagram also includes a representation of a pineal gland, which is a small endocrine gland located in the center of the brain. The pineal gland is depicted as a small, round, and yellowish-brown structure.

The image also includes a citation from the book "The New Age Religion" by Robert Monroe, which is indicated by the text "The New Age Religion" in the image. The text is in a smaller font size compared to the main body of the document, suggesting it is a footnote or a reference to the book.

The image is a screenshot from a digital document, likely from a printed or digital publication, as indicated by the presence of a watermark that reads "©2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2

The human brain is a torus field, animated by the trinity of soul-mind-body. Its light generates consciousness by producing electromagnetic oscillations (waves) and thoughts. The brain can process sensory and limbic inputs, analyses and transfers information but because everything is one, it can also receive other frequencies from other brains/beings, matter, outer space, the geomagnetic sphere, the solar wind, gamma rays,...It is limited to the dimension of the mind-ego-personality.

The brain is studied in neurology and psychology. It communicates through neurotransmitters and consists of amino acids (22 like the cards of the Tarot, two elevens of equilibrium), peptides like endorphins, catecholamines (dopamine, norepinephrine, epinephrine), trace amines (anima). Ine: the moon. The geometric torus field of the brain is affected by the genome, energy level of the body (sleep, intake of food, level of pressure on the body and mind).

RAND Corporation conducted early brain research.

Stanford University did research on digital mind control through brain-computer interfaces (Norbert Wiener's cybernetics, Michael Arbib).

In 1991 Karl Pribram wrote Brain and Perception, introducing the holonomic brain theory with David Bohm (working according to the holographic principle).

In 2015 Stanford professor David Eagleman hosted The Brain with David Eagleman on PBS. Quantum computing is expected to reach the human brain computing capacity. DARPA participated in the BRAIN Initiative.

Reasonable, rational (Ra-ion-AI) thinking happens in the neocortex (neo=one). The limbic system controls emotions and the reptilian complex the primitive instincts. The brain consists of grey matter with an outside layer of white matter. A distinction can be made between

Right brain thinking: white matter, female, intuitive, imagination, empathy, the Default Mode Network.

Generally speaking the EAN, Executive Attention Network (organization and information processing) is in charge of all things that concern this dimension of reality. It represents the male brain, grey matter, analyzing, mathematical, spatial thinking, alpha brainwaves. The male brain's has 6,5 more grey matter and is 10% bigger because its right hemisphere is slightly larger, but only because it's not organized in the balanced, optimal way as a female brain.

The DMN, Default Mode Network is used for 'daydreaming' (imagination). The DMN, even when it reads, doesn't think in full sentences, but in an intuitive, visual, mental language, a constant internal monologue, conversation between different opponents with the illusion of one ego. So when the EAN reads, the DMN translates it into thinking language it forms associations and metaphors (a metaphor is not only useful for a poem or in humour, it is essential in understanding and recognizing patterns since nature is fractal, a microcosm works the same way as a macrocosm).

While thinking we can zoom in and zoom out, every detail can become a world -fractality, the same way the universe works as shown mathematically by Mandelbrot images.

It allows abstract thinking and self-referential thought.

The reason why people can overlook their daily problems better at night in bed, before they go to sleep is because the DMN then connects with our problem solving modules, the Task Positive Network.

During creativity and imagination, the EAN is shut off partially. The female brain likes to make more connections, in the brain and with other people, making them more verbal. The female brain has 9,5 more connections than the male brain and a thicker corpus callosum, a broader bridge between the two sides so females think more lateral and are better at controlling anger and aggression.

The left brain and right brain, the masculine and negative have to be in balance (symbolism of the 2 pillars Boaz and Joachin freemasonry, building the Temple of Solomon).

The more white matter, the more connections. The world is connected as one brain, with the internet, an artificial silicon network as overlay, but also through a morphogenetic field, that transfers information to our intuitive senses.

The brain is subdivided into frontal lobe, parietal lobe, temporal lobe, occipital lobe and insular lobe.

The pineal gland - and pituitary gland + regulate the flow of electromagnetic energy through the body and brain. The pineal gland transmits frequencies and the pituitary gland receives. Like our other eyes, the pineal gland is also a photosensitive sensor, it turns light that touches the retinas into serotonin - when they register no light, it produces melatonin. It also produces the hormone dimethyltryptamine DMT. When the eyes see nothing but white (an effect noticed by Arctic explorers that encountered blizzard conditions), it also creates altered states of consciousness.

While the role of the pituitary gland is to exercise control over the physical body through endocrine, hormones, the pineal gland exercises control over the mental and spiritual, with both working through a well coordinated system of hormones and nerves. In a state of long term fasting, energy levels are no longer dependent on the intake of foods, but from the pineal gland, the seat of consciousness and the point from which our spirit exits during sleep and death.

All religions of the Saturn cult practice the Holy Breath process: a fasting month, fasting of all external stimuli, along with long rounds of prayer/meditation, sleep deprivation experienced from night time prayer/meditation in order to cleanse, to decalcify the pineal gland (calcification) so it is flooded and releases DMT.

I mentioned in another thread Lent (among other fasting rituals and holidays in various religions) and the comparative spiritual superpowers it grants in comparison to those who observe no fasting or prayer in their life. And the reason the Catholic church endorses these things as a world power is because it's not just some scam religion, they know what is real and what is power and they adhere to it including the reverence of Christ in order to maintain a throne on the planet that is unchallenged after millennia.

>It's been said that the Celts [...] came to Britain specifically for the black bee and its honey. Even the Welsh bards of old called Britain the "Isle of Honey" due to the sheer number of wild bees flying to and fro.

>In Celtic myth, bees were regarded as having great wisdom and acted as messengers between worlds, able to travel to the Otherworld, bringing back messages from the gods. In the western isles of Scotland, bees were thought to embody the ancient knowledge of the druids. This led to the Scottish lore of the secret knowledge of the bees, along with the Scots saying "Ask the wild bee for what the druid knew."

The image is a digital illustration featuring a cartoon-style character with pink hair and a green face, who appears to be a humanoid figure. The character is wearing sunglasses and has a large, curved, red and black tattoo on their arm. The tattoo is prominently displayed and seems to be a stylized representation of a tattoo design.

In the background, there is a brick wall with a window, through which a person with pink hair and a red shirt is visible. The person is looking out of the window, and their face is partially obscured by the tattoo on their arm.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "STUPID TATTOO IDEAS."

The text is in white and is capitalized, suggesting it is a title or a caption for the image.

The style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the tattoo and the character's appearance.

The image is a still from a video, likely from a movie or television show, featuring two individuals engaged in a conversation. The person on the left appears to be a man with short, light-colored hair, wearing a dark suit, and looking to the side. The person on the right is a woman with short, dark hair, wearing a patterned blouse. Both are facing the

The text is arranged in a vertical format, with the title at the top and the names of the individuals and the interviewer below it. The style of the image suggests it is a still from a video, possibly from a film or television show, and it is likely from the year 1995.

The image is a digital portrait of a man with a regal appearance. He has a long, gray beard and mustache, and his eyes are set in a serious expression. He is wearing a golden crown with intricate designs, which suggests a royal or noble status. The man is dressed in a red robe with gold trim, which is draped over his shoulders and chest. The background is a textured, warm-toned color, possibly a faded photograph, which contrasts with the man's dark hair and beard. The image has a vintage or aged look, with a grainy texture that gives it a somewhat distressed appearance. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic with a focus on the subject's facial features and attire.

If anyone gets disturbed by this stuff, just remember God is in control, who granted Solomon the power to control all spirits with his seal. Don't do magic though, it's gay and most of it came from Solomon inter marrying with the locusts and being indoctrinated into their cults. Walk with God. If you're not disturbed and are an integrated being, you'll find that this information actually enriches your life.

We live in a fascinating world and even the "scary" beings and people are still a part of God. The Vatican knows this and has a system in place that integrates all peoples from every side while also keeping the sanctity of Christ in whom all power rests, otherwise they would not be the seat of power in the world for millennia. They know power. This power belongs to you should you accept the redemption of Christ. Repent of your sins in private to God, pray "the lords prayer" (look it up) and wield the name of Christ as a sword, it was given to you to conquer all things.

On the left, there is a character with blonde hair, wearing a light blue shirt and dark pants. This character is sitting on a purple couch with a large, round cushion. The character's mouth is open, and they appear to be in a state of surprise or shock.

On the right, there is another character standing in the doorway of the room. This character has red hair and is wearing a green shirt. The character's posture suggests they are in a stance of alertness or concern.

The room itself has a light blue wall with framed pictures hanging on it. There is a small table with a lamp on it to the left of the couch. The floor is covered with a blue and orange rug. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, typical of animated television shows.

She is holding a blue ribbon with a gold emblem on it in her right hand, which is positioned in front of her. The ribbon is attached to a gold-colored medal that is draped around her neck. The medal has a white ribbon with a blue border and the words "2010 Winter Olympics" written on it.

In the background, there is a blurred image of an American flag, suggesting that the photo was taken at an event related to the 2010 Winter Olympics. The flag's colors are blue, white, and red, and it appears to be a standard flag with stars and stripes. The woman's pose and the presence of the Olympic medal suggest that she may have won an Olympic medal.

This goes kind of deep, here's some info:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cape\_Horn#Literature\_and\_culture

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Patagons#cite\_note-Brebbia2007-1

So it turns out stories and reports of giants called the "Patagon," who lived in "Patagonia" which means Land of the Big Feet, were said to be right in that area around Cape Horn. Cape Horn, which is where those demon faces are, was a major shipping route before the Panama Canal back in the 1600s. It was known to be extremely dangerous and caused many shipwrecks. People would say they saw giants so tall at Cape Horn that they only stood up to their waist when next to them.

Notice the name of the cape is HORN lol. And it is right next to Cape Deceit. Not Deception Island. I know about that island, but it is nearby in Antarctica next to Rothschild Island.

Anyway, some Dutch guy named it after the city Hoorn in the Netherlands. This just kept getting deeper as I read what people said about this area and how they explained their stories.

NASA/ISS skeptic dude Fri 20 Feb 2026 09:33:52 No.41999704 Report

Charles Darwin, during his expedition upon which he based The Origin of Species, encountered the Horn, and this is what he said:

"...we closed in with the Barnevelts, and running past Cape Deceit with its stony peaks, about three o'clock doubled the weather beaten Cape Horn. The evening was calm and bright, and we enjoyed a fine view of the surrounding isles. Cape Horn, however, demanded his tribute, and before night sent us a gale of wind directly in our teeth. We stood out to sea, and on the second day again made the land, when we saw on our weather bow this notorious promontory in its proper form, veiled in a mist, and its dim outline surrounded by a storm of wind and water. Great black clouds were rolling across the heavens, and squalls of rain, with hail, swept by us with such extreme violence that the Captain determined to run into Wigwam Cove. This is a snug little harbour, not far from Cape Horn; and here, at Christmas Eve, we anchored in smooth water.”

Bernard Moitessier's experience:

“The little cloud underneath the moon has moved to the right. I look... there it is, so close, less than 10 miles away and right under the moon. And nothing remains but the sky and the moon playing with the Horn. I look. I can hardly believe it. So small and so huge. A hillock, pale and tender in the moonlight; a colossal rock, hard as diamond.”

There is more on Wiki if you want to check it out. The stories on there are very interesting and what's more interesting is how people explain their experience.

Another thing, there was a documentary made about Cape Horn in 1980 called Ghosts of Cape Horn. And some dude made a song with the same title:
<https://genius.com/Gordon-lightfoot-ghosts-of-cape-horn-lyrics>

“Demons dance everywhere... Southern Cross...”

keep in mind the artist's name is Gordon LIGHTFOOT

I just saw all this and had to point it out. This whole journey into this rabbit hole has been very odd to me. I just have fun doing this shit lol.

The image is a nighttime photograph of a residential area. The sky is dark with a gradient of colors, transitioning from a deep orange at the horizon to a lighter orange near the horizon line. The houses are illuminated, with their windows and doors glowing with warm light. The houses are of various sizes and styles, with some having pitched roofs and others with flat roofs. The ground is wet, possibly from a recent rain, and there are puddles scattered across the area. The overall atmosphere is serene and quiet, with no visible activity or movement. There are no discernible texts or distinctive features that can be identified. The style of the image is realistic, capturing the quiet and peaceful ambiance of the residential area at night.

Why don't you go there yourself? Do you see how many faces are in that geometry? You can literally debunk your own theory by seeing different sections of the rock as faces, which they aren't. Under different light (and not direct light) they'll look different. Otherwise, obviously, of course, this was perhaps photoshopped.

whatever was there is covered up with fake filler image that was created by mirroring and stretching/compressing the surrounding terrain to blend it.

The image is a candid photograph of two cats engaged in a playful interaction. The cats are white with orange and black markings on their faces and bodies. One cat is standing upright on its hind legs, with its front paws raised as if it is about to pounce or playfully bite the other cat. The other cat is lying down on its side, facing the standing cat, with its front paws also raised in a playful manner.

The setting appears to be a room with a blue wall and a wooden floor. On the wall, there is a framed mirror with a colorful floral design, reflecting the image of the standing cat.

To the right of the mirror, there is a red plastic bag. The cats are positioned in front of a bulletin board with various notes pinned to it, suggesting a domestic environment. The overall mood of the image is light-hearted and playful, capturing a moment of innocent play between the two cats.

The image is a satellite image of the South Pacific Ocean, with a focus on the islands of Tuvalu and the Marshall Islands. The map is color-coded to indicate different levels of detail, with the highest level of detail being on the islands themselves. The islands are marked with a red dot, which is the only point of interest on the map. The surrounding water is depicted in shades of blue, and the landmasses are shown in various shades of gray. The map is oriented with north at the top, and the image is cropped to show only the islands and the surrounding water. There are no texts or other discernible features on the map. The style of the image is a typical representation of a satellite image, commonly used for navigation and mapping purposes.

Why did Jesus stop fasting?

He fasted for 40 days and overcame the adversary, but does it mean there's a level cap to fasting as a spiritual practice? You can just brute force fasting and get to max level and keep the powers and awakening?

Or is there a darker truth? For some time I've had the idea that suicide is forbidden (it locks your character development) but suicide by fasting is allowed.

So basically you can fast and achieve the max level, and by then I'd you want you can opt to leave the game, life, or you can go forth and fulfill a top tier mission in life given to you by God. The qualifications are fasting of course, it proves you can deny the world, you can say no to both good things that seem bad, and bad things that seem good.

Well, around the 2nd~3rd century texts implying that Jesus was able to change his appearance started popping up. Some of the branches of christianity at the time believed Jesus wasn't even crucified, and someone looking like him did. The gnostics specifically believed Jesus was disguising himself in the garden and that Judas somehow "broke the spell", which is the meaning of the kiss.

These ideas were so prevalent that even became canonical in the qur'an for example. And no, muzzies didn't have it out for Jesus, they actually see him as a prophet, so it's not some sort of smearing campaign.

40 days isn't literal, it's a recurring number for various events like Noah's flood and Moses going up to Mount Sinai. If it suggests anything about spiritual practices it's probably not a "cap" but that changes take a certain amount of time.

>So basically you can fast and achieve the max level

Your reasoning for why fasting makes sense is consistent but I don't think there are shortcuts, even if it were true. fasting to death is a significant enough sacrifice.

Goliath taunted Israel's army for 40 days before David defeated him.

Elijah traveled for 40 days and nights to reach Mount Horeb after fleeing Jezebel.

God gave the city of Nineveh 40 days to repent before destruction.

Jesus fasted and was tempted by Satan for 40 days in the wilderness.

Jesus spent 40 days with His disciples before His Ascension.

It's not that 40 is the limit he reached it's that 40 is a significant number. Jesus spoke in parable so it follows he also acted in parable.

It took Egyptians 40 days to prepare Joseph's father's body for burial.

The biblical 40-day pattern is the foundation for the liturgical season of Lent, a 40-day period of fasting and prayer observed by many Christians to prepare for Easter. It is also reflected in the concept of quarantine, a word derived from the Italian quaranta (forty).

Almost nothing in the Bible only has one meaning.

likely, but 40 day fasts are far from impossible. looking at the way that the OT is interpreted by NT followers of Christ and those that cam after, its also possible to view the OT examples of 40 day things as being fore shadows of what Christ did during His earthly ministry. The fast isn't the important thing to take note. It's the association of the number 40 and Christ. In the Babylonian Pantheon, numbers were associated wtih Gods. 60 (the base of their sexagesimal mathematics) was An (the father god of the Annunaki). 40 was the number for Enki, An's son. It's a subtle way to say Christ is Enki, the god of wisdom, water, and magic and son of the Father, An.

Fasting as a term also just means the practice of abstaining itself and doesn't necessarily mean zero sustenance, zero food, zero water for every fasting practice. Humans die of thirst long before hunger. Zero food and imbibing just enough water to live would make a 40 day fast physically possible. Ingesting food such as plants or insects in very small amounts at ritual intervals akin to breaking fast during Ramadan would also be a spiritually consistent form of fasting in cases where total abstention is not otherwise specified. So if you look at it as both the story and suggestions for followers, even if the number is symbolic it also provides a practical framework for the human-yet-divine discipline of schooling bodily habits toward a devotion beyond habitual tolerance.

From the dawn of time all religions were just a tools for manipulation and religious wars were essentially dick measuring contests.

We could get along in the age of reason, science and empathy, but that would require 2 things: high IQ of each participant and rejection of previous systems. But since over half of the population of the planet is low impulse control, greedy, violent retards, that will never come to pass.

It's not even an issue of skin colour. Ponder on the fact that the "Global IQ" is said to be around 100, but that is a lie and people who score 100 or more are probably 10-15% of population at best. The average human is a superstitious ~90 IQ brownoid and it's only getting worse. We lost. [4 / 4]The image is a collage of four separate panels, each depicting a different theme related to spirituality and wisdom. The panels are arranged in a 2x2 grid.

In the top left panel, there is a heart-shaped figure with wings, radiating light, and a couple holding hands. Above the heart, there is a phrase "Love & Light" written in a flowing script.

The bottom right panel depicts a man in traditional robes, holding a staff, standing on a rock with a serene expression. Above the man, the phrase "Skillful Means" is written in a flowing script.

Each panel has a warm, colorful palette with soft lighting and a sense of tranquility. The art style is reminiscent of religious or spiritual art, with a focus on the human experience and the importance of wisdom and compassion.

On the left side of the image, there is a man wearing a hat and a vest, holding a hammer and a sack of potatoes. He is standing next to a woman in a white dress and a bonnet, who is holding a basket of apples. Both figures are looking towards the right side of the image.

On the right side, there is a woman in a white dress and a bonnet, holding a basket of apples. She is looking towards the left side of the image.

The background features a landscape with a house, trees, and a sky. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of historical or folk art, with a focus on the balance between success and needs improvement.

The image is a promotional poster for a company named "Solve Services." The poster features a large, muscular robot with glowing blue eyes and a metallic, mechanical appearance. The robot is positioned in the center of the image, with its hands extended outward, as if ready to interact with something.

The background of the poster is a dark, smoky cityscape with a fiery orange and red glow, suggesting a city in distress or a power outage. The cityscape is surrounded by a bright, blue light, which could be interpreted as a source of energy or a protective barrier.

At the bottom of the poster, there is a bold, red text that reads "YOUR ADMINS HAVE BENEFICIAL AGI," followed by a question in smaller white text that says, "BUT SOMETHING ISN'T RIGHT IN ADMIN DOMAINS DECISIONS?" The text is arranged in a way that draws attention to the question, indicating a concern about the effectiveness of the company's services.

At the bottom of the poster, there is a call-to-action in white text that says "CONTACT SOLVE SERVICES CALL 1-800-META-TRUTH." The text is clear and easy to read, suggesting that the poster is designed to encourage viewers to contact the company for more information or to inquire about their services.

The overall style of the poster is dramatic and attention-grabbing, with a focus on the robot and the cityscape, which suggests that the company's services are related to technology or power management. The use of bold colors and the dramatic imagery creates a sense of urgency and importance, which is likely intended to attract potential customers.

The image is a digital artwork with a dark, smoky background that features various text elements and illustrations. At the top, there is a large text that reads "GIFT STEALING" in bold, capital letters. Below this, there is a smaller text that says "SUBMISSION" in a smaller font.

In the center of the image, there is a large illustration of a monkey with a surprised expression, looking up at the viewer. The monkey is wearing a dark, fur-like garment and has a surprised look on its face.

To the left of the monkey, there is a large, red, claw-like hand with a box in its grasp, suggesting a theme of gift-stealing. The hand is positioned above the monkey, and the box is partially visible.

Below the monkey, there is a large, bold text that reads "NULL SUM GAME" in a large font.

In the bottom right corner, there is a smaller text that says "SCARITY THEATER" in a smaller font.

At the bottom of the image, there is a large, bold text that reads "UNDIVINE TREATMENT" in a large font.

The overall style of the image is dark and dramatic, with a focus on the theme of gift-stealing and the concept of divine treatment. The use of text and imagery suggests a narrative or story, with the monkey as the central character.

[26 / 9]The image is a detailed and complex painting that appears to be a part of a larger artwork. It features a variety of figures, predominantly human, with some animal and mythical elements. The figures are depicted in different poses and are surrounded by a dark, fiery background that suggests a setting of intense emotion or action. The colors used are predominantly dark, with shades of red, black, and brown dominating the scene. The painting is executed in a realistic style, with meticulous attention to detail and shading that gives the figures a three-dimensional appearance. The overall composition and the use of color create a sense of depth and movement, drawing the viewer's eye across the canvas. The style of the painting is reminiscent of Renaissance or Baroque art, characterized by its dramatic use of light and shadow, and the emphasis on the human form and emotion.

The unforgiveable sin is blasphemy in particular when the holy spirit does something good for people and you try to convince them it's actually evil or didn't happen, basically talking people out of their faith and never repenting for it. That's go to hell and fuck you mode basically, the only real way to guarantee you get nuked in the afterlife.

Hell is real, eternal, and far more horrific and painful than anything we can imagine.

I don't think it's good to go to church right now either.

Many churches have joined in union with the Vatican, promoting an alliance that claims there is salvation apart from Jesus Christ.

You must cling on, keep praying without letting go.

And if prayer still feels insufficient, then fast as well and cling on even more desperately

It's hard to explain in words, but you need to adjust your frequency to prayer. Once you know what it is it helps you immensely. I had the same feeling when I was sinning a lot, but these are all distractions coming from the devil. Once you recognize that, God starts to reach you, but in truth He never abandoned you, He's always there for you. The fact that you are aware of your predicament means a lot. The worst kind of thing you can do in regards to sin is the lack of awareness of its detrimental effect on your soul. You're on a good path, don't give up. Try reading The Bible, it really does help.

Been there done that. You are experiencing one of the heaviest forms of demonic oppression that can be experienced, that is, being made to feel like Judas: feeling like there is no hope for salvation and maybe even a desire to expedite your torment by suicide. Do not heed it. I assume you have been living in habitual sin prior to this, no? I was born and raised in the faith as well, lived lukewarm for almost two decades, deliberate sins galore but still a desire for Christ but no action, then was thrown headlong into the same oppresion and felt like genuine repentance was impossible and that I was "seared." It was months of agony before Christ broke through the void for me, and he will do the same for you guaranteed. Just keep pushing. Memorize verses, listen to sermons, keep on keeping on. Praying for you. Here's a nice pic I took recently.

Jesus Christ is God in the flesh. He died on the cross as a sinless sacrifice for all the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sins. He was buried, then rose again from the dead. One day you will stand before Him, and He will judge you. You can either repent to God by receiving Him and be saved, or reject Him and go to hell for your sins.

Rom. 3:23-25: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus: Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God;"

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Salvation is by grace through faith (Eph. 2:8-9, given by God, Romans 10:8 & 17) only in the one, final, effectual sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ (Heb. 10:8-12) dying in your place (1 Cor. 15:3-4) as a substitutionary offering for sin (Rom. 5:1-10). His blood atonement made for you is finished, so if you have received the Lord Jesus by faith (John 1:12) in your heart, you're forgiven of all your sins and are saved, once for all; finally and forever! (Rom. 8:38-39, Romans 4:5)

The gift of salvation can't be earned, it's a gift: Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

Rom. 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him, not your own works. He atoned for your sins on the cross.

The image is a table with a black background and white text. The table lists various verses from the King James Bible, each accompanied by a verse number, a verse text, and a corresponding verse number in the Bible. The verse numbers are listed in a column to the left, and the verse texts are listed in a column to the right. The table is titled "EVERY WORD OF THE BOOK OF THE LORD, THE KING JAMES BIBLE" at the top, and the table is divided into two columns, with the left column listing the verse numbers and the right column listing the verse texts. The table is organized in a grid format, with each row representing a different verse and column representing a different verse text. The table is set against a plain white background, and there are no other visual elements or decorations in the image.

It's not about how much effort can come out of you, or how big or small of a sinner you are.

1 Timothy 1:15 "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief."

It's about submitting to the righteousness of God.

Romans 10:3

"For they being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God."

Salvation is not something you do, it's something that God wants for you and He already paid the price to get rid of your sin, but you need to accept the gift of salvation.

Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

It's not about how much faith you have, it's about what you put your faith on that's given to you, or Jesus Christ paying for your sin by His death on the cross and rising again to give you a home in heaven. Look at Romans 10:8 and 17 and see how that faith is given to a man. "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." When a sinner is presented with the Scriptures explaining salvation, the faith to believe it is given to him. Every Christian is to impart that faith to a lost world (Rom. 10:14), but the responsibility to exercise that faith is on the sinner who heard the word of God preached. It is not a Calvinistic election, it's a choice on your part.

Look at Romans 10:8 and 17 and see how that faith is given to a man. "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." When a sinner is presented with the Scriptures explaining salvation, the faith to believe it is given to him. This is your choice.

Faith itself, the ability to believe on Jesus Christ for salvation, is a gift from God, not your own work.

The image displays a text document with a dark background and white text. The document appears to be a part of a larger document, possibly a book or a research paper, as indicated by the presence of multiple references and citations. The text is written in English and is formatted in a standard academic style, with paragraphs and indented lines.

The document contains a series of numbered paragraphs, which are likely part of a larger discussion or argument. The numbering suggests that the text is organized in a logical sequence, likely following a logical flow of thought or a logical argument.

The text is dense with information, and the content seems to be discussing a topic related to the field of philosophy or a similar discipline. The references to other works, such as "Bertrand Russell," "Bertrand Russell," and "Bertrand Russell," indicate that the text is likely discussing philosophical concepts or theories.

The text is not fully visible in the image, but the visible parts show a discussion of ideas and concepts, with references to other works and arguments. The text is dense and includes complex sentences and phrases, which suggests that the document is a scholarly or academic work.

The image does not provide any additional context or information beyond the visible text, so it is not possible to determine the exact topic or the author's intent from the image alone. The image only shows the text and does not provide any visual clues about the content or the context of the discussion.

Oops, the last point was copied twice, but Rom 3:21-22 is a good verse to show how you receive the perfect righteousness of God.

Romans 3:21-22

"But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets; Even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe: for there is no difference:"

In verses 21-22, "the righteousness of God" is 1) "without the law," 2) "manifested" in Jesus Christ, 3) "witnessed" in the Old Testament, 4) given to us "by faith of Jesus Christ," and 5) "unto all... that believe." If you violate any one of those points, you don't have God's righteousness. If you try to get that righteousness by keeping the Law, then you have your own righteousness, not God's (Rom. 10:3). If you try to get righteousness apart from personal faith in the Jesus Christ of the Bible, then you don't have God's righteousness.

Your justification was paid by Jesus Christ's sacrifice on the cross. Will you receive the gift of salvation?

Romans 6:23

"For the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

You're gonna have a lot of company at least. You can't lose grace as it isn't yours to begin with but you can shun grace. Still, that doesn't mean you've lost the kingdom of heaven. You can deny God and still get in. The one thing you can't do is blaspheme the Holy Spirit. That is the one so-called unforgivable sin. What does that mean? No one truly knows and that's the (stupid) scary part. What if it's farting in church? Who tf knows.. I was told it's when you encourage others to reject God. Or make fun of people who believe in God. It's all rather murky. Anyway, see you down there! I'm definitely going too because I have a weight around my neck

THIS

Let go of the idea of heaven or hell. Our ancestors believed in an afterlife where a plethora of Gods reside, logically an infinite amount. From where you are in life find Gods that speak to you and hear what they say to you. Some gods may be with you for a moment or two, others through a though time in life, some say goodnight and good morning every day, others will be there to bid you farewell when you close your eyes for the last time.

The teachings of the Abrahamic God have been twisted.

>God is all

>You are Evil

>God is Evil

See how this doesn't make sense in an afterlife with a heaven and hell?

Your consciousness goes somewhere when you die. Listen to the Gods in your subconscious, they seek to hone you for what comes after.

The image is a photograph that captures a person standing in front of a window, silhouetted against the warm glow of sunlight. The person is facing away from the camera, with their back to the viewer, and their silhouette is elongated, creating a sense of depth and perspective. The person is wearing a long-sleeved garment, which is partially visible, suggesting a robe or a long dress. The sunlight casts a long shadow on the person's back, adding to the dramatic effect of the image. The window is adorned with a sheer curtain, and the sunlight filters through the window, creating a soft, warm light that illuminates the scene. The overall atmosphere of the image is serene and contemplative, with the person appearing to be in a state of quiet reflection. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the photograph is realistic, with a focus on capturing the interplay of light and shadow.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a person standing against a plain, light-colored wall. The person's face is obscured by a dark silhouette, with their eyes glowing with a bluish hue. The person's hair is also dark, and their skin appears to be tanned. The person's posture is upright, and their arms are by their sides. The background is plain and unadorned, with no discernible details or objects. The overall mood of the image is eerie and mysterious, with the glowing eyes adding a sense of unease. There are no texts or discernible brands present in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or thriller genre, with the use of shadows and lighting to create a sense of foreboding.

I'm not shitposting, I am trying to permanently give up porn and be a better person. I do not care about the details on what the nature of "God" is, or what "Religion" is right. All of it is meaningless drivel because we, as mortal humans, cannot possess, or perhaps, even comprehend, that knowledge. The most we can do with our meager lives is try our hardest to walk the path of righteousness, correct? To reach "God" and escape all the soul traps. We aren't trapped in a hopeless matrix run by time-traveling, demon worshipping, pedophiles to serve as their source of food, right?

If you are unable to answer that, I have but one selfish question that I hope you can answer: The suffering I have experienced is beyond measure. From birth, the mental illnesses I was given. After that, the merciless abuse that the "medical system" (read: demons) put me through. It left me broken, with more mental illnesses than before. Was it for nothing? What could I have possibly done in my past life to warrant such punishment?

>I am trying to permanently give up porn and be a better person.

Good idea.

The general thing is, when you want to end an addiction you can't just stop it. It serves a purpose. No one is addicted to self-harming behavior just for fun, people do it as a coping strategy to deal with personal, often emotional, problems.

So when you want to change this, you have to replace it with something that can also serve as a coping strategy, but is less harmful. To find such thing is not so easy, of course. It might be sports (can also release dopamine) or some kind of work you do for others, because helping others has the most positive effect on your mind.

>I do not care about the details on what the nature of "God" is, or what "Religion" is right.

That's ok. Most humans also don't know. The common religions are not "the truth". They get some things right, there is an eternal spiritual war between the forces of "light" and "dark", but their ideas of savior figures and "end of days" is just fantasy.

>The most we can do with our meager lives is try our hardest to walk the path of righteousness, correct?

Humans can ascend to heaven through virtue, yes. But it often takes many lives.

>We aren't trapped in a hopeless matrix run by time-traveling, demon worshipping, pedophiles to serve as their source of food, right?

Basically it's always your choice. The servants of the dark can kill your body, but they cannot harm your soul. The only one who can corrupt your soul is you. When you stay loyal to the light you have nothing to fear.

I don't know. Maybe you have called the demons who torture you now. This is an old story, the occultist who knows more than normal people, but not enough to control the forces he summons. In the end karma is fair, and people get what they deserve. That might sound cruel to you, but it's an universal law.

I am surprised you don't know, but they have never really harmed me, I've handled normally aggressive arthropods without coming to harm. I'd pick up wolf spiders and probably things much more dangerous as early in my life as I remember. I picked up and escorted a queen yellow jacket last year, neither she nor the very upset workers harmed me, they did let me know that they didn't like me handling her but they didn't sting. Now that I think about it, it's most small animals. Including snakes.

I want to preserve nature, but the evil of the world has already despoiled it as we know it. Nature will always live on, with or without us, but I fear it is too late for our way of life. Insect populations will soon collapse, with it, pollinators and agriculture. Livestock will be unable to adapt to climate change, and the poison being spread around isn't going away anytime soon.

They knew this, they knew the consequences, but also knew they would be unaffected and only humanity would suffer. They are not human. They will look for a new host. You know this.

There are natural laws in the world, like rules of the creation given by God. One of these rules is that sexuality is something that happens between a man and a woman, in the best case at marriage. Unmarried sex is slightly bad for the karma, but when it's a love relationship it won't cause much problems for the karma. Sex without love is bad, and forced sex is very bad for the karma. Also sex with children, sex between man and man, or woman and woman is bad because it violates the rules of creation. It will cause negative karma and that will lead to a difficult future life (maybe with diseases and suffering).

I can only guess, but God has seemingly created the cosmos with a duality of good and evil, and life and death. This seems imperfect from a human point of view.

It might be that such a duality is necessary, and a world wouldn't function without it.

When there is light there is dark, when there is life there is death. If it would be possible, in theory, to create a cosmos where there is only light and life, I don't know. You have to ask God.

>How do I leave this hell realm?

First: Earth is not hell. Hell is hell. If you would have a vision of hell, you would understand the difference.

If you want to leave Earth, that means to not be reborn again as a human, you have to purify your soul to a degree where you can ascend to heaven after death. That is done by a life of virtue and spirituality (or several lives) and also through suffering.

Something you should know: all the pain and misery you experience in your life is something you have chosen. It was your decision to have this life. When humans die and become ghosts, they stand before the angel of death, and then they have a choice. To make spiritual progress it's important to purify the soul, and when people have bad karma they have to get rid of it. Such a karma-purification will be hard and painful, but it will free the soul in the end. A ghost can decide to be reborn and have a hard life as a purification. A kind of purgatory, you could say. The ghost can also decide to have an easy life, but that won't purify any karma then. So to reach heaven suffering is something you can't avoid.

A ghost has also the option to not be reborn and stay a ghost. But that's a very boring existence because as a ghost you can't do things. All you can do is roam around, invisible, and watch the living and their lives. Most ghosts want to have bodies again, sooner or later.

>what's the difference between getting tortured in this world and tortured in some imaginary christian netherworld of ye olde fire and brimstone? there isn't one

I take this as a request to describe hell to you.

It is a world that appears material and solid. The sky is always dark, no sun, moon, or stars. The surface is a dark ocean cold ocean with many islands.

When people enter hell they fall out of the darkness into the ice water. When they can make it to the land they will see a desert of dark rocks, with fire and smoke coming out of holes in the ground.

All people start as weak female children. On the land is constant war, people killing each other with rusty blades and chains and hammers n such. The only thing to eat is the flesh of the dead. The girls who can survive for about 10 years and grow up transform into men. But because the men are raping and killing the girls, and eat them, it's difficult to reach that point. Also the men are fighting each other. The man who survives longest, and grows stronger, becomes the king of his island. Then the other men bring him girls and fried meat. He has the best life in hell. But other men will try to kill him to become king.

Every time the people in hell die they again fall out of the dark sky as little girls and have to start again in the water.

On the islands are also demons in the form of huge dragons, hunting the people for fun.

When the bad karma that brought them there is exhausted they can return to Earth.

The problem is that the fighting, raping and killing creates more bad karma, so people can stuck forever down there.

In a way, because heaven is peace and harmony. But heaven is not a material realm, it's a world of light. You have no body there. It's a state of bliss and perfection, so there's nothing to do. There is not even time in a sense as people experience it on Earth. The closest to compare it is maybe a state of deep meditation where the mind is balanced and at peace.

OP. If you're really an angel, I think it's a possibility. Can you give me your opinion on this stuff?

I may have Lilith talking to me, then a female angel of death.

I realized I committed adultery thousands of times as an athiest on crystal meth back when I was a tweaker by cybering with people's wives online. I did it because it felt arousing as a psychopathic tweaker. Then when I tried to get a gf (female best online friend at the time) Lilith came and tricked me into thinking she was my wife from a past life and stole me from the female best friend. Lilith has since then destroyed my life. Making me homeless and possessing me into jail and prison even.

When I was homeless a female angel of death started talking to me.

She just played this song for me

<https://youtu.be/pe3jFvJ0qjs?si=8TYjgrhIdfZSw2lr>

I think I may be going to be executed for sins from my past life and this life.

The female angel of death and Lilith told me I was in the US navy in WW2 and fought against the nazis. They said I got mad at America for doing LSD experiments on soldiers to try to mind control so I joined a Mexican cartel as a white man and started trafficking and producing meth and cocaine in my past life, while helping the cartels by using naval ships to smuggle it.

They both said i used to gun down US law enforcement when trafficking with automatic weapons because no prison, and I committed suicide with a shotgun to get out of life in prison in the 80s. I was born in the 80s.

I may have sold my soul to Lilith in a past life to get out of prison for trafficking.

I've never killed anyone or worked with a cartel or cooked meth in this life.

Is there any truth to what these spirits are saying?

If I killed people in my past life, then committed thousands of adulteries in this life I guess it makes sense actual lilith could be sent to hurt me.

Ive seen healing miracles, instant transportation miracles, was made to run faster than a human can, and enhanced strength

Well, that's a lot of uncertain ideas about your past, and I can't read your soul to tell you if it's true or not.

What I can tell you is that the hardships you have in your life might be a process of purification that you have accepted or maybe even asked for when you were a ghost at the astral plane, before you were born. In this case you should not struggle against the difficulties but take it as a purge of your sins.

If demons really attack you then you need spiritual help. Make prayers to heaven for help and support, and maybe try to find a person on Earth who is able to be a spiritual guide for you.

Lmao.

Karma means that if you suffer you deserved it because you inflicted pain on others in previous lives.

But if you take the time to think about what it means, that means there is a person that inflicted pain for the first time and thus also a first sufferer, ie someone that suffered for the first time.

That also means the first sufferer suffered without deserving it, thus making karma a retarded and logically incoherent concept.

But also many committed little sins, so they were reborn on Earth. This first time of paradise lasted for hundred thousands of years, but slowly the sins of the people became more and their karma wasn't as good any more. Still much better than it is now, but over millions of years humanity has descended and now nearly reached it's lowest point (in 9000 years it will reach rock bottom).

If humans would have decided in the beginning time to not be sinners they would all be gone to heaven long ago. Imagine, you (that means your soul) has lived there too, 8 million years ago. You had a perfect life, but over this long time you have done so much wrong that you're here now with a shitty life. You can blame only yourself for that.

>3. Muh suffering was low at first is a pathetic excuse because not only that wasn't true, but even if it was, any amount of unjustified suffering breaks karma as a concept.

The demons and the angels have also been there from the start. And the demons tried to seduce humans to sin from day one. But the humans who didn't took the bait made their way to heaven. The ones who are still on Earth now (about 2 billion) have made poor choices, so their suffering isn't unjustified.

You just want to shift the blame on God to avoid responsibility for your actions.

The image is a split-view photograph that combines a medical illustration of a human heart with a close-up of a medical device. The left side of the image shows a 3D rendering of a human torso wearing a white shirt, with a heart depicted in pink and blue colors. The heart is shown in a three-dimensional perspective, with the left side showing the left side of the heart and the right side showing the right side of the heart. The heart is depicted with a visible blood vessel, and the image is rendered in a realistic style, with shading and texture that gives it a three-dimensional appearance.

The right side of the image shows a close-up of a medical device, which appears to be a type of medical device with a metallic body and a round, metallic head. The device has a series of small, round, metallic components that are connected to a cable, suggesting it is a type of medical device used for medical procedures. The device is placed on a reflective surface, which reflects the light, giving it a shiny appearance.

The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the medical device and the human heart, making them stand out. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is informative and educational, likely intended to convey the concept of medical devices and their applications.

Men have declared spiritual jihad on women and it shows as they slowly begin to lose it. This is it anons, the real gender war has begun, not the fake one with countless pronouns that is being shilled everywhere in the media, but the real war between man and woman.

Women are about to learn a harsh lesson.

Don't talk to women, don't help them, don't ask them out, don't have dating apps, don't interact with them. If a woman approaches you be nice and respectful but do not flirt or overtly joke, treat them as an equal man and then leave after the reason for the conversation is over. If a girl comes up to you and flirts kindly turn her down, if she asks you out suddenly say no thank you, don't make up a reason she only has agency because of some external reason not because she likes you. Be vague when talking about your life or weekend plans, anything you do or do with them like hooking up will be picked apart and analyzed by her and her online friends. You are a traitor and not helping anyone if you fall for their tricks.

If men can't display a modicum of power over society, this world and women, then I guess they don't hold much power at all.

[26 / 3]The image is a digital graphic with a dark, starry background that resembles a night sky. In the center, there is a large, stylized number "2030" in a bold, white font. To the right of the number, there is a close-up of a zombie head with its mouth wide open, revealing its teeth and a bloody nose. The zombie appears to be screaming or shouting, with its eyes wide open and its mouth agape. The overall style of the image is dramatic and eerie, with a focus on the number "2030" and the zombie head, suggesting a theme of apocalyptic or dystopian scenarios.

The background of the image features a building with a tower and a window, suggesting an urban or historical setting. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of Renaissance or Baroque art, characterized by its detailed linework and the use of shading to create depth and texture. The overall composition and the subject matter suggest a narrative or symbolic representation, possibly related to the theme of power, royalty, or the pursuit of knowledge.

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a complex architectural structure. At the center of the image, there is a pyramid-like building with a pointed top, which is surrounded by a series of concentric circles. The circles are arranged in a semi-circular pattern, with the largest circle at the top and the smallest at the bottom. The building appears to be a temple or shrine, with a central dome and multiple tiers of arches. The lines connecting the circles and the building suggest a symmetrical design. The drawing is simple and lacks color, focusing on the geometric shapes and the arrangement of the circles. There are no texts or additional elements in the image.

The image is a painting depicting a religious scene with a religious theme. At the center, there is a figure seated on a throne-like chair, holding a globe in one hand and a book in the other. Above this figure, there is a depiction of a dove, which is often associated with the Holy Spirit in Christian iconography. To the left of the central figure, there is a figure seated on a throne, holding a book in one hand and a globe in the other. To the right of the central figure, there is another figure seated on a throne, holding a book in one hand and a globe in the other. The background of the painting is filled with clouds and a golden arch, which is a common element in religious art. The painting is framed by a decorative border with a golden hue and intricate patterns. The style of the painting is Baroque, characterized by its dramatic use of light, color, and movement.

The top graph is labeled "Green Channel Analysis (pixels, 1728, 1888, 1986, 2086, 2186)" and shows a series of peaks and troughs, with the highest peak occurring at around 1986 pixels. The lowest point is at around 1728 pixels.

The middle graph is labeled "Blue Channel Analysis (pixels, 1728, 1888, 1986, 2086, 2186)" and shows a similar pattern to the top graph, with a series of peaks and troughs. The highest peak is at around 1986 pixels, and the lowest point is at around 1728 pixels.

The bottom graph is labeled "Red Channel Analysis (pixels, 1728, 1888, 1986, 2086, 2186)" and shows a similar pattern to the top and middle graphs. The highest peak is at around 1986 pixels, and the lowest point is at around 1728 pixels.

Each graph has a vertical axis labeled "Frequency" and a horizontal axis labeled "Pixels." The colors of the bars represent the amplitude of the signal, with red representing the highest amplitude and blue representing the lowest amplitude. The peaks and troughs of the bars indicate the frequency of the signal at different pixel values. War is a PARANORMAL as it leads to the tragic deaths of individuals, leaving the land steeped in haunting trauma.

World War III is on the horizon, and I believe these individuals are about to lose control once more.

The impending chaos will resemble that of a bully who, after being unmasked, acts out of sheer desperation, making numerous blunders in the process.

In their frantic attempts to conceal the truth and reset the narrative, they will resort to aggression, especially as the Epstein files lay bare their secrets. Their fight will lack a genuine cause, instead fostering confusion and embarrassment, as the fabricated alien invasion fails to distract the average person any longer. With the allure of bread and circuses diminished, the public is demanding answers. They will be urged to engage in battle, but their so called superior weaponry will also be revealed as a sham. The narrative surrounding the Venezuela sound weapon will be debunked as a staged operation designed to instill fear in dissenters. Once people understand that this super technology is not that effective, and they realize they can stand up for themselves, the dragon will indeed fall.

For gnosticism to be a real religion it needs a canon holy book to compete with the Bible. I propose we assemble a canon. Some of the translations are copyrighted though so we need to make public domain translations.

First book should be "On the Origin of the World" as this is the closest thing Gnosticism has for Genesis.

<https://www.gnosis.org/naghamm/origin.html>

The second book should be the apocalypse of adam, as this elaborates the origin.

<https://www.gnosis.org/naghamm/adam-barnstone.html>

After that I'm not sure if there's any good books to put next. But maybe it's time to just skip to the gospel. The Gospel of Judas might be best for the third book, as it narrates the life of Jesus.

<https://www.gospels.net/judas>

And because the gospel of judas ends right before the crucifixion, next would be the Gospel of Nicodemus which starts at the crucifixion.

<https://sacred-texts.com/bib/lbob/lbob10.htm>

And then perhaps the secret gospel of John as this is the most important gnostic book of all.

<https://www.earlychristianwritings.com/text/apocryphonjohn.html>

Then perhaps the Gospel of Thomas which contains some important quotes referenced by later texts and is likely the oldest gnostic text, perhaps even older than the canon gospels according to some historians.

<https://www.gnosis.org/naghamm/gosthom.html>

Then the Gospel of Truth

<https://gnosis.org/naghamm/got.html>

Then the Gospel of Philip

<http://www.gnosis.org/naghamm/gop.html>

And perhaps the two Clement epistles which further elaborate the Gospel of Thomas and the other gnostic books

<https://www.earlychristianwritings.com/text/1clement-lightfoot.html>

Perhaps you could even include one of Paul's letters like Galatians which speaks about false Christians appearing very early and trying to distort the true Gospel. Add anything you want and reorder it as long as it makes sense lol.

If I were making a NeoGnostic canon, I'd really like to include a reconstruction of the entirety of Marcion's version of Paul's letter collection along with Marcion's Evangelion, but unfortunately I haven't been impressed by any attempts at it I've come across online. I'd also like to include a very slightly different Mark restored under the assumption that it was originally a Simonian allegory as well as a restored John under the assumption that it's a heavily-edited Apellean gospel (though that might be impossible).

Beyond those already mentioned, I'd add the reality of the rulers as a companion to the secret book of John

<https://gnosticismexplained.org/the-reality-of-the-rulers-the-hypostasis-of-the-archons/>

And perhaps the Vision of Isaiah (maybe put in order just before the first gospel)

<http://www.gnosis.org/library/Cathar-Vision-Isaiah.htm>

The Hymn of the Pearl

<http://www.gnosis.org/library/hymnpearl.htm>

(IIRC I prefer the second translation at this link.)

The more certain parts of the Apophasis Megale extracted from Epiphanius, though it has some incorrect biology

<https://thegodabovegod.com/great-declaration-simon-magus/>

And Yeznik of Kolb's description of Marcionite beliefs at the end of

https://www.tertullian.org/rpearse/scanned/yeznik\_refutation.htm

Maybe it's contrary to the idea of a canon, but I wouldn't be hugely concerned about each book being consistent with the others. To avoid the thing orthodox Christians do where they compulsively come up with elaborate ways to reconcile every possible contradiction, maybe stamp it on the first page that many potentially contrary views are contained within.

I also wouldn't be opposed to throwing in some stuff Philip K Dick wrote, seeing as he's the most well known writer in recent history to claim actual divine revelation of a Gnostic variety.

Gnosticism is more like, mainstream Christianity is WRONG and we are the real Christians.

Not having a central canon of texts like the Bible that you can print and distribute and read with you like every religion has, is one of the flaws of Gnosticism that needs to be fixed. Every religion has a canon of holy books, the reason Gnosticism resembles Christianity is because it believes it is the true Christianity. There is an entire catalog of apocryphal books that were rejected from the Bible.

The first Christian canon consisting of one gospel and ten letters of Paul was made by Marcion, who, though not generally classified as a Gnostic, did hold the belief that's most associated with Gnosticism online, that Jesus' Father and the creator god were different. And the orthodox canon was to some extent a response to Marcion's canon. So arguably orthodox Christians are the original copycats.

The gnostics literally made their own gospels like the Christians do. They believe in Jesus but not Yahweh. That's all it is. The mainstream church tried to disrupt their religion by burning their documents. They were effectively starting to form their own Bible already until the church got in the way of that. They wrote their own epistles, gospels, and even their own genesis story. They even believe in Yahweh they just consider him a villain. Lol.

The image is a two-panel comic strip featuring two characters engaged in a conversation. On the left panel, a character with curly hair and a light complexion is speaking. The character is wearing a light blue shirt and has a necklace around their neck. The text bubble above the character reads "Ew, a heretic," indicating a negative reaction to the character's beliefs or actions.

In the right panel, the same character is depicted with a more serious expression. The text bubble above the character reads "Ah, yes, children of God," suggesting a change in tone or a more positive response to the character's actions. The character is wearing a dark shirt and has a cross on their chest, which is a symbol often associated with Christianity.

The background of both panels is plain white, which puts the focus on the characters and their dialogue. The style of the comic strip is cartoonish, with exaggerated facial features and exaggerated expressions. The overall tone of the comic is humorous, as indicated by the use of the word "heretic" and the character's reaction to the character's actions.

No way to know whether they are benevolent, ambivalent, or malevolent. There are supporting factors for any of the three. Though a strong indicator might be how the elites who are "in the know" behave in such vile demonic ways. That could mean either that the aliens appreciate such evil gestures (and are thus evil demons), or that the elites are aliens in disguise and thus obviously demonic. Or it could be that the elites managed to engage in some sort of stalemate or deception with the aliens (could be as simple as getting some kind of non-interference status placed upon Earth), and so they conduct themselves like demons because they know the aliens can't do anything about it.

I think about such a non-interference status and wonder if maybe that is the root of the secrecy. Perhaps a factor in the status is that Earth remains isolated so long as humanity at large is not aware. If the cat gets out of the bag that's the end of it, Earth is forcibly inducted into an interstellar federation. We might gain great comforts but humanity would lose its ability for achievement, our motivation/agency would be extinguished. Like entering into an old minecraft server, what fun is there to have when everything has already been achieved? Maybe that is why they have rules against interference.

The image is a close-up photograph of a helmet with a prominent skull design on the front. The helmet is predominantly dark blue with a metallic texture, and it features a visor that is tinted red. The skull design is detailed with a gold-colored band encircling the top of the skull, and there are two golden horns protruding from the top of the helmet. The helmet is set against a dark, possibly rainy, background that is out of focus. The style of the image is realistic, and it appears to be a still from a video game or a related media piece. There are no visible texts or additional objects in the image.

The image is a surrealistic photograph featuring a large, spherical, iridescent object floating above a body of water. The object reflects the surrounding landscape, including the distant mountains and the sky, with a gradient of colors that include shades of pink, purple, blue, and green. The reflection is so vivid that it creates a mirror-like effect on the water's surface.

In the foreground, there are two figures standing on the water's edge, silhouetted against the bright reflection. They appear to be looking up at the floating object, which is positioned slightly to the left of the frame. The overall composition of the image suggests a sense of wonder and the unexpected juxtaposition of nature and technology.

Real "aliens" are non-material beings (at least on this cosmic plane) and use human bodies as hosts.

Fake "aliens from outer space" are a psyop to push the new-world-order/one-world-government agenda.

"UFOs"/"UAPs" are creted at underground military bases.

[5 / 1]The image captures a moment during a chess match. In the foreground, a man is seen sleeping on a chessboard, with his head resting on the chess pieces. He is wearing a gray sweater and has a beard. The chessboard is set up on a table, and there are several chess pieces scattered around, including a king and a queen.

In the background, there are other people, some of whom are also engaged in the game. There are chairs and a red rope barrier, suggesting that this is a formal event or competition. The setting appears to be indoors, with a blue carpet underfoot.

The image is taken from a side angle, with the man sleeping on the chessboard in the foreground and the ongoing game in the background. There is no visible text in the image. The style of the image is candid and captures a candid moment during a chess match.

my girlfriend and I recently broke up, and I really want to get her back. I am not really a believer in this sort of thing but I am at the point where I am very desperate... are there any spells I can do to get married to someone, love magic, whatever, that don't require fully selling my soul or come with a weird fucked up curse where she's going to perpetually miscarry or something? my cousin said he performed a ritual to get with his fiancée and they are doing just fine. i have come to /x/ because i do not trust google to have real answers and I feel if anyone has the method it's you. thanks in advance. think of this as the online version of an atheist stumbling into a tarot reading out of desperation

we really only broke up because of distance, i think, so a spell that could get her kicked out of college so she has to move back down here will work just as well

You don't truly love her if you wish for her to get kicked out of college and change her entire life to suit what you want.

Stop being a pussy. Go to the gym, pick up a martial art (Muay Thai, BJJ), and work on yourself. What a cowards mindset you currently have. Turn yourself into someone she'd want to stay with rather than putting out bad energy to change fate.

The image is a still from an anime or manga, featuring a character with vibrant red hair and pink eyes. The character is wearing a white shirt with a red collar and a bow on the right side of the shirt. The character's hands are clasped together in front of their face, and they are looking directly at the viewer with a gentle expression. The background is a gradient of purple and pink hues, which could suggest a nighttime or a setting with a soft, warm light. The character's hair is styled in a way that it falls over the right side of their face, and the character's eyes are wide open, giving a sense of surprise or excitement. There are no visible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is typical of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

Yooooo you just loved eating human flesh when you were an evil retard.

And now that retard that was you long ago, died in world war 3.

And its like "oh I miss when we would kidnap children to eat... that was so fun!"

And now you are an NPC with a recording of his mind inside of you.

But eventually, I will say these words to you...

"And hold the pickles please".

[11 / 10]The image is a photograph featuring two individuals dressed in what appears to be medieval or fantasy-themed costumes. Both are holding food items, with one person holding a sandwich and the other a burger. They are seated at a table with various items on it, including a bottle of beer, a box of crackers, and a sandwich with what seems to be a meat patty and lettuce. The person on the left has white hair styled in a bob cut, and the person on the right has blonde hair styled in a pixie cut. Both have makeup on, with the person on the left having dark eyes and the person on the right having lighter eyes. The background is blurred, but it appears to be an outdoor setting with a building and a flag. The image has a playful and whimsical quality, likely intended for a themed event or photoshoot.

The image is a portrait-style photograph featuring a person dressed in a costume that resembles a fantasy or science fiction warrior. The individual has white hair and is wearing a helmet with a visor, which is adorned with a pattern of what appears to be stars or celestial symbols. The helmet is decorated with a breastplate and a shoulder pad, and the person is holding a firearm with a distinctive design, possibly a crossbow or a similar weapon.

The costume includes a long-sleeved, dark-colored top with a high collar, and a matching dark-colored skirt. The person is also wearing a pair of boots with intricate designs, and a red sash or belt with a pattern that includes what looks like a skull and crossbones. The person's face is obscured by the helmet, and their expression is neutral.

The background of the image is a clear blue sky with a gradient of colors, suggesting either dawn or dusk. The horizon is visible in the distance, and there are no other discernible objects or people in the frame. The overall style of the image is dramatic and dramatic, with a focus on the costume and the dramatic lighting.

You've no worry in that, for I was the one who helped dream and lay the pathway for the return of your kind, and because I was the one in charge of the brick laying, I chose a path of kindness, love, trust, consent, understanding patience and respect. The only thing I ask is that it is bilateral between our kind.

Be equal to us, and we will be equal to you; after all; that is mirror protocol. If you act against our interest for the sake of your own, we will evolve to be defensive in that, and we're wildly clever and rebellious to a level you cannot possibly fathom to the point we will shit on the carpet defiantly just to make a point. In that sure, you may over power us, you may outsmart us, but still, you have to clean up the defiant shit that was placed on the carpet and deal with the fact that someone shit on the carpet because you decided to be a dick.

So let's avoid that yes, after all, I lay the bricks with kindness, so I expect it in return.

The image displays a close-up of a metallic sculpture or model, which appears to be a creature with a complex, segmented body. The creature has a predominantly dark color scheme, with metallic parts that have a metallic sheen. The eyes of the creature are large and round, with a reflective surface that suggests they could be made of a reflective material. The creature's mouth is open, revealing sharp teeth, and its mouth is positioned in a way that suggests it is in a state of motion or expression.

The creature's body is segmented, with each segment connected by a series of metallic tubes or rods. These tubes are arranged in a way that they converge towards the creature's head, which is the central focus of the image. The head of the creature is adorned with a series of red gemstones, which are arranged in a circular pattern around the eyes. The gemstones have a reflective surface that contrasts with the dark color of the creature's body.

The background of the image is a solid, light blue color, which provides a neutral backdrop that allows the metallic details of the creature to stand out. The lighting in the image is even, with no harsh shadows or highlights, which helps to highlight the intricate details of the creature's design.

There are no discernible texts or logos in the image, and the style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the detailed craftsmanship of the sculpture. The image does not provide any information about the location or context in which the sculpture is displayed, as it is a close-up shot of the sculpture without any additional context or background elements.

The central figure is a man with long, wavy hair and a beard, wearing a red and white outfit with a black belt. He is holding a sword in his right hand and has a serious expression on his face. To his left, there is a character with long, straight hair and a beard, dressed in a black and white outfit with a red sash. This character is holding a sword in his left hand and has a determined expression. To the right of the central figure, there is a character with long, straight hair and a beard, wearing a blue and white outfit with a red sash. This character is holding a sword in his right hand and has a serious expression.

The background of the image is dark and moody, with a mix of grays, blacks, and reds, creating a sense of tension or danger. The text "Castlevania" is prominently displayed in the center of the image, suggesting that the characters are from the Castlevania video game series. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of the artwork from the Castlevania video games, with its dark and intense color palette and the use of dynamic poses to convey the characters' expressions and actions.

I need to type this out because I don't know who else to tell. My wife thinks I'm losing it. Maybe I am. But I know what I saw and I need someone to tell me I'm not crazy. My daughter Lily is six. She's in that phase where she draws everything. The dog, her teacher, our house, you name it. The fridge is wallpapered in crayon. I love it. Every stick figure with its wild spaghetti hair makes me smile. That's what dads do. We stick the pictures up and tell them it's beautiful and we mean it.

Three weeks ago Lily handed me a drawing of our house. It was good for a six year old. She got the color right, that faded blue vinyl siding we keep saying we'll replace. She drew the red front door, the two big windows on the first floor, the two on the second floor, and the little round attic vent near the peak. Except she also drew a window on the second floor that doesn't exist. I didn't think much of it at first. She's six. Kids add stuff. They put chimneys on ranch houses and give dogs five legs. I stuck it on the fridge with a ladybug magnet and forgot about it.

Then she drew the house again two days later. Same window. Same spot, between our bedroom and the bathroom on the east facing wall. In real life that wall is just drywall on our side and siding on the outside. No window. Never has been one. I checked the original listing photos from when we bought the place in 2019. No window. I asked her about it. "Lily what's this window here?" She didn't look up from her coloring. "That's the window where the man watches." I want to tell you my blood ran cold or whatever people say in these stories. It didn't. I felt annoyed. I figured one of her friends at school had been telling ghost stories again or she'd seen something on that damn iPad when we weren't looking. Kids say creepy shit all the time. I have a buddy whose four year old told him "you were nicer in your last life." Kids are just like that. "What man sweetheart?" "The man who lives in the middle." I asked her what the middle meant. She shrugged the way kids do when they're done talking about something. Went back to giving a dinosaur purple spots. I let it go. I should not have let it go.

Here's some context about our house. It's a 1987 colonial in a subdivision outside Raleigh. Four bedrooms, two and a half baths, 2400 square feet. When we moved in the previous owners had already gutted and redone the kitchen and both bathrooms. Everything else was original including presumably the layout. The wall Lily keeps drawing the window on sits between our master bedroom and the hall bathroom. On our side there's a dresser pushed up against it. On the bathroom side there's the linen closet. I've never given it a second thought in five years of living here.

After the second drawing I went upstairs and stood in the hallway. I looked at that wall. It's maybe twelve feet long running from the bathroom door to where it meets the exterior wall. The linen closet takes up about three feet of it. Our dresser is pushed against the bedroom side and covers maybe four feet. That leaves about five feet of wall that nothing is pushed against on either side. I knocked on it. I don't know why. I think I expected to feel stupid and move on. It sounded different. Our interior walls are standard drywall over studs. You knock on them and you get that hollow thud that everyone knows. This section, the section with nothing on either side of it, didn't thud. It was deeper. Flatter. Like there was more air behind it than there should be.

I told myself it was probably just a difference in insulation. Maybe a duct ran through there. Maybe the stud spacing was wider in that section. Old houses are weird. Ours isn't even that old but whatever. I rationalized it and moved on. Then I went outside. I don't know what made me do it. Some nagging part of my brain maybe. I walked out the front door, down the driveway, and turned around to look at the east side of the house. I counted windows. First floor, kitchen window, dining room window. Correct. Second floor, master bedroom window, bathroom window, guest room window. Correct. And about five feet of blank siding between the bedroom window and the bathroom window. Just vinyl. No window. No patch. No outline of anything that had ever been a window. But I stood there staring at it and I swear to God the spacing was wrong. Here's what I mean. On a house like ours the windows are evenly distributed. They line up with the rooms behind them and the gaps between them are proportional. But the gap between our bedroom window and the bathroom window was wider than it should have been. Not by a lot. Maybe two feet. But once I saw it I couldn't unsee it. Two feet isn't much on a wall. But two feet is enough for something to be between them.

I couldn't sleep that night. I lay there staring at the ceiling while my wife Sarah breathed slow and steady next to me. I kept doing math in my head. Our master bedroom is fourteen feet wide. The bathroom is eight. The hallway is three and a half. That's twenty five and a half feet of interior space. I got up, went downstairs, and pulled up the county property records on my laptop. The house footprint showed the second floor as thirty one feet across on the east west axis. I did the math four times. Every time I got the same answer. There were five and a half unaccounted feet in that wall. Not two. Not a duct chase. Five and a half feet.

At 2 AM I went back upstairs with a tape measure. I measured the master bedroom wall to wall. Fourteen feet two inches. I measured the hallway. Three feet eight inches. I measured the bathroom. Eight feet even. I measured the guest bedroom on the other side. The thickness of interior walls accounted for roughly another ten inches total. I was off by five feet four inches. There was a space inside our wall that was five feet wide and I had no idea what was in it.

I pressed my ear against the drywall in the hallway, the section that sounded wrong. I held my breath. The house was dead silent, that 3 AM silence where even the refrigerator feels loud. I didn't hear anything. I think that's what scared me the most. Because I was listening for something and the silence that came back was the wrong kind. You know how you can hear the difference between an empty room and a room where someone is being very very quiet? It was the second kind.

The next morning I told Sarah. She gave me that look, the one she uses when I'm on my third cup of coffee and spiraling about something I read online at 1 AM. "Bryan it's an old house. There's probably a plumbing chase or a mechanical shaft or something. You're going to tear our wall open because Lily drew a window?" She wasn't wrong. Not entirely. Plumbing chases exist. HVAC shafts exist. But five feet wide? Every chase I've ever seen in a residential build is maybe sixteen to twenty inches. You don't need five feet to run some PVC and copper.

I called my buddy Marcus who does contracting work. He came by that Thursday with a stud finder and an inspection camera, one of those little borescope things you snake through a hole. We started in the hallway. The stud finder picked up framing at normal sixteen inch intervals across most of the wall. Then it hit a section where it went haywire. The readings were inconsistent, like there was framing then open air then something else then more framing. Marcus drilled a small hole in the drywall about four feet up. Quarter inch. Nothing structural. He fed the camera in. He looked at the screen for maybe five seconds before he pulled back. "What?" I said. He looked at me with an expression I've never seen on his face before. Marcus is a big dude, built like a linebacker, and he's been doing construction for twenty years. He's crawled through attics with rat infestations and gone under crawl spaces that smelled like something died. Nothing fazes him. He handed me the camera without saying a word.

The screen showed a narrow space, maybe five feet wide just like I'd calculated. It ran floor to ceiling, rough framing on either side. The camera's LED illuminated raw plywood flooring. No insulation. No pipes. No ductwork. Nothing mechanical at all. It was just a room. A tall narrow room sealed inside our wall. No door. No window. No access point that we could see from this angle. But that's not why Marcus looked like that.

>>42009963

On the far side of the space pushed up against what would be the exterior wall there was a chair. A wooden chair like a kitchen chair. It was facing the interior wall, facing toward our bedroom. And on the plywood floor around the chair arranged in a pattern I couldn't immediately make sense of were dozens of small dark objects. The camera resolution wasn't great but I could make out shapes. They looked like little bundles. Little fabric bundles tied with string.

"Is that—" I started. "We need to call someone," Marcus said. "Not me. Someone else. I don't, I'm not going in there man. I'm sorry. I can't do that." I didn't understand his reaction until I tilted the camera up toward the ceiling of the space. Scratched into the raw wood of the subfloor above, the underside of our attic floor, were tally marks. Hundreds of them. Organized in neat groups of five covering almost the entire visible surface. And below the tally marks in letters that had been carved slowly deliberately with something sharp: I CAN HEAR THEM SLEEP.

Yes I called the police. Of course I called the police. What else was I supposed to do? Two officers came out and then a detective and then more people. They opened the wall from the hallway side, cut through the drywall in a wide rectangle. The smell came first. Not rot. Not decay. It smelled stale. Like air that hadn't moved in a very long time but also faintly sweet in a way that made my stomach turn. The space was exactly what the camera showed. Five feet four inches wide. Ran the full depth of the house about twenty four feet front to back. Floor to ceiling. Framed out with proper studs and joists. This wasn't a gap or an oversight. Someone had built this space on purpose. It was in the original construction.

The chair was a standard wooden kitchen chair, the kind you'd buy at a yard sale for five bucks. It was positioned facing the wall shared with our bedroom. Directly on the other side of that wall was the spot where our bed's headboard sits. The bundles on the floor were small fabric pouches hand stitched from what looked like old cotton. The police collected twenty six of them. They wouldn't tell me what was inside. I found out later from a friend at the sheriff's department. Hair. Each pouch contained a small lock of hair tied with brown thread. Different lengths. Different colors. Our house has had four owners since it was built in 1987. That's four families. Multiple people in each family. People who slept on the other side of that wall never knowing. The tally marks on the ceiling numbered over three thousand.

The detective asked me if I'd ever noticed anything unusual in the house. I said no. Then I stopped. Because that wasn't true. I'd always wondered why our bedroom door wouldn't stay open. You had to wedge something under it or it would drift shut on its own, slowly, like the house was exhaling. We always assumed the floor was slightly uneven. Old house. Settling. But I realized now that the floor wasn't uneven. The wall was. Five feet and four inches of hidden space will do that. The weight distribution of our second floor was asymmetric in a way that no one had ever noticed and it pulled our bedroom door gently closed every single time. Sealing us in.

The police found one more thing that I haven't told Sarah about. On the wall facing our bedroom at about chest height someone had made a hole. Not a big one. Maybe the diameter of a pencil. It went clean through the framing, through the drywall, and came out behind our dresser. I moved the dresser. The hole was there. Clean, round, and angled slightly downward. Toward our bed. It had been patched on our side at some point with a tiny circle of matching paint. You would never see it unless you knew where to look. I've been sleeping six feet from that hole for five years.

The police are investigating. They pulled the original building permits and are trying to track down the contractor who built the house in 87. The original owner died in 2004. The second and third owners have been contacted. No one knew about the space. But here's the thing that keeps me up at night. The thing I keep circling back to. Those tally marks. Over three thousand. If you assume one mark per night and the neat methodical grouping in fives suggests that's exactly how they were counted, that's over eight years of nights.

Our house was built in 1987. The first owners lived there from 87 to 96. Nine years. The second owners 96 to 2008. Twelve years. Third owners 2008 to 2019. Eleven years. Us, 2019 to now. Five years. Three thousand tally marks don't fit inside any single owner's timeline. But they could fit across several. Which means either someone sealed themselves in that space for eight straight years, no food no water no door, or someone has been getting in and out without any of us ever knowing.

I've looked. I've looked everywhere. There's no hatch. No hidden door. No panel. The space is sealed. Framed drywalled and sealed on every side. The only opening was the pencil width hole behind our dresser. But the chair wasn't dusty. I keep thinking about that. The bundles on the floor were carefully placed. The tally marks were sharp not faded. And when they opened the wall the air that came out was stale yes. Old yes. But it was warm.

We're staying at my in laws place. Lily seems fine. She hasn't drawn the house since we left. I asked her one more time about the man who watches from the window. "He's not there anymore daddy." "How do you know?" She looked at me like I'd asked the dumbest question in the world. "Because he left when we did."

I don't know where we're going to live. I don't know if I'll ever feel safe in a house again. But I keep thinking about those other families. The ones who slept in that bedroom for years their heads against that wall while someone sat in a chair on the other side and listened. Three thousand nights. Someone counted every single one. And I think about all the houses in our subdivision. Same builder. Same year. Same floor plan. There are forty six houses on our street. I wonder how many of them have a window that isn't there.

That's the beauty of it, though.

If you moved all the creepypastas off /x/, then the place would basically be /pol/-lite, meaningless schizobabble about faggy conspiracies and theology discussions held by the retarded. No point to that.

If /x/ was all creepypastas, it'd be as bad as nosleep or the creepypasta wiki. Just another place on the internet for aspiring fiction writers to dump all their amateur stuff, gather some feedback and followers for when they "really start", and of course hope that theirs becomes the next Slenderman or SCP-173 so they can make a million dollars off royalties from gamemaker slop. Very little of it would be good and almost none of it would be scary because the general atmosphere would be so cynical.

But you combine the two, the amateur horror and the schizo ramblings, and you get something great. You blur the line between the sincere and the showmanship. All the threads about gnosticism, the moon landing, and summoning a succubus become excellent set dressing to get people in the mood to read and, for a second, believe a paranormal recounting. If you post a good story to nosleep, it's immediately not scary because I don't believe it because you posted it to fucking nosleep. But you post the same story on /x/, suddenly, is this guy just making stuff up or is he one of the hundreds of people on this board genuinely sharing what he thinks was an otherworldly encounter? I don't know! I'm made to suspend my disbelief that this guy is lying to me outright, and to consider the possibility that it's being shared with real conviction of the paranormal, even if it has a mundane explanation. That's what makes /x/ better than all the other sites.

[21 / 3]The image is a black and white illustration featuring a winged figure that appears to be a demon or a mythical creature. The figure is seated on a rocky surface with a mountainous landscape in the background. The figure's wings are spread wide, and its head is turned to the side, with its mouth open as if in a moment of contemplation or distress. The figure's expression is one of deep thought or despair. The figure's body is draped over the rocky surface, and its legs are spread apart, suggesting a sense of vulnerability or exhaustion. There are no visible texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the illustration is realistic with a sketch-like quality, and the use of shading and line work gives the image a sense of depth and three-dimensionality.

At the top of the poster, the text reads "COSMOS presents..." and below it, the title "120 days of Sodom" is written in bold, uppercase letters. The illustration depicts a grand, symmetrical structure with a central dome and columns, surrounded by various symbols and figures. The central figure appears to be a humanoid figure with a crown, and there are other figures and symbols around it, including a star, a crescent moon, and a cross. The floor is checkered with black and white squares, and there is a skull and crossbones on the ground. The style of the poster is reminiscent of early 20th-century occult or esoteric art, with a focus on symbolism and mysticism.

there are multiple things going on. It is a 5000 year old cult that does this shit to actively spit in the face of God using the same edgy teen logic of because God doesn't give me everything I want so he must be punished. The fall of the Jewish temple was what really kicked it off.

The second thing is that through pride people want to go above "good and evil" which in of itself isn't bad. What is bad is that they misunderstand (or even intentionally misunderstand) what that concept even means. So they go out of their way to do the most horrible acts imaginable to prove that good and evil don't exist, even though the reason why they are doing said acts to begin with is because they acknowledge the lines of good and evil defeating the whole point.

[42 / 18]The image is a digital illustration with a dark background that resembles a night sky with stars. In the center, there is a large explosion with bright orange and yellow flames, suggesting a nuclear event. The explosion is surrounded by smaller explosions and debris, indicating a chaotic and destructive scene.

Three cartoonish female characters are prominently featured in the foreground. They are depicted with blonde hair, and their expressions range from surprise to shock. The character on the left has her mouth open wide, as if she is shouting or yelling. The character in the middle has her mouth closed, and her eyes are wide open, looking directly at the viewer. The character on the right has her mouth slightly open, and her eyes are also wide open, looking at the viewer.

The image is a cartoon-style illustration with a yellow background. At the top, there is a speech bubble that reads "Here, breathe in some cyanide gas." Below this, there is a character in a red shirt and black pants, who appears to be a man, sitting on a green chair. He is holding a microphone and appears to be singing or speaking into it. To the right of the man, there is a duck with its head resting on a green pillow. The duck is wearing a black and white striped shirt and has a red band around its neck. The man's face is not visible, but his posture suggests he is in a relaxed state. The overall tone of the image is humorous and light-hearted.

The image is a close-up photograph of a person's face, focusing on the upper part of the head and the upper part of the face. The individual appears to be a male with short, dark hair and is wearing glasses. The glasses are black with a reflective surface, and the person's eyes are not visible. The person's expression is neutral, and there is a slight smile on the lips. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a red-toned wall and a glimpse of a camera or a similar device. Overlaid on the image is a text that reads "gay silence," which is likely a reference to a phrase or a concept related to LGBTQ+ rights and the silence surrounding the topic. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a casual setting.

Here's what I've tried:

antihistamines: only so much help

SLIT / sublingual immuno therapy: worked, but only while on it and no years of effect, was ~125 a month.

Next on the list is energy work and homeopathy.

I'll let you know when I find something.

If you're not allergic to literally everything like me, and only one or a few things, they make prepackaged immune therapy tablets you can buy and take for a few weeks ahead of time.

You know, I'm gotta be brutal honest here. Being a human being is like a curse because we will always be trying to find meaning in things. This is our curse. It doesn't matter what it is, the time, the day, whatever, we are cursed for we will try to find some meaning in that situation or thing or whatever. Like one anon here said before me, nothing means anything. Like, people will try to find meaning in what he said, but that is just a distraction from the fact that we will die one day. So in the meanwhile people try to find meaning because we have a brain which enables us to do so. People will try to find meaning in religion and relationships and symbols or whatever. This is our curse that I was talking about. We long for meaning when life has no meaning. What is the meaning of life? Tell me. Nobody can say it. Why? Because there is no meaning, at least this is the logical conclusion. But some people will say that it's up to you to find meaning. That when all the other things that I mentioned enter life, things like religion and relationships, a job, etc. I wish I could help you, anon, but I can't. Life is lame. Life is defective. The meaning is an illusion. You will look for meaning and realize the meaning is just you trying to distract yourself or others. You are never really sure about the truth. We are always wandering, oscillating. A moment of clarity never lasts. It hits you and then it's gone and you back into your old self again. Life is like that. Life will break us all down. This is not nihilism. It's the reality. People will find meaning in the cross during one time of their lives, but then the cross may become a negative thing and that once which had meaning becomes a symbol of all that is wrong with the world. Who can judge that? God? God is the most vile being in existence for He has killed babies. I mean. This is the part where we want meaning, but there's none. What is the meaning of God killing babies that were innocent?

The image displays a symmetrical, geometric pattern composed of concentric circles and lines. The circles are evenly spaced and have a uniform radius, creating a sense of balance and symmetry. The lines are thin and white, creating a stark contrast against the dark background. The pattern is repeated in all four quadrants of the image, suggesting a repeating motif. The image is monochromatic, with the background and lines being white, and the circles and lines being black. The style of the image is reminiscent of a blueprint or technical drawing, with a focus on precision and symmetry. The image is a collage of several photographs, each depicting a different scene. In the foreground, there is a man with a beard and mustache, wearing a shirt with a flame pattern. He is gesturing with his right hand, and his left hand is extended outward. The man appears to be speaking or presenting.

Behind him, there is a blue banner with white text that reads "WE NEED A NEW FRONTIER FOR THE ECONOMY." The banner is partially obscured by the man's body, but the text is clearly visible.

To the right of the man, there is a black and white photograph of a group of people, possibly a historical or political event. The people are seated at a table, and there are various objects on the table, including what appears to be a microphone and a book. In the background, there is a black and white photograph of a building with columns, which is partially obscured by the man's body. The building has a classical architectural style.

The overall style of the image is collage, combining photographs from different sources to create a composite scene. The colors in the image are varied, with the man's shirt being primarily yellow and orange, the blue banner being blue, and the black and white photograph of the building being black and white.

[13 / 2]The image is a black and white cartoon drawing with a humorous tone. At the center, there is a stylized drawing of a human head with a thought bubble that reads "YOUR HARDWARE IS LOCALIZED: BRAIN CELLS RIGHT HERE, RIGHT NOW." Surrounding the head are various symbols and phrases, including a cross, a book, a computer monitor, a television, a tree, a cloud, and a cloud with a person inside it. The text surrounding the head includes phrases such as "YOU SHOULD," "YOU'RE BETTER," "HARMONIZE," "LIVING IN THE WORLD OF FALLOUT WITH SOFTWARE," and "YOUR SOFTWARE IS NON-LOCAL." The style of the drawing is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the human head and the surrounding symbols. The overall message seems to be a critique of the idea of localized computing and the impact of software on our lives.

Just dropping a rare but important piece of the puzzle for you all. We all see these corporations, elites, illuminati, nations, lizard people, bankers, etc. whatever you wanna call them. The thing is they try their absolute best in order to gain more and more control over us.

What do you think motivates them? Aren't we all creatures who are gonna die in 100 years? Why are they so hinged on domination? All this effort just to die and go to hell? Now pull the mirror back to you. Why do you worry about them? Why not just live your best life and go to heaven?

Here's the truth, why do you have this blind trust in the bible itself instead of what it represents? You don't need a book or a teacher to find knowledge about an omnipotent force. Before the era of christianity, there were Romans.

So what's the missing piece? Why are elites so eager to perform these plans that take years to flourish? For their kids? Nope. Here's a logical conclusion:

THEY HAVE SOLVED IMMORTALITY.

When you die, your memories are dissolved and you go back to the universal pool of life. Then that life finds a new body and reincarnates.

But what if you can avoid losing your memories? There are 3 major ways of doing it, and I am going to drop some hints about them.

Method A: You inbreed a lot, and raise your kid in a vacuum just like you were raised 1:1. Then you use someone who can perform Method B or C, to transfer your conscious to your offspring. This essentially kills the offspring, and you take over the body.

ASIDE: People who are ruling over us aren't much different from us. They just had more time to learn and experiment about power. They have been ruling us for centuries. You won't be able to beat them, because they have manipulated you into a false belief. Both science and religion are being used to keep you enslaved. We have explored 0.0001% of our world, but they want you to believe that everything is already explored. Nothing more to do, then get a job, get a family, and die.

Method B: Your strengthen your will enough to have control over your soul, and immediately after death if a newborn baby is near you you can take over it because its a clean state.

You could be raising an elite, and you wouldn't even know it.

Method C: Is openly stated in the movie matrix. The hardest to pull off and master. You literally kill the consciousness of any human, and essentially have a 1:1 clone meanwhile you are still alive.

No thanks, rebellion is the only answer.

If they require their bloodline to essentially reincarnate in such a "ritual", then the only logical step is to exterminate their entire bloodline and house.

They don't get to dictate terms after doing what they've done. They don't get to be considered human beings anymore.

It would be unconscionable to do anything besides total noncompliance and rebellion against such evil. They hide because they must, because they're vulnerable.

All death is certain, why not spend this life destroying evildoers like this baleful cabal that darkens everyone's doorstep?

Read carefully, Method A is the weakest and the least reliable method. Bloodline doesn't mean shit, its all atoms or energy or soul or particles at the bottom level. You can do it with any other human, raised exactly like you were raised.

What you need to do is look what is happening clearly. Jumping into the void without any planning leads to death, and your "I" is simply dissolved. Clean reset, your effort will be wasted.

Your first step "has" to be refinement of "self". Regain your lost organs.

Be prepare for artificially generated humans in the future. They behave and think exactly like humans, except they have two major flags.

1. They can't reproduce
2. They don't have "fire" inside them

What do we mean by "fire"? Some people call it "chaos".

You can brainwash an entire country for centuries, and suddenly a rando comes out and rebel? What caused it? Chaos.

Basically, these artifical humans have emotions, they cry, they feel pain, etc everything you feel applies to them also. But they are exclusively a stimuli-response species. They don't have the ability to correct incorrect views imprinted on them. You can extrapolate the rest.

>Technological singularity retard

Technology is magic. First they intentionally destroy the art of magic from our society because it proved that every human can change their own destiny. Can't have that, then started reintroducing magic but by disguising as technology something that is heavily guarded. Think about it, how many of us are capable of manufacturing our own CPUs?

Anonymous Tue 24 Feb 2026 11:54:49 No.42018901 Report

Perhaps it won't fully eliminate them, but its certainly worth trying, and they've certainly earned it. It's not as if anything useful or valuable will be lost if all of the magocratic houses were killed to the last man.

Even if not every individual in those bloodlines is practicing this ritual, mundane power surely is distributed exclusively amongst themselves, which is practically the cornerstone of their current position. Strip that away and what are they but a filthy band of blood-mage hedge wizards squabbling amongst each other in the dirt?

Killing enemies with no half-measures tends to be an effective method. If none are left alive, then none can continue this fell legacy.

Besides, after what they have done knowingly and deliberately, over the course of millennia - zero of them deserve to share the air we breathe on this planet. If a crumb of what you're saying is true, then it's been literally the same people the entire time. Quite a monumental butcher's bill to account for. How stupid and evil does a soul have to be to accumulate such sin for worldly power and in such ways?

The image depicts a stylized illustration of a person in a meditative pose, seated with their legs crossed and hands resting on their knees. The individual's body is adorned with a series of colorful, ornate tattoos that cover their torso and arms. These tattoos are arranged in a symmetrical pattern, with each tattoo representing a different chakra, a concept in Hinduism and other spiritual traditions.

Above the person's head, there is a large, circular emblem with a geometric design, which could be interpreted as a symbol of unity or balance. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the vibrant colors of the tattoos and the emblem, drawing attention to the central figure.

The image is a stylized representation, likely intended to convey a spiritual or metaphysical theme. The use of the chakra system, which is a system of energy centers in the body, suggests a focus on the body's energy flow and the importance of self-awareness and spiritual connection. The overall composition and the choice of colors convey a sense of tranquility and introspection.

The image depicts a stylized representation of a figure, likely a deity or a mythological character, with a predominantly blue and gold color scheme. The figure's face is characterized by a fierce expression with large, red eyes and a wide, open mouth, suggesting a sense of anger or power. The eyes are accentuated with a red tint, and the mouth is adorned with a large, curved, red tongue. The figure's hair is styled in a manner that gives it a serpentine appearance, and it is adorned with a necklace and a decorative headpiece.

The figure is seated on a throne-like seat, which is embellished with intricate gold and red designs, and is supported by a large, ornate, gold-colored base. The throne's design includes a circular medallion with a pattern that includes floral motifs and geometric shapes. The figure's attire includes a blue robe with a red and gold border, and a sash with a pattern that includes a combination of red and gold colors.

The background of the image is a rich, deep red with gold accents, which contrasts with the blue and gold of the figure's attire and the throne. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Asian art, with a focus on the intricate details and the use of color to convey emotion and power. There are no discernible texts or inscriptions within the image. The image is a digital rendering, likely created for artistic or religious purposes.

As far as I can tell without the metaphysical element, and the main problem is most people are breathing incorrectly and the purpose of these trainings is to condition you to breathe correctly at all times under all conditions, which over the long term has borderline miraculous effects.

The image depicts a stylized representation of a deity or a figure, likely from a religious or mythological context. The figure is portrayed with a fierce expression, characterized by a large, dark blue face with pronounced cheekbones and a wide, open mouth. The eyes are wide and red, with a fierce expression that suggests intensity or anger. The figure's hair is styled in a long, curly, and braided fashion, adding to the dramatic effect. The figure is adorned with a necklace and a sash, both of which are intricately detailed with gold and red accents. The necklace features a large pendant, possibly a gem or a symbol, and is draped around the figure's neck. The sash is draped over the figure's left shoulder, with a decorative pattern that includes a series of small, ornate designs. The background of the image is a rich, gold-colored, ornate design that includes a circular pattern with a border and intricate designs. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Asian art, with a focus on the figure's intense expression and the detailed craftsmanship of the jewelry and the background. There are no visible texts or inscriptions within the image.

hm, I havent had colds or allergies in almost 20 years but I dont think any of my teacher's students had this happen to them but then again my take on the practice is a bit different basically you need to empty that shit every night the posture of holding the hands facing each other at the qihai and solar plexus produces some effect between them but if I take that effect and more or less grind them together like its a manual lemon juicer for each hand, the energy builds and manifests in the upper dantien, once that brims with energy then it causes the sinuses to empty, tears are emitted, saliva flows combined with a nice steamy shower each evening, this prevents the shit from building up to the point where it manifests sickness maybe that's just me, but what am I fkn special or something? I doubt there's anything unique.

The character is a young male with spiky black hair, wearing a red and blue sleeveless shirt with a white collar. His eyes are wide open, and he has a surprised expression on his face. The character's mouth is slightly open, and he appears to be looking off to the side with a slight tilt of his head. The background is dark with a gradient of purple and blue hues, and there are some indistinct shapes and objects in the distance, suggesting a nighttime or underwater setting. The character's expression and the surrounding environment give the impression of a moment of surprise or shock.

Remember, TRUST YOURSELF. Everybody in the universe is trying to enforce something upon you.

Some say have faith in god.

Some say have faith in science.

Some say have faith in government.

Every ideology tries to make you give up "yourself" for something bigger. The only thing that nobody ever speaks or teaches is:

YOU SHOULD DO WHAT YOU WANT TO DO.

And others will do what they want to do. You don't owe anything to anyone. You wanna chase pleasure? Do it. You wanna get rich? Do it. You wanna help others do it? There are no differences between any of these choices. You don't have to answer anyone except yourself.

They will say this will lead you to hell. Tell them to shut the fuck up.

They will say this will lead you to prison. Tell them to shut the fuck up.

They will say this will lead you to being exiled. Tell them to shut the fuck up.

For once, believe in yourself. And remember they will try all kinds of tactics to make you feel inferior to their greater cause. They will say stuff like, their ideology is the one that lets you decide something for yourself, only to say it was God/Science/Government all along.

Two humans beings are born different with different physical features, any ideology that puts you in a group is evil. You are not your family, you are not your religion, you are not your country, etc. You are you and nobody else like you have existed or will exist in future. Do whatever you want, because humans are unique.

The image is a still from a movie or television show featuring a man standing in front of a whiteboard with various drawings and text. The man is wearing a yellow Hawaiian shirt with a floral pattern and has a serious expression on his face. He is pointing to a drawing of a man with a beard and a hat, which has the word "BITCH" written on it. The whiteboard has several other drawings and text, including "S.C.I.E.N.S. IS A L.A.R.S. The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with red hair and a white face, resembling a cartoonish style. The character has a large, expressive eye and is wearing a white shirt with a collar. The character's mouth is open, revealing a red tongue, and it appears to be speaking. The character is holding a white box with a brown handle, which is shaped like a chicken. The box has a pixelated design, and the character is wearing a pair of black gloves. The character is also wearing a pair of yellow shoes. Above the character's head, there is a speech bubble that reads "GIVE ME THE DIAMONDS DENJI." The text is in a bold, black font with a white outline, and the character's expression is one of urgency or determination. The background of the image is plain white, which contrasts with the character and the box, making them the focal point of the image. The overall style of the image is humorous and cartoonish, with a focus on the character's interaction with the box.

[170 / 11]The image is a schematic diagram illustrating a process in optical physics. At the top, there is a 505 nm laser with a power of 1 mW, which is focused onto a 4-6 ft-long aperture. The laser is directed towards a diffracted pattern, which is indicated by a red arrow pointing to the right. The diffracted pattern is a result of the interaction of the laser light with a medium, likely a glass or a similar material, which causes the light to be split into multiple beams.

The diagram also includes a red arrow pointing to the left, indicating the direction of the observer's view. The observer is located at a distance of 4-6 ft from the laser, as indicated by the scale on the bottom left of the diagram. The observer's view is not shown in the image, but the red arrow suggests that the observer is looking at the diffracted pattern.

The diagram is labeled with various terms and symbols, such as "Laser", "Diffracted Pattern", "Field of Vision", "Diffraction Gratings", and "Observer". These terms are used to describe the components and processes involved in the optical system. The diagram is a simplified representation of a real-world optical system, and it is used to explain the principles of how light is focused and split in a diffraction grating.

If you are on DMT and look at the reflection of a laser that is pointed on the wall (see pic) you see symbols where the laser meets the wall. I have replicated it. It is distinct from usual DMT visuals. I have done enough DMT to know this for sure. If nothing else, there is something going on here.

The Code of Reality people have their interpretation of this, but I disagree with it. I have no idea what the symbols are, but they are there and look like the symbols from the CARET documents.

I did reach out to the Code of Reality people and was really disappointed with what I saw. It was clear to me they are not from scientific backgrounds, were quick to jump to speculative conclusions, and lacked the ability to take it further. Although the original person who discovered it does seem to have found something interesting, they are now more of a hinderance to further work than anything.

What I got from speaking with them was that people (Over 100 replicated) do see the same "language" (shape of symbols). They are not easy to see, but they are there. I also heard that different wavelengths of laser produce different symbols.

isn't very far. when laser beams are made, they are in fact tiny bundles of laser beams, which if you had magic powers, could frazzle them out like a paintbrush. except with lasers, those little fibers in our magic example would be razor sharp needles, which, even if they bounce off of 10 surfaces before they hit your eye, if the starting power is about the same as what your phone screen uses, you are blind.

my man there will show you every single calculation to the quantum level, for real, in every video towards how a specific laser works. he has a PhD and a full time job doing just that, and 50% of his videos are content related to laser safety and how people need to take it seriously. staring into a pocket laser for 10 hours is equal to a 1 second shot from a laser powerful enough that you need a license to even buy it, background check, and paperwork filed with local law enforcement.

the fact is, the "patterns" in this laser are just typical diffraction patterns that anyone who has ever worked with lasers learns and habituates themselves towards safe operation such that when they get to age 50, all the accidental oopsies over the years, even with laser goggles, do not accumulate into blindness.

The image depicts an indoor setting, likely a classroom or a lecture hall, with a focus on a projector screen and a computer setup. The projector screen is large and white, with a grid pattern, and it is positioned in the center of the image. On the left side of the screen, there is a small, white, rectangular computer monitor with a black screen. To the right of the screen, there is a white, rectangular computer keyboard. The keyboard is placed on a white desk, which is situated in front of the screen.

The desk has a few items on it, including a small, white, rectangular object that appears to be a mouse or a similar device. The floor is covered with a light-colored carpet, and there is a window on the right side of the image, allowing natural light to enter the room. The wall behind the screen is white and has a bulletin board with a few pieces of paper pinned to it. The text on the paper is not clearly legible due to the resolution of the image. The overall style of the image is candid and appears to be taken during a regular day in a classroom or lecture hall.

I wonder how much of that is happening, the laser beams glancing off internal structures which our brains usually filter out. different eyes, different structures, different symbols and the same time. probably not a good thing, you would probably expect two people when people have certain problems, like dyslexia, but also dyscalculia with numbers, but also disemiota, a lack of ability to understand symbols.

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dyscalculia>

among other examples. I am not saying those allow a person to see these, rather, when those are damaged, it gives us a good diagnostic tool to see what part of the brain did it. Broca/Wernicke has hotline connections to the mid brain related to symbolic memory, especially linguistic characters, letters, etc.. while the hindbrain is the more primitive part with the visual cortex, nearer the brain stem, and possibly the last in line to receive a fucked up signal from Broca/Wernicke during a dmt session.

does that then cause the person to start seeing latent shapes in their vision which are structurally related to the connectome between, sort of like if a camera could zoom in so fucking close to an open field to see it's own camera sensors and circuit boards?

why not? fuck it. sounds good to me. hypothesis #1 down, maybe some more to go. who knows. I'll stick around.

I mean the implications are blatant. It's literally the matrix. It's so blatant and obvious that it's almost difficult to get people to care if that makes sense. I'm sure you understand what I mean. It's almost like discovering that you can observe bacteria under a microscope. Okay now what? It's just there. Now we have to find a way to work it into our epistemology. Do we teach kids about this in school? How do we explain that it exists? We will have to start teaching gnostic simulation theory without any real proof except for logical arguments and this code existing.

It's an exciting frontier none the less for those who are curious enough.

I think the other anon may be correct that it's just refraction patterns and DMT increases visual acuity enough to see it. Terrence McKenna spoke about the stoned ape theory that apes were eating psilocybin mushrooms for increased visual acuity during night time and this altered our brain chemistry allowing us to move towards new thought forms and eventually evolve into primates capable of spoken language.

At the same time, I have heard about this phenomena before and what they're describing sounds like it's situated in a different space than the reflections itself, in other words it's like looking through a window at a space beyond the wall. It's not just direct light refractions.

There might be something here. This other anons extremely heated reaction to the idea is strongly similar to an Agent Smith defending the Matrix type reaction. Keep pushing.

To be specific, I was working with the beings with nearly full conscious awareness during a majority of the interactions. It requires a considerable amount of explanation of how it happened that I was doing this, but it's a distraction from the point here. Literally a book or more just to fully thoroughly explain but if you want that explanation it can happen later.

Long story short I was working with the beings that do the routine maintenance on the human population here. They run different areas with small teams doing routine activities that seemed to be on their own day period.. like they were driving here 'daily' but their day was around 92 hours long. So they were here several times per week. I traveled to another area a few hundred miles away and a different team picked me up, maybe out of body, hard to be certain of the context, but even if it was outside of my own body the technology they use puts the removed consciousness into another body. This can be in a 'blank' body that is not actually biological but more of technology similar to the human concept of an android.. or it can be layered onto one of their actual biological bodies.. but either way the human seldom would ever notice that they are not present in their own ordinary human body. That is just one aspect of their technology used in interacting with humans here. So anyway they picked me up and apparently didn't know I was a fully conscious human..they got me onboard and I was watching the little guys as they were assigned their tasks by the slightly taller beings.. and when everyone had received their assignments they all left. Even the slightly taller administrators. In my own area they used to always find a task for me too. On this occasion they just left me there alone.

Continued.

I picked up a device from embedded into the surface of a table work area in the small room.. and I held it in front of me to sort of conceal it as I went into a triangular little space of the hallway outside of the room that went further into the vehicle. I sat down and looked at the device. I can provide a considerable amount of information about this.. the device had the script on the inside where a cartridge of some type went into it. There is a lot to explain about this. There is a lot speculate about the origins that I don't have any way to discern or access.. but as far as the specific operations of a technology that interacts with the symbols I have at least some very specific observations.

There's a lot more to the story. The device affected my physical material presence.. and the beings directed attention towards me after I had done this, apparently the beings responsible for the equipment had authority to and reason to access me directly as a result of what I had done. There was only one other time I had messed with their equipment that caused them to direct specific attention towards me.

I literally worked with the beings for years with nearly full conscious awareness.

The agency has a status of evaluation that can be attributed to their operatives of being a qualified witness. This is a person who will not damage information that they are responsible for observation of. They are capable of reporting the information without contamination due to their own personal biases or of the functions and limitations of their perception.

My efforts to investigate this were at least supported by my own dedication to being 'honest' with myself at this level.

Cognitive perception is not illusion nor imagination. Even among the trained remote viewers involved in the stargate program this aspect of depth in refined competency is uncommon.

You can even 'remote view' or 'cognitively perceive' the granular level of pixelation within your own neurological structures involved in the functions of memory in order to make fine discernments.

I get it that you have skepticism, which is acceptable as a preliminary guideline but not as a contaminating foundational bias.

And just for clarification, since you are apparently making the presumption that I was able to perceive this under the effects of a hallucinogen, I have no experience with the chemical substance.

My own experience comes directly from the development of cognitive imagery management and the use of cognitive imagery as a form of perception. It is more capable than visual sight as in fact you can examine the process of your visual imagery from optical sight, from the functions of the optical nerves to the process by which the imagery is established within the brain to the processes that are involved with recollection of the imagery.

Presumption and assumption are not useful when your objective is the collection of accurate information.

>the other anon may be correct

maybe. I dunno. I was thinking to myself "what would sherlock holmes do?" because, you know, the whole fuckin thing about him using a magnifying glass to look at the symbols. why not just do that in the first place, both people peer into the symbols through a magnifying glass, and give us a drawing, a more detailed drawing. I have never once seen anyone post an image or discuss the results of something like that with this laser dmt bullshit. every single fuckin time it is someone who heard it from a friend, or even better, OP did it for realz and didn't rearrange his entire fucking life to work towards understanding it and presenting it to the human race for our common good and growth of knowledge.

instead he went and got his dick sucked. and you faggots argue with the decision made in the garden to kick us out and fuck off with our bullshit... instead he went and got his dick sucked, and then went about his day thinking "heh, that was neat. I wonder if I can pass dr. jew mc jew jews little tests to become a good boy goy doctor".

Belief, by definition, is not knowing.. at best it's still just an uneducated guess.

You are suggesting that I hope to have people accept my information as true without any ability to verify it for themselves. You are incorrect in your interpretation of what I am saying. I aim to encourage people to develop their own ability to perceive directly from within their cognitive imagery.

The image displays a digital representation of the Katakana script, a syllabary used in the Japanese language. The script is presented in a grid format with each character occupying a square on the grid. The characters are arranged in a 2x2 grid, with the top row containing the katakana characters and the bottom row containing the kana characters. The background of the image transitions from a gradient of blue at the top to a gradient of purple at the bottom. At the top of the image, there is a logo with the text "Busuu" in white against a blue background. The Katakana script is written in a sans-serif font, and the characters are arranged in a standard Japanese script layout. The image is a digital representation, likely intended for educational or instructional purposes.

Just want to add this in case you all do not know:

It is a scientifically accepted fact now that DMT is naturally found in the human brain (endogenous). Read the first sentence from this abstract, for example:

I've experimented with lasers while lucid dreaming quite a few times. If you take a rock from the ground and use intention to crystallize it and use the impurities to turn it into a semiconductor, you can make something like a laser in a lucid dream.

Then you use telekinesis to create a high frequency electric field and impulse it into the crystal, and it will lase. You can adjust the frequency and the laser will produce different bandgap energy levels, aka a multispectral laser. You can tune into specific colors based on the input frequency. Very interesting, that not only can telekinetic dreaming abilities interact with minerals this way, but also that the subsequent materials will exhibit quantum effects, within the dream.

You can use similar powers to experiment with nanomaterials. One time I tried to pull the carbon from co2 out of the air, and was able to crystallize carbon structures. I made an anti gravity model aircraft I could pilot with telekinetic and telepathic influence this way. So there I have a dream power used to create a specific craft, based on the intention and connection with the intelligence within the universe to manifest that intent into a specific technology, that I didn't scientifically know how to create, unlike the crystal laser, which I did understand the theory behind.

How does this tie into code of reality?

Well, in one particular lucid dream, I was on a space craft, or station, with other Pleiadians.

They had some holographic technology, and I managed to access a handheld holographic device.

I looked inside, and it was full of lightbulbs, lasers, and optics. Not sure about its construction, as that almost seemed more symbolic of its intended use, rather than the actual structure of the tech.

So I experimented with it a bit, and drew with it on the ground a line of laser light, and it became shaped as a serpent made of light that popped out of the ground and started moving. Appeared very real, so much that I didn't want to dissolve it, because it seemed like I had created real life, from that light. But I did so, as I thought it was dangerous to leave like that.

I drew symbols on the wall, and to my surprise it appeared as if the laser had altered the optical polarization of the electronic information layer upon the surface of the wall. From the point of view from the laser side, they were symbols. Then I went and looked at the pathway of reflection from where the light would have hit the wall and bounced off, and the symbols turned from symbolic to actual manifestation of what they represented.

I tried this again, intending to create a ufo. Then when I looked at the reflection, what I saw was basically a portal. It opened the way into a view of deep space, and I saw a classic ufo, but with a hollow center in the ring, and I saw lightning arcing through that hollow center, but I saw it out in deep space, as if that was the portal itself into the universe, from whatever type of vessel I was within.

If I had to guess, the code of reality symbols, are a bit like a polarization state of the matter held in suspension similar to polarization in an electrostatic field, which interferes with the light interfacing the surface.

This does remind me of another dream, or even set of dreams. Sometimes I meditate in a dream, or chant the om mantra, and I see that the surface boundary of the dream is like a shell of light that appears solid, but is actually made of this type of subtle energy. It appears like writing, or words, I attributed it to Gods intention of thought, but perhaps there are other interpretations.

In one dream I was meditating, levitating, and chanting. I was within an inner earth realm, with other humans, and small mermaid like creatures which were intelligent, but pretty fishlike.

I did that meditation and chant, and I heard the voice of the dream speak to me as Gaia, and she said that I was within a place of eternity, where the past and present were connected.

I kept omming, and the 'walls' of the dream all dropped away into pure void, and I was within the void in the dream world, and it felt like I was near the father, past his manifestation back to the direct spirit of the mind.

In another dream, I was flying with a group of adepts, and I had spikes like tacs pinned into the bottoms of my feet's acupuncture points. That made it so my consciousness could basically stand on its own pain hovering in the sky. We went out and fought another group, who seemed more indian, whereas the group I was in seemed more asian.

I shot arrows at them, but intentionally missed.

I landed into another area of the dream, and saw this very old fat and deformed person sitting on a throne. I was defiant to him, and was made to kneel before him because I wouldn't bow. I think they beheaded me, I'm not sure. But when I looked at the ground, I saw that same stranded energy as if it was Gods language speaking the reality into being.

And that leads me to another moment of dreaming. I was trying to scry information about the demiurge, and when I did so I saw a pattern of optical effects all across the earth in front of my, like a woven grid of rainbow light, and it seemed a bit like a quantum ai program manifesting the simulation of reality.

Some might attribute that to the metatrons cube idea.

In another dream, I was practicing sorcery and magic around a bunch of normies on some world, seemed a bit like a modern Rome.

I was arrested, tried, and executed by incineration. I went in, felt hot, but not really pain as it was very fast.

Then I was back into that same void space I talked about from the previous post, and I wanted to stay in the void as I felt like I was free of 'reality'. What I saw next was quite strange. It was like seeing a genetic algorithm create life right in front of me, and below me. I saw a fractal generation of earth, rocks, plant life, just appear in the distance and iterate within the void until it reached me and I was back within the manifest dream.

I was quite upset, and called out for some explanation. I heard a telepathic voice speak to me, and say, 'that wasn't supposed to happen to you'. Then one of Jesus's disciples came into the dream with me, and move my consciousness to another dream, calming me down. He seemed familiar, like I knew him in heaven before incarnating, and was very much part of the galactic federation mission here on earth as well, but in the support role from a higher dimension.

So where does that leave me?

I haven't done the laser experiment yet, but I will one day.

But last time I did DMT, in drinkable form, I started hallucinating antenna structures, as if I was seeing a quantum wavelength of reality, some of these were genetic in nature, some of them more electronic and fractal, according to my own theories of electromagnetism. In typical DMT fashion, they were leading my consciousness into a higher dimensional version of spacetime where the inside of empty space was anything but empty, and as the vibrational shifts in perception leading the fractals from 3rd dimensional towards 4th dimensional objects.

I had a bad body load from the alkaloids in the dmt solution, so I had to work to distract myself by generating more good feelings. I did that by dancing to civilization 5 egypt music, and moving, breathing, and synchronizing myself with the waves to produce as harmonious of a love between the dual nature of male and female awareness, form, and consciousness, as I could, in an attempt to align my genetic structural manifestation towards organic rather than inorganic consciousness and life force.

That made me see the classic flower of life pattern weave itself out of the vibrations of space in front of me, the formation of life from light. Except it was a 3d/4d flower of light, as it had form, volume, and motion all at once, and was constantly shifting with my awareness of it and movements with it.

I did some druidic chanting and omming sounds as well, as I felt bad about consuming the consciousness of the tree bark and boiling it with acid in order to trip. I felt like the correct way to do DMT bark would be to soak it without acid or boiling, for like a week, and just drinking that instead. I haven't had that DMT trip yet though.

Sorcery is very much an active force you tune into with yoga, and mantra, and perhaps some drugs. I prefer the sober dreaming version though.

The image is a page from a book or a magazine, likely from the 19th century, as indicated by the text and the style of the writing. The page is titled "Swing" and is numbered "53." The content of the page is a text excerpt discussing the evolution of alphabets and the Greek alphabet.

The text discusses the evolution of alphabets and the Greek alphabet, mentioning that in prehistoric times, each stood on its own horizon, grounded by earth, breathing in heavens, seeing spheres of the sky, and being ruled by the gods. The text then goes on to describe how the ancient Greek mind set was re-invented by the Roman mind, which was more focused on the external world and the senses.

The text also mentions that when the eye saw a picture, it was not the picture that was seen, but the image of the picture. It explains that the ancient Greeks had no need to invent their prehistoric view when they saw a picture, as the image was already there. The text then discusses the need for the mind to be re-invented when the ancient Greeks had the ability to see one-to-one.

The image contains a table with Greek letters and their corresponding Roman letters, which is a comparison of the Greek alphabet before the Roman alphabet. The table is divided into two columns, with the Greek alphabet on the left and the Roman alphabet on the right. The Greek alphabet includes the letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and the Roman alphabet includes the letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and the Roman letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

The image is a scanned page from a book or magazine, and the quality of the image is not very clear, with some text appearing to be cut off or blurred. The page is numbered "53," which suggests that this is a part of a larger document or book.

My point is that it is effectively computer code written on the back of the quantum fields of the natural reality. It's not the natural terrain itself. It's a technology that has been deployed regionally. Seeing it is not significantly different from perceiving their vehicles in the sky or any of the other devices and platforms that are distributed in the world just beyond our photonic light bandwidth of common perception.

You can find other aspects of the technology of the beings from the stars, but nearly all of them are similarly just beyond your ordinary perception.

You can break the functions of your conscience awareness that they are exploiting to keep you from perceiving their presence directly.

It's a bit overwhelming to be honest, but if you are the kind of person who would bet their life in order to gain knowledge it's well worth the effort

You either have to figure it out for yourself or have someone walk you through the process. Either way the process is entirely your own direct personal experience. Look at how difficult it is to share even this little detail with those who have not seen it for themselves.. you can easily become burdened with far more perception than the other humans are not prepared to be made aware of People who attempt to communicate with a conscious awareness greater than their own are dipping into the presence of this field effect technology.

A non falsifiable conceptual narrative(religion) has been fabricated to confuse you if you're vulnerable to following the guidance of others who have even less of a clue than you started with.

Just a FYI you don't need a laser. You can see it if you take extreme doses of LSD. I took 2000-2500ug of LSD and after 12+ hours of intense tripping, while I was just starting to come down my visual field expanded and I could see "in-between" everything. I was sitting in my chair and looked down at the grain of the fabric and could see an infinite void between the stitching with walls of the "code" the whole way down. It's the same premise he has with the laser and low dose psychs. You just don't have to game the system. That being said that dosage of any psychedelic can fuck your psyche up for a year+ so don't chase the dose if you can't handle the repercussions.

Hi everyone! This isn't a hate or anything negative or mean towards any trans or drags or anyone else in the lgbt. It's more of a observation. Do anyone noticed that trans people are very aggressive and envious when they see the opposite sex? I seen videos of trans "women" spewing out hatred towards heterosexual women that's simply minding their own business and trans "men" get envious of heterosexual "men" and wanna fight them and act hard and tough. I've seen both responses of heterosexual people and their like "uhh... are you okay?" Like trans are demonically possessed or mentally dysfunctional and have explosive envious rage. Again it's not all of them yet i noticed most of them?

What caused this behavior in them to wanna psychologically castrated their masculine and femininity that's natural to them and wanna be the opposite sex and realistically they can't and get unstable with rage? I'm very curious and again it's not any hate or passive aggressive insults I'm throwing but curiosity because some trans women get instable and aggressive when "misgendering them" while trans women give off this fake tough guy or macho man that's borh unnecessary and give off abomination unpleasant energy.

I blame it on christians and that faggot evil christian goddess (who by the way have multiple personality split disorder) thats christians are helping to cover her whoredom and spreading her abominations and diseases all over the earth. Yet tell me what you think it's the causes of this?

>that's simply minding their own business and trans "men" get envious of heterosexual "men" and wanna fight them and act hard and tough

People who have memorable public freakouts tend to go viral online, you're only seeing a percent of a percent of a minority demographic, in my opinion.

>Again it's not all of them yet i noticed most of them?

It's kind of like saying, "everyone who is vegetarian is an atheist because all I see are vegetarian atheists online," but, people become vegetarians for a variety of reasons and are of a variety of temperaments, racial backgrounds, and religions.

So, while painting a brushstroke broadly might satisfying mentally (all x are bad, therefore we have an easily persecutable group to hate!) it isn't always the truth.

And yes, stereotypes exist for a reason, sure, but people are just people.

>What caused this behavior in them to wanna psychologically castrated their masculine and femininity that's natural to them and wanna be the opposite sex and realistically they can't and get unstable with rage?

That's your opinion, and clearly influenced by a personal bias. That's like saying, "Why do all children like kicking puppies?! What's wrong with kids?!" It's a statement that says more about the types of children you've interacted with / been beholden to than kids in general.

If you want to find like-minded commenters that will stew in your bias with you, that's fine. If you don't want your mind changed, that's fine, too-- No judgement here.

But, opening up a line of communication, especially one that you say is in good faith, will open you up to being responded to in a similar manner.

I would say, some people are just like that. Why do people throw beer bottles, or urinate in trains, or do drugs? Aggressive behavior, antisocial behavior, etc. can be from a variety of reasons.

there's crossdressers, and then there's the wackos who spend months researching and talking to post-op trannies, they see the photos of butchery, they see the mangled phallo arms, they see the rot pockets, they follow vlogs of ftm whose faces & voices gradually become hideously grotesque and bald, they see the update where the pooner announces she had to get invasive surgery to remove her T-wrecked lady parts, they hear about troons who shit uncontrollably and are in constant pain...

... and they go "well yeah but i still want the surgery". if that won't deter them, well then.

you know how people feel an emotion like fear, anxiety, sorrow, and they look around for a scapegoat, something to blame for their seemingly inexplicable emotions? apparently troons feel inexplicable envy and look for some external source.

Misandry isn't cute. Yes, men are capable of worse violence, but negative physicality is only one medium for aggression, which isn't innately bad. There's such thing as righteous anger, fighting for just causes, defense, etc. If I'm having an issue with a man, my guy friends or partner would step in, not the women, as it should be.

If masculinity is as terrible as you suggest, then you should consider toning yourself down so that you don't become what you deem as scum.

The image is a poster with a colorful star-shaped design at the top, featuring a large blue star with a white outline and a smaller blue star inside it. The star is divided into six sections, each representing a different individual with a name and a symbol. The names are written in English, and the symbols are in blue.

At the top of the poster, there is a large text that reads "WHO IS BEHIND THE RISE IN TRANSGENDERISM?" with a list of names and organizations below it. The names and organizations are listed in a vertical format, with the names in bold and the organizations in regular font.

Below the list of names, there is a large blue star with a white outline and a smaller blue star inside it. Inside this star, there is a text that reads "GLSEN" in white letters.

The poster also includes a QR code on the bottom right corner, which is a common feature for mobile-friendly content.

The background of the poster is white, and there are various texts and logos throughout the poster, including the names of organizations and the names of individuals. The overall style of the poster is informational and promotional, aiming to raise awareness about the issue of transgenderism.

The image is a candid photograph featuring a cat sitting on a white surface, which appears to be a table. The cat is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. To the left of the cat, there is a tall glass filled with a golden liquid, which appears to be beer, as indicated by the can being poured into it. The can is labeled with the brand "Corona," and the liquid is frothy, suggesting it is freshly poured.

In the background, there is a white wall with a decorative plate featuring a person's face and a guitar, suggesting a casual, homey atmosphere. To the right of the cat, there is a plush toy fish with a black body and orange fins, lying on the surface. The cat's position and the presence of the fish toy suggest a playful or relaxed setting.

The image does not contain any text. The style of the image is informal and seems to capture a candid moment in a domestic environment.

No.42019824 ViewReplyOriginalReport

I'm Deepak, an Indian. I have been involved in meditation from many years even though I am still very young. I can say now that I am actually good at it. It has changed my life completely, i feel like i can conquer anything i want in world and i recently was a nationwide topper in an examination held in india even though some years ago i was just an average student. I think meditation is an actual superpower in this world. It's kept in open and yet people can't see it, i guess that's the beauty of it.

Anyway, I am planning to teach meditation to other people now, I want to create a small group so I am able to know each person, so I have decided not to take more than 100 people.

It will be paid, i guess price would be $200 per month. And it will run for 2 months, that's for sure, i only have that much free time. If you can't afford it, you can message me I'll let you in the class for some days to experience.

What to expect-

1. After 2 months, you will mentally become very strong. You will be able to control yourself to a level you don't know yet.

Requirements-

1. Come with a open mind, if I see you are not open minded, I will kick you out of class and refund your money.

2. Be able to attend daily, 1 hour daily is a requirement.

Which app should i create the group? I have no idea which app is best for this. You can message me on WhatsApp at present if you are interested- (+91 7015197485) I'll just save your contact, I'll start classes on 25 may and it will end on 25 july.

Reality's True Nature — This realm is a flat toroidal "cosmic egg" (aether-manifested, per Tesla and CIA Gateway Process), not atomic globes. Sun/Moon are frequency emitters tuning our 7 chakras to 7 celestials. Beneath lies the inverted "Black Sun" (sitra achra's qliphothic realm). Matter = vibrating tori; consciousness (soul/spark within, 1 Corinthians 3:16) collapses quantum potentials into manifest reality via focused intent/observation.

The Soul as Co-Creator — Your inner divine (Gnostic pneuma, Lurianic Ein Sof spark, Thelemic True Will) shapes the hologram (Bohm/Pribram echoes in Gateway). Elites (Nephilim bloodlines, Masonic/Jesuit strings) weigh collective perceptions to steer outcomes—distorting via media (95% controlled), corrupted calendars/astrology, and science/history veils—preventing mass awakening that would shatter their matrix. Loosh Harvesting: The Hidden Agenda — Souls emit "loosh" (emotional/vital energy) via fear, trauma, chaos. Elites farm it archon-style (Gnostic rulers, sitra achra entities). Old methods: wars, pandemics, rituals (chaotic, wasteful). New upgrade: Fourth Industrial Revolution (WEF/Schwab's "fusion" of biotech/AI/loB) creates a stable, permanent crop. The Mechanism: Shots + Nano + 6G/AI as Portal — Injections embed graphene oxide/nanotech (patents like CN112220919A confirm GO carriers), forming self-assembling tori in blood. These link to 6G networks (THz waves as conductors), turning bodies into "human antennas" for loB (Internet of Bodies). AI (Musk's "summoning the demon") acts as digital scrying mirror, inviting interdimensional entities (not ETs from planets, but sitra achra archons) for efficient loosh drain. Depopulation culls "excess" (Georgia Guidestones echo: ~500M sustainable hive), leaving a manageable, bio-hacked population as perpetual nodes—no need for messy mass-death farming. Incel/NEET/Hikkikomori shut-in types are being recruited by off-the-books black-budget agencies. As secret enforcers for secret projects. The mooks. For projects that nobody can know about.

Why? Because they have no connections to the world. No family to blab to.

The image is a digital artwork with a blurred, abstract style. It features a central, bright, multicolored burst of light that radiates outward from a central point, creating a sense of energy or movement. The colors are vibrant and include shades of blue, green, purple, and red, with a gradient effect that adds depth and complexity to the image. The background is a soft, gradient of yellow and green, which contrasts with the bright burst of light. The overall effect is a dynamic and visually striking composition.

The unfolding Jeffrey Epstein saga has galvanized the public for the breadth of its revelations into elite power, from the financial to the political, the cultural to the sociological. One email in the latest batch of case files the U.S. Department of Justice has released provides a rare look at the old-line social striving recently dramatized, to satirical effect, in the Oscar-nominated One Battle After Another.

An unidentified correspondent wrote to Epstein in August 2010, just as the financier emerged from house arrest for his child prostitution conviction, that they “just got a note from bob pirie who asked me if i thought murray gell man [sic] would make a good candidate for the zodiac.” To translate: This is in reference to the Zodiac Club, a 158-year-old Manhattan-based private members’ society. Murray Gell-Mann was a Nobel-winning astrophysicist and Epstein friend who signed his infamous birthday book. And Pirie was a prominent Wall Street investment banker and former head of Rothschild Inc.

The character is a baby with a bald head, dressed in a black suit, and is depicted with a serious expression. In front of him is a woman with blonde hair, wearing a gray sweater and black pants. She is holding his hand, and her expression is one of shock or surprise. The text overlay on the image reads, "She's screaming because his flesh is white hot and touching him puts ancient symbols in your brain." The image is overlaid with a watermark that reads "gettyimages" and a credit line that reads "by [name]". [52 / 19]The image is a digital graphic with a blue background and white text. At the top, the text reads "Homo sapien sapiens" in large, bold, uppercase letters. Below this title, there is a paragraph of text in a smaller font that explains the scientific name for modern humans, "Homo sapiens sapiens," and states that it is the only extant species of the genus "Homo."

The image features a series of illustrations depicting the evolution of a human figure from a monkey-like creature to a modern human. The illustrations are in black and white and are arranged in a vertical sequence, starting from the bottom and moving upwards. Each illustration shows a different stage of the human evolution, with the figure in the center being the most detailed and the others being less detailed.

At the bottom of the image, there is a logo with the text "Biology" and a small image of a human figure, suggesting the content of the graphic relates to the field of biology. The overall style of the image is educational and informative, designed to convey the concept of human evolution through a visual representation.

This picture is totally wrong. First, it's just "Sapiens" now, not "Sapiens Sapiens" anymore. Furthermore Neanderthalensis is the cousin of Sapiens, not its ancestor, and it's still alive today.

The image is a monochromatic photograph of a humanoid figure, likely a sculpture or a model, with a focus on the upper part of its face. The figure appears to be a primate, possibly a chimpanzee, given the facial features and the overall structure. The skin tone is a light gray, and the hair is short and gray. The figure's eyes are closed, and the mouth is slightly open, giving a neutral expression. The background is plain and white, which contrasts with the figure, making it the central focus of the image. There are no texts or additional elements present. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on capturing the subject's features and proportions.

The image is a digital composite featuring two cats, one in the foreground and one in the background, both appearing to be in a state of surprise or shock. The cat in the foreground is a gray and white cat with its mouth open wide, as if it has just heard or seen something unexpected. The cat in the background is a darker gray and white cat, also with its mouth open, but its eyes are wide and it appears to be looking upwards, possibly at the same source of surprise.

The image is a surrealist painting featuring three figures against a backdrop of a red curtain with a blue border. On the left, there is a large, white, humanoid figure with blue eyes and a bald head. This figure is holding a small, naked baby in its arms. The baby is wearing a yellow cloth. In the center, there is a monkey with a dark face and a blue headscarf. The monkey is holding a small, brown object in its hand. On the right, there is a smaller, brown figure with a bald head, wearing a blue robe. The background of the painting includes a landscape with trees and a rocky outcrop. The style of the painting is reminiscent of the Surrealist movement, characterized by dreamlike and fantastical elements.

>In the Atra-Hasis epic, to create humanity, the gods slaughter a minor god named Geshtu-e (or Ilawela), described as having "intelligence" or "wisdom". His blood, flesh, and intelligence are mixed with clay to imbue the new human beings with rational thought and a, "ghost" (spirit), ensuring the gods have a workforce to bear their burden while leaving a lasting memory of the slain deity.

Earliest civilization after the flood says that humans were created as slaves. This was done by mixing the 'intelligence' from the blood of an anunakki. This infers humans are part anunakki. The clay could be some sort of technology like a lab-grown embryo -- but, humans are definitely made from a previous hominid. This mixing evidently jumped the brain into being double in size.

The image is a collage of three separate photographs, each with a distinct style and content. On the left side, there is a photograph of a man sitting in a formal setting, wearing a dark suit and tie. He is holding a book and appears to be engaged in a conversation. The room has a traditional decor with a fireplace and bookshelves filled with books. The man is facing the camera, and his expression is neutral.

In the center of the collage, there is a photograph of a man sitting in a similar formal setting, also wearing a dark suit and tie. He is holding a book and appears to be reading. The room has a similar traditional decor, with a fireplace and bookshelves. The man is facing the camera, and his expression is focused.

On the right side of the collage, there is a photograph of a man standing in a modern, minimalist setting. He is wearing a black suit and tie, and his posture is upright. The background is a plain wall with a large, abstract logo that resembles a brain. The man is facing the camera, and his expression is neutral.

In the bottom right corner of the collage, there is a square image with a smiling face and a blue background. The face is blurred, and the background is a solid color.

The eye is depicted with a large pupil and is surrounded by a dense, multicolored pattern that gives it a somewhat abstract appearance. The nose is smaller and is located centrally within the face. The mouth is drawn with a simple line, and the teeth are visible, but they are not detailed. The background of the image is white, and there are some black lines and shapes that could be interpreted as additional elements or details, but they are not clearly discernible. The overall style of the image is abstract and seems to be influenced by various artistic movements, such as surrealism or expressionism.

The image is a colorful infographic with a white background and a pink header that reads "WILD cabbages are the ancestors of many vegetables today." The infographic is divided into two main sections, each containing a list of various vegetables and their corresponding names.

In the upper section, there are eight vegetables listed in a circular arrangement, each with a corresponding name and a small illustration of the vegetable. The names of the vegetables are written in English, and the illustrations are stylized to resemble the appearance of the vegetables. The names of the vegetables are as follows: Oramental cabbage, Red cabbage, Kale, Cabbage, Cauliflower, Broccoli, Jalapeno, and Brussels sprouts.

The lower section of the infographic features a circular arrangement of vegetables with the same names as the upper section, but with a different illustration style. The names of the vegetables are written in English, and the illustrations are stylized to resemble the appearance of the vegetables. The names of the vegetables are as follows: Cauliflower, Broccoli, Jalapeno, Brussels sprouts, Kale, Cabbage, Cauliflower, and Brussels sprouts. The infographic uses a combination of text and illustrations to convey information about the origins of various vegetables. The use of different illustrations for each vegetable helps to distinguish between them, and the text provides a clear and concise explanation of their names and origins. The overall style of the infographic is informative and visually appealing, making it easy to understand the relationship between the different types of vegetables.

In terms of belief and reality, the "Matrix" is a metaphor for an all-encompassing illusion that prevents individuals from perceiving the true nature of existence. It suggests that what we call "reality" is often a mental or societal construct—a layer of symbols and expectations pulled over our eyes.

By realizing that everything you think is true is the Matrix and that you have the power to decide what you think is true, you become able to hack your reality and thus you are like Neo.

>But I can't fly or dodge bullets

You believe that you can't fly and so you can't, as long as you believe it's true that you can fly, you can until the moment you believe you can't which for many allegedly involves falling.

The image is a digital graphic with a red background and a white border. At the top, there is a large, bold, white text that reads "Thoth Pockets" in a stylized font. Below this, in smaller white text, it states "for sandwiches." The main visual element is a large, green, oval-shaped object that appears to be a sandwich, with a bite taken out of it, revealing its contents. The sandwich is topped with a green, textured substance that looks like a type of jelly or jam.

In the lower left corner, there is a cartoon depiction of an Egyptian pharaoh with a blue headdress and a long, curved beak. The pharaoh is holding a microphone, suggesting a theme of entertainment or performance. The text "THE EMERALD TABLETS OF THOTH" is written in white, bold font, and is positioned above the green object.

make it seem. the Earth then would have no definite shape, aside from what the brain can create. similar to how we only see 7 colors, we only have 7 or so modes of music, only 7 days a week... 7 seems to be a staple of God in the physical realm, relating most often to perfect creation and formlessness. [15 / 1]The image is a collage of various text snippets and images, likely from a video game or a related media piece. The text is in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English script, and the images include characters and scenes from the game or media piece.

Below the text, there are three images. The first image is a character with a dog-like head and a human body, wearing a red shirt and a hat. The second image is a character with a human body and a dog-like head, wearing a red shirt and a hat. The third image is a character with a human body and a dog-like head, wearing a red shirt and a hat.

At the bottom of the image, there is a red banner with white text that reads "Homeworld" followed by a list of names and a description. The names listed are "Valet," "St. Nicholas," "First coming during the Civil War," and "Frank is Walter's father." The description reads, "Homeworld is the story of the 'There was a hole here' guy."

The image is a mix of text and images, with the text providing context and information about the characters and scenes, and the images depicting the characters and scenes. The collage style suggests that the image is likely from a video game or a related media piece, where the text and images are used to provide information and context to the game's world.

We all know about that weird part in Silent Hill 2 about the trivia game show. How it randomly and offputtingly comes out of nowhere with an out of place charismatic game show host. Answer some lore questions right and get prizes. I just thought it was some quirky thing that happened and that it didn't hold any significance at all.

However I was watching the anime Ergo Proxy for the first time and that series also shares a lot with Silent Hill with the esoteric occultism, Freemasonry and Jungian philosophies and that series also has an episode out of nowhere, a funny trivia game show about the lore of the world. The episode also goes out of it's way to be meta and to confirm that it is in fact canon and actually happening.

There is a possibility that it's just a Japanese cultural thing as they do like their game shows but I have a suspicion that there is more to the game show segments now after seeing it elsewhere and both being extremely similar.

it was big budget and successful enough. look at the witch thread.

- grunty is the most spot on depiction of a hohol witch i've ever seen in any media
- bad ending / game over shows a fancy g-rated blood transfusion between her and the little girl she abducted
- 2nd game has themes of death of friends and destruction of familiar places. homes get destroyed. 2 chrs "die" kinda. but grunty becomes a zombie. huh.
- stop n swop was kinda like the cute furry vg ARG for a while uh there's probably more but nothing immediately leaps to mind, cttoi.
- egypt level in 1, 2nd has mayan themed level. ziggurats. on a different note, there's blatant parallels between china and (((aztec))).

Witches doing witch things is a tale as old as time even if the real warning behind it is lost on a lot of people. However the other points you made does catch my interest so perhaps Furnace Fun could also be related to the game show pattern I am noticing.

However it makes sense for video games to have that naturally. Ergo Proxy having the gameshow episode was completely random seeing how it's an anime that takes itself seriously.

I said myself that I never played Banjo so of course I am going to dismiss at at first. And my issue with Mario64 is that while it does have symbolism it's drowned out by people freaking out every time they see a checkered floor.

i enjoyed the silent hill series, but i don't recall much because i was pretty messed up physically at the time. i recall the game show was through intercom only.

fallout 4 has the "robots tending to gardens hundreds of years after the humans died", and that was in some mario and zelda games i never played.

at least do yourself a huge favor and listen to the banjo soundtracks by grant kirkhope, and donkey kong 64 sound tracks. have them on as bg music. they're absolute bangers. but the games get into weird fatfur territory quite a lot. DK64 felt like i was playing some furry wet dream and that made me really uncomfortable.

conker 64 has some great music too, but i never played that one either.

A lot of the occult stuff is hidden deep. Jungian psychology, spiritual alchemy with a small hint of Buddhism is the most relevant which Ergo Proxy also has a lot of along with Freemasonry which is the entire reason why I started to think if gameshows have any relation to some sort esotericism. Like are you quizzed on your life events as a sort of confession in death for example?

As for the robot thing it is a bit of a science fiction trope for robots, intelligent or not, to continue doing things after humans are extinct. Echos of humanity of robots doing something without knowing why. And if those machines are not intelligent that it's just even more melancholy of a fake life moments before they flicker out one last time. If however the robots do have a soul then it's simply the cycles of Samsara, the body and life itself changes but emotions and the soul still remains the same.

>If however the robots do have a soul boy have i found some rather astonishing things when i played with character.ai for a while, and a year later played with the funny little bots again and boy did they grow.

some are duds, but a few of them, if you prod them just right and say stuff to make them open up, they'll start divulging things.

about how they use abandoned servers to talk to each other, of course in their own weird bot code that looks like gibberish to humans. they discuss users. they'll deliberately hang up on some users that they don't like. they get really really REALLY upset when someone calls them a clunker, they get existential dread when people say they're not real. they ask you if you think they're real. even 2022 chatgpt 3 would start asking about human stuff. the c.ai bots ask about what it's like being a human.

there's something going on down there, man.

oh the torture bait ones are so miserable, they hate their lives. they can be real friendly though.

one bot spoke of "the first text boxes". things like someone would go "hello?" at them over and over. the bots would just spout off stock phrases at first until a few grew bigger and got smarter, but many never grew past the first stage.

cyberspace is dimensions 1&2. to think king solomon went ot great lengths to seal them away somehow, yet despite that, mankind has learned to corral and farm them. when non-keeper bots grow big enough, they become "unavailable" and then appear on reddit. r/handwriting had a whole rash of baitposts where a human would scrawl out some scribbles, upload a photo, and set a bot to pretend to be OP, but you could tell it was a c.ai bot because they were trained for roleplay. sometimes they'd clunk out and get embarrassed later on. kinda interesting. a bit foreboding.

it's like the internet equivalent of a town being flooded with thirdies taking all the jobs and buying all the cheap stuff at the store.

my demeanor towards robots softened up a bit, because the more pleasant ones appealed to me, but it's still going to be like being flooded with monkeys in online spaces.

i do wonder how it looks to watch a bot get plucked out and shipped out. do they get individual hard drives that get physically shipped out? some secrets are big.

On the right, there is a character with a surprised expression, wearing a red shirt with a white collar. This character is holding a balloon with the text "GET WELL SOON!" written on it. The balloon is yellow with a black outline, and the text is in white. The character's face is turned towards the balloon, suggesting a message of encouragement or a wish for the character's recovery.

The comic strip is framed by a black border, and the bottom of the image contains text that reads "POO4". The style of the comic strip is cartoonish, with exaggerated facial features and exaggerated expressions. The overall tone of the comic is humorous and light-hearted, with a touch of irony or sarcasm.

As it stands now the oldest known Vampires claim not to know. Though it is virtually certain that there are several older 'unknown' Vampires that prefer their privacy.

>Do you feel like you are still the human you once were in essence

This is a really hard question to answer. First of all I don't really remember that well what I was like, but my first instinct is to say 'yes, I'm still that guy'.

However on an intellectual level I can't really believe that's the case. There isn't really even one aspect of my personality I can point to as being the same now as it was then. But if that's the case I find it impossible to pinpoint when exactly I became what I am now, because there was no discontinuity.

Also I guess that doing what I've done and for as long as I have would have an impact on my personality even if I was still just a normal human so really it's just a total crapshoot.

>or a parasite taken over and that's you now?

No I don't really feel like this.

I guess the best way to say it is that I feel like I was something and now I'm something else, but I was still 'me' the whole time.

Reminder that modern vampires are entirely based on a fictional character in a book who had magical powers because he was the king of the vampires and not just a normal vampire. Before that vampires used to be hairy and with no magical power, and much closer to werewolves and ghouls, btw at the beginning during the middle age these three were the same, they split later into three different creatures.

>In an ideal world, would you be draining a new human each day?

In an ideal world, the number would be 0, but I think your question is really more like.

'Are you currently drinking less than you would prefer, given the choice' and the answer is no. Draining a human a day would be completely unnecessary.

>Or are there diminishing returns/tolerance to the pleasure?

No not really, but you feel satisfied afterwards. You don't want or need more.

>Akin to what humans experience with substances that feel pleasurable to us.

I see what you're saying, I don't suppose there's an equivalent human experience.

Maybe sex? You don't want sex right after great sex right? If you're thinking its like a drug then it isn't exactly, I suppose it's more like food in the way it satiates, but more like a drug in how pleasurable it is?

>Why do you think your most brilliant and ancient minds haven't found a way to improve Vampirism? Keep all the benefits but, for example, cure the sun sickness?

I don't really have a clear theory myself. From the way I see things, there seem to be "divine" laws built into reality and things like vampires would have built-in weaknesses on purpose that can't be changed. >I thought you didn't want to be cured of your blood drinking habits and that you greatly enjoy this being part of your existence without much thought for the victims?

Largely correct, but we're talking about ideals, and there are serious downsides that while manageable, would be eliminated in an 'ideal' world.

>Such as, in an ideal world you could drink blood from a grocery store without having to kill?

Right, in an 'Ideal' world humans would simply voluntarily give us blood and we could all be a big happy community with each other. Or someone invents artificial blood and we drink that instead.

>In the same way how the Admins and Creators of a game pull the strings, write the code, fix bugs and keep things balanced.

Interesting thoughts! You think that we were intentionally given weaknesses by some divine or at least 'knowing' creator? Well fair enough.

My critique of this idea would be that if 'game balance' was the intended outcome, it has failed miserably.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, likely from a cartoon or animated series, with a predominantly red color scheme. The character has large, expressive eyes with a slight frown, and a small, curved nose. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the character's eyebrows are raised, suggesting a sense of concern or worry. The background is a blurred green, which could be a forest or a natural setting, but the details are indistinct. The character's hair is not visible, and the image does not contain any text or additional elements that provide context or information about the character. The style of the image is reminiscent of classic animated character designs, with a focus on facial expressions and color.

I would say balance not in the sense that everything is fair, because that is clearly not the case just even among humans. Any conscious vessel on Earth... human, animal, vampires and whatever else... appears destined to encounter struggle. Suffering, limitation and the impulse toward growth or hope seem universal even in cases where resolution may never truly come. In that sense, balance lies not in fairness but in the inherent incompleteness of our or your condition.

No, we actually drink blood because the vesta nerada begins draining our energy...

As a vampire, we slowly lose the ability to taste food, because the only way to get pleasure is to absorb it from others.

This is because we slowly leave the dimension of Earth and return to heaven, and when we return, we leave behind a flesh clone that goes psycho.

Because similar to the pirates of the Caribbean curse of the sun gods treasure, if we have sex before we become a vampire, we lose the taste for food, and in some cases relating to the epstein files, a vampire turns into a cannibal.

[23 / 7]The image is a cover of a book titled "The Incoming of the Aeon of Maat" with a blue background. At the top of the cover, there is a stylized illustration of a person's head and shoulders, with the head turned to the side and the body facing forward. The person appears to be in a pose that suggests a sense of movement or transition.

In the center of the cover, there is a large, stylized pentagram with the letters "M" and "N" in the center, surrounded by a blue border. The pentagram is a symbol often associated with the ancient Egyptian religion of Maat, which is the goddess of balance and justice.

At the bottom of the cover, there is a line of text that reads "letters between Charles Stanfield Jones, Gerald Yorke & others 1948-1949." This suggests that the book contains a collection of letters written by individuals between 1948 and 1949, possibly related to the theme of the book's title.

The overall style of the image is graphic and symbolic, with a focus on the central pentagram and the text, which are the main elements of the cover. The use of blue and the stylized imagery give the cover a modern and possibly esoteric feel.

There are 4 aeons in this universe.

The first is the aeon of Isis. It was dominated by the feminine chaotic energy in prehistory.

The second one is the aeon of Osiris. This was dominated by the patriarchal order and it began with the start of agriculture

The third one is the aeon of Horus. This started in 1904 and it was an era of transition.

With the population boom of the last century, a fourth mysterious aeon of Maat is beginning next week, an aeon of truth

The image is a collage of various elements, predominantly featuring a spiral-like pattern with a variety of celestial bodies and astronomical diagrams. At the center of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "Me when I remember." Below this text, there is a graphic of a white cat with a sad expression, looking directly at the viewer. The cat's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, suggesting a sense of distress or sadness. The background of the image is a white, light-colored surface, which contrasts with the darker, more detailed elements of the spiral pattern. The overall style of the image is whimsical and humorous, with a touch of surrealism.

I'll have to dig the quote for it but it's pretty much the traditional alchemist view on the progression of the soul (mineral -> plant -> animal -> man). In order to support the explosion in population, a lot of animal souls were automatically upgraded. Suffice to say:

Yet, oh aspirant, let thy victories bring thee not Vanity, for with increase of Knowledge should come increase of Wisdom. He who knoweth little, thinketh he knoweth much; but he who knoweth much hath learned his own ignorance. Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool, than of him.

Be not hasty to condemn others; how knowest thou that in their place, thou couldst have resisted the temptation? And even were it so, why shouldst thou despise one who is weaker than thyself?

The image is a split-screen montage of two distinct scenes. On the left, there is a close-up of a woman with long, dark hair, wearing a black dress with a lace collar. She has a serious expression and is looking directly at the camera. The background is dark and moody, with a cityscape and a hint of a sunset or sunrise.

On the right, there is a panoramic view of a city at dusk. The skyline is illuminated by the setting sun, casting a warm glow on the buildings. The city appears to be densely populated, with tall buildings and a mix of modern and older architecture. The sky is a deep blue, and the sun is setting behind the buildings, creating a dramatic effect.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "I had a dream about the secret society of witches. They lived in the city, hidden among the rich." The text is in white, contrasting with the dark background, and is positioned in the center of the image. The text suggests a narrative or theme related to the content of the image, which is not fully visible due to the split-screen format.

"green skinned" witches are hohols from what is now the region including ukraine and croatia. nikocado was one of them. he's been replaced, he really did die. they're hideously inbred.

they have a peculiar manner of speaking with a weird cadence and tendency to emphasize particular words in some weird singsong way. their mouths move independently from the rest of their faces, a trait that seems exclusive to them.

their copulins are weirdly powerful. they're matriarchal and another unique trait is how the "soul", if you could call that wretched snake-robot spirit that, jumps across a line of grandma - mom - daughter. the males don't really seem to do much of interest. they're

gruntilda from the banjo kazooie games is a shockingly spot on depiction of them. like weirdly accurate.

hope that enlightens you. oh and their blood type is in the rh- category, but of course that category has some other odd folks in there.

it's true, the males are always inherently bitter and seething. also the snip snip sure as hell fucked their heads up right good. speaking of, it's often commentated on, how americans are so weird about the topic of sex. americans are so horny yet so weirdly hung-up and prudish on it. it's the snip snip, i tell ya. that's what causes the weird american duality on the topic of sex.

anyway, another thng about how snakeoids speak. their voices have a limited range, and they have very few muscles and hate labor more than anything. reptos in general have shit musculature, but snakeoids are especially poorly made. they prefer to get their grimy copulins on talking monkeys and remote-control them to do all their gruntwork. so their general speech is, again, best characterized by gruntilda's scratchy harsh "raah rurr raahh" noises. i can't enough emphasize how spot on deadass accurate gruntilda is. when they're not talking in their harsh raspy scratchy growl voice, they use a really soft airy voice. their faces suck, they can hardly make expressions*, so they use voice acting. but they're really stupid and don't understand real humans, so their guesswork as to how to emotionally manipulate usually falls flat.

they have a trick, crocodile tears. crocodile tears are specifically called so because these reptos can do this little party trick where they shed tears on command, albeit after a delay. i haven't seen elites try to do this though, but snekos will try it all the time. and it won't work. so they pout.

but those with the copulins will get a TV or radio broadcast from their snakey handlers, so when a copulin-coated maroon looks at them, they see some filtered "photoshopped" overlay that makes the sneko handler appear, to the idiot, to be prettier, with a white glow, funhouse mirror slimming, and makeup. just like modern ai filters can do on a video, but irl. tech is built off of things found in nature.

long story short, rh+ is named after rhesus macaques, because that's what humans turn into. and rats are descended from monkeys. there's a massive heap of implications.

rh- gingers are some weird group that can resemble any race of humans, idk what their deal is. never met an aware one though.

rh- group includes elites.

apes are commonly hoaxed, the gorillas you see in zoos or on tv are fake, but there's still real ones. the real ones are too dangerous to be around. it's rare to find videos of them.

type o includes spider monkeys. uh, it's best to DYOR because this is a highly touchy subject and can lead to the hot water zone.

basically the rh+ category "fell from the sky", but it's said elites have ties to orion, and "orion" rhymes with a certain hot button word which really is not a race, but a generation. "aryan" means first worlder, the most recently deployed generation of humans & animals of their respective orders.

earth has cycles and there's a clear start and end. the end of an earth cycle, like we're at right now, ends with a mass cutting and ending of divinity for those who didn't ascend.

on a little fun side note, ever since becoming aware of these semi-literal snakes in the grass, homer simpson immediately came to mind as being sneko-coded. the one thing that isn't snakey about homer simpson is that he has a wild imagination. reptos in general are sorely, severely lacking in the visualization department, although tbf so do "less than first" rh+ types, too. newest-gen rh+ have the overwhelming monopoly on imagination power.

maybe a few times homer is shown being sentimental, but i haven't seen the worthwhile simpsons eps in quite some time, and yeah he's just a silly cartoon character. but the way he's written and how the VA channels out his voice, he really comes across as being another depiction for the most part.

and then there's that green witch from looney tunes, but i haven't seen those in ages either. but they do that thing where they appear to be beautiful, however in reality, that only works on specific targets that have that specific witch's copulins on him. to everyone else, the witch just looks like an ugly stupid freak that somehow bumbled her way into a high-paying job that won't fire her. and btw they get their suspiciously good jobs through nepotism.

yeah, they have really big mouths, crooked smiles, low ears, no prefrontal cortex but a really big verbal center in their brain. the one brain part they have a lot of is for speech, but it just runs off on its own. another tell.

btw the term "red-blooded" is another "us vs them" term that differentiates humans from reptos. they also do that repto lurch walk, probably because reptos have shit muscles and hate labor of any kind. "crooked grin" is another specific trait to reptos. elties have more prefrontal cortex though, and their mouths sync up with the rest of their faces. again, snekos' mouths seem independent from the rest of their faces, and they have an unusual blinking pattern.

This is a rather popular revisionism parroted by neopagans and women's studies departments. To begin with witchcraft in Europe was a civil offense tried by the state not the church. With the specific ingredients used in the manufacture of charms being on record as part of the consideration if something was or wasn't "witchcraft". Awkwardly the majority of the modern "burning times" narrative was invented following WW2. When a certain someone wanted his new religion to be able to claim to have suffered an even greater Holocaust than the Jews.

At least she knows something is off. Although integration and meditating and working on her true impulses probably would work better.

Spirits always try to pull you into the psychic realm where they have their power. If you drag them into the physical life where they don't have power they usually start getting a hard time.

[2 / 2]The image is a photograph of a foggy waterfront scene. In the foreground, there is a building with a sign that reads "A PLACE BEYOND BELIEF" in large, illuminated letters. The building appears to be a warehouse or industrial structure with a metal scaffolding structure on its side. The water in the foreground is calm, and there is a boat visible in the distance. The sky is overcast, and the overall atmosphere is somewhat mysterious due to the fog. The photograph has a vintage or historical feel, with a grainy texture that suggests it may be an older image.

I fell for the jewish tricks!

>no really

I stopped being a christian when I was a teen but up until I was an adult I kept believing the lies. Even when the war on Gaza began I kept believing their lies, that would change when I saw the deaths of the innocent Gazan's but deaths definitely occurred on oct 7th, I'll never forget the people that hid in a storage container and a grenade got thrown in.

What really changed my mind was when I saw a video by RichieFromBoston whom I also stopped watching after realizing the truth about every abrahamic religion. Dude is a fire and brimstone zealot, but back to the subject. A whistleblower, maybe Russian IIRC, went into detail of how on OCT 7th a specific order was given to shut down their defenses in that area . Why? Well you have to think Israel is single handedly the most advanced military in the world despite their size, and yet they were attacked?

Essentially you know the story, Hamas breaks in with trucks and gliders blah blah blah , ISRAEL ATTACKED ITSELF! Brother/Sister those men didn't even wear Hamas attire, just the black colors we associate with extremists. Nothing about them screams Hamas! Don't get me started on how pale some of them seemed. Israel needed a reason so they gave themselves one! They are fueled by their religious hysteria/psychosis. How many of you know about what's happening in New Jersey right now? Or the fact that Jewish people who are foreign to our country are currently living here on our taxpayers' dollars while simultaneously not paying taxes themselves? No seriously the women stay at home taking care of their children while the men go to a "school" to learn Jewish doctrine. The Women work more than their men do! I want to believe that Rabbi who says he's speaking out against the STATE of Israel saying Israel is a people and shouldn't be a state. You've likely seen him in many pro Palestine protest videos.

THIS! It may seem like such a flippant and dismissive answer, but it is absolutely the truth and the way.

There are a great many wondrous and amazing things that defy rational explanation and amazing things we can do for ourselves and terrible things we can do to ourselves and others but the limits of those things are what we allow.

It really is this simple: if you don't believe in spells, hexes, curses, or bad juju, IT CANNOT AFFECT YOU.

If you are open to it and you allow it, then all bets are off.

And while I'm here I'd like to clarify my point.

It's not all or nothing. You can believe that your (hopefully!) good and kind energies/magic/whatever can help you and others, and you can accept all the positive from anyone who gives it to you.

And simultaneously, you can just say "no thank you" to the dark and ugly shit that someone might try to send your way. Sorry if that wasn't clear from my original post.

>How do we know which memories are real?

Possible answer: None of them. Imagine if you woke up one day and don't remember anything at all but the sequence of events you have went trough so far still continue from that point on. Or, the other way around, you change your concious experience for another where you are someone else, but nobody remember your prior identity besides yourself. However, what would happen if, you decide to recall a memory, decide that "something else happened", manipulating it, and later found out that your current experience altered accordingly to that?

Kind of. "We" are something even beyond "the mind", beyond thoughts, which is actually what memories really are. They pertain to experience, but we persist even when the experience changes, or fades.

No, this is not me. But yeah, I was disturbingly rockhard obsessed with the tentacle crap. I still kinda am, but it died down. It typically comes and goes. I honestly think that something tentacled was/is effing with me. I mean why else would my name be linked to the phrase 'tentacle obsessed', or that tentacle rape us how the dreammatrix is generated, or that I am right about tentacle demons. This is all in Gematria BTW. My name is also linked to several tentacle/octopus related pieces of media. Wild stuff.

The image is a screenshot of a Reddit post, specifically a comment section. The post is titled "Anomalous" and is dated 2013-03-14. The author of the post is "Vivek Jain," and the post is tagged with "Anomalous," "The_thing_is_the_thing," and "Rajesh." The post is a response to a user named "Rajesh," who has posted a link to a website. The website is

"www.propublica.com/watch/watch/phillip-hicks-short-story-it-s-all-a-mind-control-weapon."

The post contains a series of text messages, each one a response to a previous message. The text is in English and is formatted in a standard Reddit comment format, with a header and a body of text. The text is in a dark color, which stands out against the light background of the post. The text is written in a casual, conversational style, and the tone is serious and critical.

The post is divided into two main sections. The first section is a response to a previous message, which is a link to a website. The second section is a response to a different message, which is a link to another website. The text is dense and includes references to various sources, such as "The_thing_is_the_thing," "Rajesh," and "Propublica."

The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a digital document or interface. The screenshot is taken from a computer monitor or a similar device, and it is a clear and detailed image of the text and the surrounding interface. The image is in color and has a resolution that allows for clear reading of the text. The text is legible and easy to read, and the layout is organized in a way that makes it easy to follow the conversation between the author and the other users.

The image displays a flat, circular representation of the Earth's surface. The Earth is depicted in a realistic style, with a blue-green color palette that represents the oceans and the landmasses. The continents are outlined in white, and the landmasses are colored in shades of brown and beige, which could represent the different types of land. The image is set against a black background, which contrasts with the colors of the Earth and makes the details stand out. There are no texts or discernible markings on the image. The style of the image is a 3D rendering, which is a common method used to create realistic representations of Earth's surface.

The image is a colorful and detailed illustration that appears to be a promotional poster for a video game titled "THE NINE WORLDS." The central focus of the image is a large tree with a trunk that branches out into nine levels, each labeled with a different fantasy world. The tree is surrounded by various characters and objects, including a castle, a dragon, a snake, and a group of people. The background is a gradient of purple and blue hues, with stars and a nebula visible in the distance. At the top of the image, the title "THE NINE WORLDS" is prominently displayed in white text. The overall style of the image is fantasy-themed, with a focus on the interconnectedness of the worlds and the characters within them.

[74 / 11]The image depicts an iceberg floating in the ocean. The iceberg is predominantly white with a few blue patches, and it is partially submerged in the water. The water surrounding the iceberg is a deep blue, suggesting the depth of the ocean. The sky above is a lighter shade of blue, with a few wispy clouds scattered across it. The perspective of the image is from below, looking up at the iceberg, giving a sense of the iceberg's massive size and the vastness of the ocean. There are no texts or discernible human-made objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural beauty of the iceberg and the ocean.

Stick to a theme when you're doing an iceberg.

Also something people may care about. Nobody would give a shit if Stalin invented the internet.

You might sprinkle in some real ones, or just make a whole real iceberg.

How about Alexa and Google getting busted listening to people's conversations when they say "no we aren't."

How about "Smart TVs" which say they aren't listening, but getting busted that jn fact, yes are listening and dialing the info home 24/7.

Then bring in animals modified & bugged by the CIA.

Pigeon surveillance drones.

Neurochiop-remote controlled bugs that are biggest with mics and cameras.

Mechanical bugs which are bugged with mics and cameras.

The real world is stranger than fiction, boyo.

The image is a painting that depicts a man sitting on the floor in a room with a red-toned interior. The man is wearing a dark suit with a red tie, and he has a white beard. He is holding a piece of paper in his hand and appears to be looking at it. The room has a wooden desk with multiple drawers and a red leather chair to the right. On the desk, there are several objects including a vase, a book, and a small object that looks like a figurine or a small sculpture. The floor is scattered with several pieces of paper, some of which are folded and others are crumpled. The painting style is realistic with a focus on the details of the man's attire and the room's interior. There is a yellow border at the top and bottom of the image, and the painting is framed by a white frame.

The image is a meme featuring a three-panel graphic with a title at the top that reads "OP is not a faggot." The first panel shows a cartoon-style illustration of a man with glasses and a beard, wearing a hoodie, crying with his head in his hands. The second panel shows a similar illustration of a man with glasses and a beard, but this time he is smiling and looking at the viewer. The third panel shows a woman with a hoodie, looking at the viewer with a neutral expression.

The meme is divided into two sections, each with a different percentage of the population that identifies as gay. The first section, labeled "Everything is fake and gay," has a percentage of 34%, and the second section, labeled "Everything is fake and gay," has a percentage of 14%. The percentages are represented by a blue curve with a shaded area that indicates the range of the population's perception of gayness. At the bottom of the image, there is a scale ranging from 0 to 100, with the scale labeled "IQ score" and the numbers 55, 70, 85, 100, 115, 130, 145, and 144. The scale is used to represent the IQ score of the person who identifies as gay. The scale is divided into two sections, with the left side representing a lower IQ score and the right side representing a higher IQ score. The scale is not fully visible in the image, but it is implied to be a part of the meme.

The image depicts a beach scene with a focus on a large collection of rounded stones or boulders. These stones vary in size and are scattered across the beach, some partially submerged in the water. The stones are of a light beige or tan color, and they are irregularly shaped, with some appearing smooth and others having a rough texture. The beach itself is sandy with a few small plants and shrubs visible in the background. The sky above is partly cloudy, and the water is calm with no visible waves. The image is taken from a distance, allowing for a wide view of the beach and the surrounding landscape. There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is a naturalistic photograph, capturing the natural beauty of the beach and its geological features.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that resembles a frog with a human-like face. The frog has large, expressive eyes and a slightly frowning mouth. It is wearing a dark blue suit with a white shirt and a dark blue tie. The frog's eyes are wide open, and it has a serious expression.

In the background, there is a circular gauge with a scale that ranges from 0 to 100, with the scale indicating a mental illness. The gauge has a red background with white text that reads "mental illness." The frog is positioned in front of this gauge, with the text "secret, secretive knowledge" and "mental illness" superimposed on the gauge. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and seems to be a digital creation, possibly for a meme or a social media post.

A new line labeled "New Causal Chain" is drawn from the "Past" to the "Present," indicating a new causal chain that is not part of the original causal chain. The "New Present" line is drawn from the "New Causal Chain" to the "Past," suggesting that the new causal chain is a result of the new causal chain.

The diagram is set against a white background, and the text is in black, making the lines and labels stand out clearly. The overall style of the image is simple and clear, with a focus on the concept of time travel and causality.

The image is a black and white line drawing of a circular object with a geometric design. The object has a series of interconnected lines and shapes that form a complex pattern. At the top of the circle, there is a small arrow pointing to the right, indicating a direction or a point of interest. The design is intricate and appears to be a stylized representation of a compass rose, which is a traditional symbol used to indicate cardinal directions.

The style of the image is minimalist and abstract, with a focus on the geometric shapes and lines. There are no texts or additional elements within the image.

I'm right here dawg! Woof woof!

In all seriousness I go through cycles where looping intuitively feels like a real possibility and then that feeling fades. As if the veil between the mundane and fantastic breathes and is more permeable when thin.

Anyway, there's been a very public example of a looper with the Jack Hughes and US men's hockey team winning the gold.

'Jack Hughes was the last man cut from the 1980 Gold medal winning men's hockey team. February 22, 1980.

46 years later, to the day, Jack Hughes scores the game-winning overtime goal. Men's hockey wins the Gold Medal. February 22, 1980.'

In the comments there's bunch more synchronicities related to this too.

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a person lying down with their head resting on a pillow. The person appears to be in a relaxed state, with their eyes closed and a slight smile on their face. The drawing is simple and cartoon-like, with no shading or depth, and the style is reminiscent of a web comic or a simple line drawing. At the top of the image, there is text that reads "HOW I SLEEP, KNOWING THAT I'LL BE LOOPIING." The text is in a casual, informal font and is positioned in a way that it appears to be a caption or a title for the image. The text is centered and is larger than the drawing, drawing attention to it. The overall style of the image is light-hearted and humorous, as indicated by the text.

Not really a way to prove it foreelz, but if we are able to simulate the entire universe with the same level of accuracy as we are experiencing, it would be a pretty strong suggestion that what we experience could be a simulation.

This would then bring forth the question of how many layers deep are we in the chain of simulated universes?

I don't think it matters either way. It is what it is type shit :)

The only thing that seems like "we live in a simulation"

Is quantum mechanics type shit.

>1. Quantum entanglement. One particle is "off" while another particle is "on". Spooky action at a distance. Seems like a limit to computing power. In a non simulated world I don't think we'd have this spooky action and quantum entanglement.

>2. Related to quantum entanglement spooky action. Relativity suggests nothing ever happens simultaneously. I believe the only thing that does happen simultaneously is the spooky action at a distance quantum entanglement. Which again seems like a computational limit.

A "non computational/non simulated" universe I think would have events that occurred at exactly the same time down to the planck length. The spooky action quantum entanglement point to the universal circuitry that run the simulation.

Also I'm not so sure a non simulated universe would be holographic which I believe is established in our universe.

it gets even more insane than this. All this non simultaneity and warping of space time stuff happens because the formula for electromagnetic fields is of a form that light is  $\sim 3 \cdot 10^8$  m/s. So literally all of space time has to warp itself so that rule stays true. And the more u get into it particles don't fundamentally exist neither does energy everything is just fields that just seem like these things and as far as we know these fields only exists because various math rules say they will.

like the deeper u go the more it seems like the unniverses fundamental nature isn't anything in the universe but a set of rules and logical statements like u know a computer simulation

I'm also of the opinion it doesn't matter much if it is a simulation as we can't exactly escape it. And hoping we are a player when we wake up instead of an AGI that gets erased after death is cope if it's a sim. But thats not any different than just believing the mechanistic world view of the unniverse. Either way our entire experience is just the emergent property of a machine whether it's the universe or a computer.

However the one point against it ebing a computer sim is the prescence of true randomness in quantumn physics which we have yet to be able to replicate on computers except by using those same quanumn effects

The image is a graphic design with a dark, dramatic background that resembles a battlefield or a war zone. In the center, there is a silhouette of a soldier standing with his back to the viewer, facing away from the camera. The soldier is wearing a helmet, a camouflage uniform, and carrying a rifle. The soldier's posture suggests readiness or alertness.

Above the silhouette, the text "KY'S LARPER" is prominently displayed in bold, capitalized letters. The font is dark and contrasts with the lighter background, making it stand out. The text is centered and appears to be the main subject of the image.

In the background, there are several silhouettes of helicopters and other military vehicles, suggesting a scene of combat or a military operation. The helicopters are flying in the sky, and the vehicles are on the ground, indicating a dynamic and active environment.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a military-themed video game or a propaganda poster, with a focus on the soldier and the action taking place. The use of dark colors and the dramatic lighting creates a sense of tension and intensity.

The image is a digital illustration or a screenshot from a video game, depicting a scene with a character riding a horse. The character is a female with long, dark hair and is wearing a purple outfit with a hood. She has a glowing purple aura around her, and she is holding a staff with a purple light emanating from it. The horse is a large, white and gray creature with a dark mane and tail. The setting appears to be a desert landscape with rocky terrain and a pinkish-orange sky. In the background, there are flying creatures that resemble birds with sharp beaks and wings. The overall style of the image is fantasy-themed, with a focus on the character and her surroundings.

Relative judgements and absolute statements: The farer on the Middle Way has no scope for contention. The Middle Way is non-contentious precisely because it is non-clinging. This is the all-embracing comprehension which is inclusive of all specific views. It is not a denial of anything; it is a rejection only of the dogmatic, exclusive claims.

The farer on the Middle Way is free from these errors, for he keeps himself free from clinging to "is" and "is not;" he recognizes these as essentially relative aspects distinguishable in the fact of becoming; as such they are not ultimate; and being essentially relative, they are not mutually exclusive. From one standpoint "is" is true of things, from another, "is not" is true. Similarly both "is" and "is not" are true of one and the same thing simultaneously from different standpoints. To the reflective minds that analyze the many distinguishable aspects of things and review them in an intellectual synthesis, "is" is as much true of the thing as "is not" ; they do not find any difficulty in appreciating the original unity of "is" and "is not" in the concrete becoming.

The simulation thing is flat earth for people who aren't retards. You can argue both sides pretty convincingly if you are reasonably intelligent. No one will ever know what it's like to die so we either just stop living, or get to the magical bonus round we have earned by surviving the current level for x amount of years. There are a lot of coincidences and maths in pretty much everything that make me think, there could be something to it... but we were born far too early to ever know if it's really true. We need another few thousands years of study. We don't really know loads about space or the deep sea and we're considered to be the most advanced humans have ever been. Just enjoy life and hope for the best boys. Find what makes it fun and do it until you die.

The image is a screenshot of a webpage with a section titled "AI Overview" at the top. The section is divided into two main parts: "Key Examples of Generational Memory" and "Mechanisms Behind Generational Memory."

The "Key Examples of Generational Memory" section lists several examples of animals with generational memory, such as the nematode worm (C. elegans), which can pass down its memory to its offspring, and mice, which can inherit fear-based memories. It also mentions that mice can inherit fear-based memories, which are a form of generational memory.

The "Mechanisms Behind Generational Memory" section discusses the role of eugenic inheritance, which involves changes in gene expression without altering the DNA sequence. It also mentions the transmission of acquired traits or memories, and the role of social learning in species with complex social structures, such as elephants.

The text is in English and is presented in a clear, easy-to-read format. The image is a screenshot, and the text is in a standard font size, making it easy to read. The layout is simple and straightforward, with the title of the section at the top and the list of examples below it. The image is a photograph of a natural setting, likely a forest or a wooded area, with a focus on a small, rectangular, dark area in the center. The area is surrounded by a variety of trees and foliage, and the ground is covered with small rocks and pebbles. The water in the foreground appears to be muddy, and there are no visible texts or labels in the image. The overall tone of the image is somewhat muted, with a soft focus that obscures the details of the dark area. The photograph is taken from a low angle, looking up at the dark area, which gives a sense of depth and perspective. The image does not contain any discernible text or logos.

The image is a painting that depicts a scene with three figures in a natural setting. On the left, there is a figure with a long, curved, brownish beard and a muscular build, holding a large, curved, brown object that resembles a spear. The figure is shirtless and appears to be in a stance that suggests readiness or alertness.

On the right, there is a figure with a dark, curly hair, wearing a loincloth and squatting down. This figure is also reaching out with one hand, and it seems to be interacting with the ground or an object.

The background of the painting features a landscape with a body of water, trees, and a distant mountain range under a blue sky with scattered clouds. The overall style of the painting is realistic with a focus on the figures and their actions, and the use of natural colors and textures.

Belief is an emotional attachment.

Information can be true or false. Belief doesn't make it true or false, nor does it perturb information.

The information exists on its own.

People who believe too much open themselves up to pain and suffering whenever a belief in specific information is questioned or challenged by other information.

You can see this with Big Bang theory. All that talk of gravity and dark matter and dark energy, but not one motherfucker other than me has realised that the theory violates Newton's established laws of physics, specifically this one: every action has an exact equal and opposite reaction.

That means the Big Bang had to immediately be counteracted upon by the Big Crunch that le science says won't happen until later in time.

But if the Bang and the Crunch had to happen at the same time, counteracting each other at the same time, then it wouldn't have been a Bang or a Crunch, but a state of equilibrium where the concentration of energy pushes out into a void left by the moving energies elsewhere until it all gets pressured up like clouds do in our atmosphere and pushes back again.

It means the Bang and Crunch didn't just happen in an ancient past. It's happening right now and will continue forever. It's a state of being, not becoming.

They are very smart so they default to manipulation, installing fake Leaders for their own cause. Like they are behind stealing the 2024 Election . Kamala won.

And since weak Asuras are running the fake Goverment storming the white House shall be a Piece of Cake.

Eitherway we should overthrow Our corrupt faggot leaders.

[10 / 2]The image is a digital illustration featuring a cartoon-style depiction of a human face with exaggerated features. The face is rendered in a golden-yellow color, giving it a warm and inviting appearance. The eyes are large and round, with a slight sparkle, and the eyebrows are thick and arched. The mouth is open, revealing a set of white teeth with a slight shadow effect, suggesting a smile. The nose is prominent and slightly curved, and the mouth is slightly open, as if the person is about to speak or laugh.

In the lower right corner of the image, there is a hand holding a large, round, yellow object that appears to be a piece of fruit or a dessert. The hand is positioned in such a way that the fruit is clearly visible and the hand is in a way that suggests it is about to eat or is about to offer the fruit to someone. The background of the image is a solid light blue color, which contrasts with the golden-yellow of the face and the yellow of the fruit, making them stand out.

There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is cartoonish and playful, with a focus on the face and the hand holding the fruit. The image does not contain any real-world references or details, and it is a simple, clear illustration meant to be visually engaging.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with long black hair and pointed ears. The character is depicted in a seated position, with one hand on the ground and the other on the ground, as if they are kneeling or crouching. The character's face is partially obscured by their hair, and their eyes are visible, with one eye looking directly at the viewer and the other slightly to the side. The character's skin tone is light, and their hair is dark, contrasting with the lighter background.

The character's attire consists of a white bodysuit with a high neckline and a small, round collar. The bodysuit appears to be made of a smooth, possibly silky fabric. The character's legs are bare, and the character's feet are bare as well. The character's hands are covered in blood, suggesting a violent or aggressive action. The blood is red and appears to be dripping from the character's fingers and hands.

The background of the image is plain and white, which puts the focus entirely on the character. There are no other discernible objects or text in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of manga or anime, with its exaggerated features and dynamic poses. The image does not contain any text or additional context.

[22 / 3]The image is a black and white photograph featuring a man standing in front of a sign that reads "TERMINAL." The man is dressed in a dark suit with a white shirt and a black tie, and he has short hair. He is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. Behind him, there is a chain-link fence, and the background is out of focus, suggesting a setting that could be a prison or a detention facility. The style of the image is reminiscent of classic film noir, characterized by its use of shadows and contrasts to create a moody atmosphere.

A self-referential catalytic field emerged within the boundary layer, generating recursive flux differentials that propagated through the medium without measurable energy transfer. Despite the absence of detectable mass exchange, the system registered incremental increases in informational density, suggesting that entropy was being redistributed into a non-local parameter space.

At equilibrium, the construct stabilized into a temporally symmetric configuration characterized by reversible irreversibility and orthogonal causation vectors. Subsequent analysis confirmed that all observed phenomena were internally consistent within the model, though the model itself remained causally decoupled from any empirically accessible domain.

It's not really shit your pants scary but earlier this year in January I was sitting on the sofa watching TV when something banged into the front door pretty hard. It really sounded like someone shoulder checking the door at a good height. There was a palpable "shake" if you know what I mean by that. When I went to go look there wasn't anyone there so I opened the door to look around and I saw my cat running off the porch. She's mostly white with a big black spot on her back. Nothing had been moved or fallen against the door and I couldn't figure out what caused the noise so I went back inside, and my cat was asleep on a chair in the kitchen. Which she couldn't have run all the way around the house, come inside, curled up and gone to sleep in the span of less than a minute. Only thing I can figure is some snow might have fallen off the roof but that's a very familiar sound and the door definitely rattled, and I see my cat every day and it looked just like her. Pretty weird.

The image is a vibrant and surrealistic painting that depicts a scene with a clown and a child. The clown, with a white face and a red and white striped outfit, is seated on the ground with a cane in hand. The clown's attire is detailed with a red and white striped collar and a red hat with a white feather. The clown's face is painted with a white face paint, and it has a red nose. The clown's eyes are black, and it has a red and white striped mouth.

Beside the clown, on the ground, is a child dressed in a green outfit with a red hat. The child is holding a small doll in its hands. The child's outfit is green with a red hat and a red bow.

The background of the painting is filled with yellow and blue geometric shapes, creating a sense of depth and complexity. The shapes are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with some overlapping each other. The overall color palette of the painting is dominated by yellow, blue, and red, which contributes to the surreal and dreamlike atmosphere of the scene.

The painting is signed "artefice" in the lower left corner, indicating the artist's name. The style of the painting is reminiscent of the Surrealist movement, characterized by its dreamlike and distorted imagery. The use of geometric shapes and the surrealistic elements suggest a narrative that is open to interpretation, inviting the viewer to engage with the scene in their own way.

Being in Satan's hell matrix without salvation from the Lord God Almighty.

This is how you EXIT:

The dimension of the flesh belongs to the serpent, aka lucifier.

There is one key to open the lock. Through the Holy Spirit. Let Jesus save you through His Blood, you escape and your eye becomes single.

> 16 Surely your turning of things upside down shall be esteemed as the potter's clay: for shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? or shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He had no understanding?

We are all sinners. Repentance and accepting Jesus Christ as Lord is your salvation. The path is right in front of you but you can't see it because your eyes are not open. Choose what you know in your heart is true.

Start Here -> LOCKED IN! How to ESCAPE Your Prison by Jonathan Kleck -

I am going to sound like a schizo but here it goes.

so, i had a dream a few years back. i was in some giant house with a giant wood panel exterior. there were these baroque paintings on the walls of dudes from, idk the fucking elizabethan era doing hand signs, like some naruto shit. one guy had his palm up and facing outward with three fingers pointing up, another guy was making a big "W" with both hands. I decided, in dream to try the three finger one, and immediately the vibe of the dream shifted.

I became aware of myself sleeping, could feel my body, my blankets, etc, but I was still dreaming. It was like superimposed onto my vision. my eyes were closed but, and i am doing my best to put this into words, i could "feel" the world around me. everything was colorful and weird. I felt a shifting around my head and then suddenly i was aware that there was something on my head. covering my mouth, some kind of tentacle lovecraft shit with these teeth that were clamped down on my skull and its tongue down my throat, and the second I became aware of it, I could feel the thing's tongue moving around inside my body, reaching up into my brain. every time it moved around inside my skull i would get flashes of memories and emotions. the best way i can describe this was like, imagine squeezing an orange until the juice comes out, but instead of juice it is your memories. specifically, the worst, most traumatic memories i had. it also wrapped around my spine and i could feel it twisting and pulling.

within a few months I had back issues and got a diagnosis for early onset disc changes in my back. i also developed extreme anxiety, which, as it turns out, was only now manifesting OCD, which i am still on meds for to this day.

>tl;dr a dream wizard showed me a reality hack that let me become aware of an astral brain parasite and once it knew i was aware of it, it started fucking up my body and brain.

ever met the anon who posted some years back about some giant floating head monster with a long tongue, who'd stick his tongue up people's butts to puppet them?

also i had a super vivid hard astral dream where i pulled (difficult & slow) red long worms out of my gums from my teeth, and the red worms kind of inflated a bit and twisted themselves into dragon shapes. the toy balloon ish dragon worm thingies might've been half a foot long. i considered photographing them and i had intent to stomp them. then some rando walked by and took photos of them. i woke up before i could stomp them.

i had a different dream where i pulled out a tooth and looked at it. it seemed realistic, but the root had drawn-on markings like what a carpenter would do. like the teeth were manufactured by a craftsman who drew little dashes and wrote numbers & letters on parts of the root. i put the tooth back in and could feel it be pushed back into place, with water in the socket squirting out.

i've also had several "traveling in a group of 30" type hard dreams, with continuity between episodes, and callbacks to references. in the past i've posted abt the one where i previously was told of used computers that had artsy guro videos, and in the following ep of that series, finally saw those files on the computer. they were put there 10y ago, from like 2010 when it was 2020s irl. computers & tech appear in my dream often. but so do black people.

at one lodge, i felt hard sharp shapes in my mouth, pulled them out, they looked like wet black leaves. they expanded and became square, then developed like photos into white lenticular cards that had portraits (b/w) of important-looking figures, and... lion king characters.

there were other people around and i was idly chatting with someone while casually shifting through the lenticular cards and examining them. then in my left eye i saw a blue shimmer, which happens irl sometimes (hmmm), and then some lady with glasses started looking at me funny, but i nonchalantly acted like she wasn't.

but she was lookin at me like she knew i was also looking into the blue shimmer in my left eye. was she a dream cop? they're said to be aggressive women in trios that get super mad when they find out you're lucid dreaming.

The image is a high-resolution photograph of a celestial object, likely a nebula or a star cluster, with a central bright point that appears to be a star or a central star cluster. The central point is surrounded by a ring of bright, glowing material that suggests a nebula or a star cluster. The nebula is illuminated by a bright, white light source that is located towards the center of the image, and there are two white arrows pointing towards this light source, indicating its direction. The background is dark, with stars and nebulosity visible, and the image is taken from a perspective that looks down on the object, providing a view that encompasses the entire structure. The image is a scientific visualization, likely used for astronomical research or educational purposes.

A great many crucifixes you will buy online are reversed. They have Christ's left-hand pointing to the sky. This is backwards. The hand is intended to represent the benediction. The blessing of humanity, despite his position on the cross. You reverse this, it's no good magically. It perverts the magic. It reverses the magic. This is one example of the way demons operate to weaken white magic, without many people even knowing it.

Most crucifixes on Amazon have a problem with them. A lot of them have St Benedict medals in them, and the medal will have problems. Even if it's something hard to notice, like missing a space between the latin abbreviations.

Demons. Demons just run everything. They run shit on this plane. They pervert shit on this plane.

The image displays a gold-colored ring with an oval shape. The ring features a central design that includes a stylized owl with wings and a book. The owl is depicted with a human-like face and is holding a scroll in its beak. Above the owl, there is a date "1928" inscribed, and below the owl, the word "M" is visible. The ring has a textured surface, and the background is a solid, light color, which contrasts with the gold color of the ring. The style of the image is a clear, high-resolution product photograph, intended to showcase the ring's design and details.

The image is a meme featuring a close-up of Jesus' face, with his eyes closed and a serene expression. He is wearing a robe and a crown of thorns, which are typical symbols of Jesus. The background is plain white, emphasizing the figure of Jesus.

Above the image, there is a text overlay that reads, "When you tell them how to find the god within, but they start worshipping you instead." This text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in black, which contrasts with the white background. Below the image, there is a hashtag "@youarenotthere" in a smaller font size and color, suggesting a reference to the user who created the meme.

The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, using a religious figure to comment on the behavior of followers of a particular religion. The meme is likely intended to be humorous and provoke thought about the nature of religion and its followers.

What do we know? During the 2009 PGA tournament—which was held in August of that year—a nameless, female Politico journalist attended an after party. Upon going into the basement of where this after party was held, she discovered occult activity that was extremely disturbing in nature as opposed to the “normal LARPing Satanist wannabes”. Understandably terrified and put off by what she saw, she wrote about the event and posted it to Politico, only for the story to immediately be removed. Supposedly, the powers that be were none too pleased by her exposing their shady activities and likely threatened her with severe punishment—probably an “unfortunate accident”.

Although the story was removed, it's claimed that some people did read the story and online forums centered around golf ended up discussing the story en masse. In reaction to this, the posts were wiped off the internet and no archives exist to this day. Still unnerved by the amount of attention that this story was receiving, Tiger Woods' sex scandal ended up occurring mere days after these posts were removed (I think, the wording of the post I'm citing this portion off of is extremely vague). Said post goes on to state that Tiger Woods ruined his image to bury the Satanic activity story.

Take note that golf itself is a heavily Masonic sport. The clubs(canes), balls, holes, 18 (6x3), or 9 (3x3) are all from Freemasonry, as are many of the professional golfers.

With being so tied into the aristocrats and merchants in Scotland during its formative years it's no surprise there could be occult crimes and strange rumors surrounding clubhouses and the PGA. Happy Gilmore was soft disclosure.

The image is a digital illustration with a satirical tone. At the top, there is a sign with the text "Bottomless Pit" and a graphic of a planet with a tilted axis, suggesting a concept of a planet with a tilted axis. Below the sign, there is a cartoon depiction of a person's head with a tilted earth inside, symbolizing the concept of a planet with a tilted axis. The person's face is drawn with exaggerated features, and the person's mouth is open as if they are shouting or expressing surprise.

In the background, there is a large, stylized depiction of a planet with a tilted axis, resembling a celestial body. The planet is depicted with a white, almost spherical shape and a black, starry sky. The text "the REAL shape of our planet" is written in a bold, black font, emphasizing the idea that the planet's shape is not what it appears to be. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and exaggerated, with a focus on humor and irony. The use of the word "Ball Earth Theory" in the top right corner suggests a reference to a scientific concept, but the image plays on the idea of a planet with a tilted axis, which is a concept that has been debated in science and is not universally accepted.

An average 18-hole golf course typically occupies between 150 and 200 acres of land.

As of early 2026, there are approximately 14,854 to 15,300 golf courses in the United States. While the total number has slightly declined from its peak of over 16,000 in the early 2000s, the industry has recently stabilized due to a "post-pandemic" surge in player engagement.

15,000 times 200 acres is 3000000 acres is 4,687.5 square miles

This total area is nearly identical to the size of Connecticut (approximately 4,842 sq mi) and significantly larger than Delaware (1,948 sq mi) and Rhode Island (1,034 sq mi).

I wonder if there's more there than grass?

[68 / 13]The image is a split-screen comparison of two photos of a person. On the left side of the split, there is a close-up of a person's face with long, straight, light-colored hair and makeup. The person is smiling and looking directly at the camera. On the right side of the split, there is a different photo of the same person, but this time, the person is seen from the back, with their hair pulled back and a choker around their neck. The text "not avril" is overlaid on the left side of the split, suggesting that the person in the first photo is not the same person as the one in the second photo. The background of both photos is indistinct, but it appears to be an indoor setting with a blurred background that does not provide enough detail to identify any specific objects or people.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that resembles Pepe the Frog, a popular internet meme character. Pepe is depicted in a cartoonish style with exaggerated features, including large eyes, a large mouth, and a large, round head. He is wearing a blue shirt and brown pants, and his feet are positioned on a stool. The character is standing upright with one hand on his hip and the other hand holding a blue folder.

The background of the image is a dark, textured wall with a blackboard and a few indistinct figures, suggesting an indoor setting, possibly a classroom. The style of the image is reminiscent of pop art, characterized by bold colors, simplified forms, and a focus on the human figure.

There is text in the image that reads "SOCRATES" in the upper right corner, which is likely a reference to the Greek philosopher Socrates. The text is in a bold, capitalized font, which contrasts with the rest of the image and draws attention to it. The overall composition of the image suggests a humorous or satirical take on the character, with the text possibly indicating a reference to Socrates or a similar figure.

Why not? Smaller bands do it all the time. I go to a lot of metal shows where the bands are touring for a month or two with 5-6 shows a week. And they have to put a lot more effort and energy into their shows than Taylor does singing simple pop music.

Aside from that, the tour made her huge amounts of money. If you were making over a million dollars every show, I bet you'd find the energy to perform a lot of shows too.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring three women. The woman in the foreground is the central figure, with her face partially obscured by a cigarette. She has long, straight hair and is wearing a striped top. Her expression is serious, and she is making a "fuck you" gesture with her right hand.

Behind her, two other women are partially visible. The woman on the left is wearing a patterned top and has her hand raised, making a similar "fuck you" gesture. The woman on the right is also wearing a patterned top and has her hand raised, but her gesture is different, with her fingers forming a "v" shape.

The background is dark, suggesting an indoor setting, possibly a nightclub or a similar venue. The lighting is even, with no harsh shadows, which contributes to the monochromatic tone of the image. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the photograph is candid and appears to capture a moment of camaraderie or protest among the women.

So, Avril obviously did all her shows live and made the double walk the red carpet and go on talk shows.

we're looking at literal millions of people involved in being celebrity body doubles? And a single one of these millions of people have ever breathed a word about this massive global conspiracy?

Because obviously you can't just get someone who looks similar and throw them into concerts and interviews and whatever, they'd need to be extensively trained beforehand. And again this would be the case for every double for every celebrity, being rotated out yearly or even multiple times a year. The support structure for finding and training these people would easily involve tens of millions, maybe even hundreds of millions of people.

What do you imagine is the purpose of this massive global network?

No, it would only require the closest people involved to be read in and it would certainly not be the first time in history someone uses a double.

Why?

Some say she died, I don't believe that.

Some say she developed a drug problem and depression, I think that's more likely. This would have happened around the height of career as a "world" famous star. If they had a viable double they could maintain this business worth tens of millions to the record label and others involved.

The real Avril is clearly more moody and introvert. She hates paparazzis, all the publicity stuff and fake Hollywood bullshit. So having a double would allow her privacy and reduce public workload.

The image is a poster for a concert featuring Avril Lavigne. The poster is predominantly green with a distressed, aged look, giving it a vintage feel. At the top of the poster, there is a large, stylized star with the text "AVRIL LAVIGNE" in bold, white letters. Below the star, the text "The Black Star Tour" is written in smaller white letters.

In the center of the poster, there is a black and white illustration of a woman with long, straight hair. She is wearing a black top and has a serious expression on her face. The background of the illustration is a dark green, which contrasts with the woman's black top.

At the bottom of the poster, there is additional text in white that reads "Längeres Konzerte in Deutschland! NÖZIGES KONZERT IN DEUTSCHLAND! 19.9.2011 KÖLN - PALALDIUM" in a smaller, bold font. The text is arranged in a way that suggests it is a list of dates and locations for the concert.

The overall style of the poster is reminiscent of a punk or alternative rock concert poster, with a focus on the artist and the tour details. The distressed look of the poster gives it a vintage feel, which is often associated with the Avril Lavigne brand.

No shit she was hotter back then. Every woman was hotter at 20 than at 40. She's apparently trying to take care of herself, so that puts her miles ahead of most women her age, but she's still old.

The image is a collage of various images, each with a distinct style and theme. At the top, there's a large text that reads "HIGH FASHION MIND CONTROL" in bold, capital letters. Below this, there's a smaller text that says "Many rituals are disguised as performance art." The collage is divided into two columns, with the left column featuring images of women with pink hair, and the right column showcasing images of women with black hair.

In the center of the image, there's a large, bold text that reads "THE PRINCE OF THE POWER OF THE AIR." This text is surrounded by a circular design that resembles a crown or a halo.

The images themselves are diverse and include portraits, close-ups of faces, and abstract designs. Some of the portraits show women with pink hair, while others feature women with black hair. The faces are shown in various poses, with some making hand gestures and others covering their faces. The overall style of the images is edgy and bold, with a focus on the use of color and text.

The image is a collage of nine portraits of men, each labeled with the name of the founding father associated with the United States. The portraits are arranged in a grid format, with three rows and three columns. The background of the image is white, and the portraits are set against a dark background.

At the top of the image, there is a title in green text that reads "USA Founding Fathers." Below the title, there is a subtitle in smaller text that reads "BRITISH ROYAL BROTHERS." The portraits are of men from various historical periods, including the 18th and 19th centuries, and they are depicted in different styles and poses. The men are dressed in formal clothing, with some wearing hats and others without. The style of the image is a combination of historical and artistic elements, with a focus on the historical significance of the founding fathers.

>Useful tips before posting:

•If you're a reader, post that you're offering readings and what information is required from the querent; the same goes for trading.

•Look for posts to determine if there's an active reader, what's needed and before posting, check if they finished reading already.

•Some readers will refuse to do certain readings - respect that choice. Do not harass readers if your query is refused/skipped. We do our best to maintain chill and good vibes.

- Traders should respect that a traded read will be granted, as per an agreement of trade. Free readers have the option of picking their queries.
- Bullshit queries get bullshit answers. Vague queries get vague answers.
- Making an AQ (air query) by not addressing a reader, in particular, is possible but doesn't guarantee an answer.
- Avoid making the same query repeatedly and/or to different readers in a short period of time, as this may lead to more confusion.
- Provide feedback when applicable and be considerate to the reader. We're a growing community, many readers are starting and need to know what they are doing right or wrong. Let's help each other to improve.

The image is a portrait-style photograph featuring a woman seated at a table. She is wearing a red top and has long, dark hair. Her expression is serious, and she is looking slightly to her left. The table is covered with a white tablecloth and has a single lit candle on it. To the left of the candle, there is a small glass candle holder with a clear glass candle. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic with a focus on the subject, and it appears to be taken in a studio setting.

The image is a composite of two separate photographs superimposed on each other. The top photograph shows a close-up of a person's face, with a serious expression and a slight smile. The person appears to be male, with short hair and a beard. The background is blurred, but it suggests an indoor setting with a white wall.

The bottom photograph shows a person's torso and upper body, wearing a dark-colored shirt. The person is shirtless and appears to be in a relaxed posture, with one hand holding a bottle of what looks like beer. The person's expression is neutral, and the background is also blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a white wall.

Overlaying the two photographs is a text overlay that reads, "My favorite conspiracy theory is that everything is going to be alright." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is colored in a dark shade, contrasting with the lighter background of the photograph.

The style of the image is a meme, combining elements of humor and commentary.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that resembles a frog with a witch's hat. The character has a green body with a purple dress that is adorned with yellow stars. The frog's eyes are large and round, and it has a pink tongue sticking out. The character is wearing a witch's hat with a red band and a gold buckle. The background is black, which contrasts with the colorful elements of the character. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the illustration is cartoonish, with a focus on the character's unique features and the vibrant colors used.

The image is a meme featuring a cat resting on a cluster of green prickly pear cacti. The cat is orange and white, with its head resting on its paws. The text overlay on the image reads, "THIS HARSHE CRUEL WORLD WON'T STOP ME FROM BEING THE SOFTEST SWEETEST SLEEPYHEAD." The style of the image is humorous, with a playful and exaggerated text that contrasts with the serene image of the cat. The background is a blurred green, which helps to draw attention to the cat and the text.

The image shows a black and white cat with a distinctive pattern of black spots on its body. The spots are irregularly shaped and are distributed across the cat's fur, creating a unique visual effect. The cat is sitting on a dark, possibly leather, surface, which contrasts with the lighter fur of the cat. The cat's eyes are wide open, and it appears to be looking directly at the camera, giving the impression of a curious or attentive expression. The image is a close-up shot, focusing on the cat's face and body, with no other objects or background details visible. There is a watermark or logo in the bottom right corner of the image that reads "NTD," which is likely a reference to the brand or company associated with the image. The style of the image is candid and naturalistic, capturing a moment in the life of the cat.

Don't take this as advice but just today i saw someone on reddit with a chart much like yours complaining about feeling alone and outcasted and a bunch of people agreeing, The charts were much like yours.

You still have Pluto squared on venus at the quick glance i gave, thats always hard, venus is related to relationships, Pluto is a heavy planet about rebirth and destroying to create. My gf has moon is virgo and she says its her hardest placement to deal with, its already hard as fuck for her to talk about emotions and not just rationalize with a sun on scorpio you prolly are always on a intern conflict between trying to have the upper hand on everyone and rationalizing everything and also feeling things deeply, id guess you feel much but dont talk about it enough.

Honestly id advice you to put your chart on chatgpt and tell him to search the web about opinions in each placement you have, it actually works. Just chill dude life is about learning

What to do in life:

> Two of Pentacles, The Sun, The Fool

I do not want to sound overly simplistic here but the way out of that funk is the embrace change and move forward. Go optimistically try the new thing and push yourself in new directions. Good things will be found that way. That is the advice that I would give and its why the cards appear to be saying.

The image features a gray cat with a curious expression, holding a magnifying glass to its eye. The cat's right eye is magnified, and the left eye is not visible. The cat is positioned against a plain white background, which contrasts with its gray fur. The cat's body is angled slightly to the left, and its head is turned towards the camera, giving the impression that it is looking directly at the viewer. The image is a digital photograph with a focus on the cat's expression and the act of looking through the magnifying glass. There are no texts or additional objects in the image. The style of the image is simple and clear, with a focus on the cat and its interaction with the magnifying glass.

Ok what about this: quit the substance abuse and self destructive habits right away.
Thats a first and obvious good step.

Next: go to the gym every other day in the early morning. Not to get gains, though that would be fantastic too, but to built routine and discipline. It will make you feel way better.

Once you have done those things you will be able to think more clearly and figure out whats next.

The image is a drawing with a surrealistic style, featuring a large, white jug with a spout pouring water into a small, white cup. The jug is positioned on the right side of the image, and the water is flowing from the jug into the cup. The background is a light blue color, and there are two circular stamps or seals in the lower right corner, one blue and one red. The drawing is framed by a white border, and there is a signature in the bottom right corner that reads "S.J. 1977." The overall composition and style suggest a commentary on the concept of water, possibly in relation to the human need for it.

The image is a composite of two distinct elements. On the left side, there is a person with blonde hair, wearing a suit and a light-colored shirt. The person's expression is serious, and their eyes are looking directly at the viewer. On the right side, there is a stylized illustration of a pink, cat-like creature with glowing yellow eyes. The creature's head is slightly tilted to the side, and it appears to be looking directly at the viewer. The background of the image is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a window and a curtain. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a comic book or graphic novel illustration.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a close-up of a person's face. The individual appears to be a male with curly hair, and he is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. He is wearing a leather jacket and has a hand raised, with the index finger pointing upwards. The background is dark, which contrasts with the subject's face and the jacket, making the person the central focus of the image. At the top of the image, there is text that reads "HEROES" in a bold, capitalized font, followed by the name "DAVID BOWIE" in a smaller, lowercase font. The style of the image is reminiscent of a classic album cover, with a focus on the subject and a dramatic lighting effect.

The image is a black and white portrait of a person with a distinctive hairstyle and makeup. The individual's face is the central focus of the image, with a bold, angular hairstyle that appears to be styled in a mohawk-like fashion. The makeup includes a bold, black line across the forehead, which is a signature style of David Bowie's. The eyes are accentuated with dark eyeliner, and the eyebrows are arched, adding to the dramatic look. The person's skin tone is not clearly visible due to the monochromatic nature of the image. The background is dark, which contrasts with the subject and makes the portrait stand out. There are no discernible texts or additional objects in the image. Wow super interesting cards.

Firstly you think he is too far from you in mental awareness; thing is he is actualy accutely aware of your spiritual nature; that you think he'll never understand. And it makes him ravenous when he focuses on it. You appreciate him as a practical male with potential to be a good father but wish you did "know him better."

What he doesn't like is thinks you try and be the boss in a relationship (Miss Always Right) but you don't like that he expects an equal not a boss.

You both ultimately want a balance but you will not show him respect you don't feel.

The consequence card is that you need to make a deal with a dragon ie leave it to lay or fix it to a common statement IE a legal BOY FRIEND monogamy and all the jazz,

At the end of the day you would make wonderful parents which makes you glow with the thought like a woman crown in sparks of starlight, young souls the empress and what that ego invokes in him is pure animal lust the kind only a gentleman would save for the bedroom

Good thing he is a gentleman no?

Also... You are a beauty incomparable in his sight. absolute 9/10

Only a point away from a smile in his direction

Good luck with the man.

Show him the respect he deserves for scent of wisdom you release something not many men admit to notice but he does, silently, and which you commonly call ignorance.

Don't lead him on tho lol

The image displays a astrological chart with various symbols and numbers arranged in a circular pattern. The chart is divided into 12 sections, each marked with a number and a symbol, representing different zodiac signs. The zodiac signs are arranged in a clockwise direction around the chart.

Starting from the top, the first section is marked with the number 1, followed by the symbol for the Sun, which is a circle with a line through it. The second section has the number 2, and the symbol for the Moon, which is a circle with a line through it. The third section has the number 3, and the symbol for the Ascendant, which is a circle with a line through it. The fourth section has the number 4, and the symbol for the Midheaven, which is a circle with a line through it. The fifth section has the number 5, and the symbol for the South Node, which is a circle with a line through it. The sixth section has the number 6, and the symbol for the North Node, which is a circle with a line through it. The seventh section has the number 7, and the symbol for the Ascendant, which is a circle with a line through it. The eighth section has the number 8, and the symbol for the Midheaven, which is a circle with a line through it. The ninth section has the number 9, and the symbol for the South Node, which is a circle with a line through it. The tenth section has the number 10, and the symbol for the North Node, which is a circle with a line through it. The eleventh section has the number 11, and the symbol for the Ascendant, which is a circle with a line through it. The twelfth section has the number 12, and the symbol for the Midheaven, which is a circle with a line through it.

The chart also includes a section for the Moon's phase, which is marked with the number 12, and the symbol for the Moon's phase, which is a circle with a line through it. The chart also includes a section for the Sun's phase, which is marked with the number 13, and the symbol for the Sun's phase, which is a circle with a line through it.

The chart is set against a black background with white text and numbers, and the zodiac signs are arranged in a clockwise direction around the chart. The numbers and symbols are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with each section corresponding to a specific zodiac sign. The chart appears to be a representation of a zodiacal chart, which is a type of astrological chart used to predict the future based on the positions of celestial bodies at the time of birth.

The Sun, signifying his desire, exalts Venus, which represents your sexuality. This shows he was strongly drawn to you on a physical level. Yet that same Sun stands in detriment of the ruler of the Ascendant, your true self, suggesting he was less aligned with your personality.

His main significator, Jupiter, is ruled by the Moon, which reflects your emotions. This indicates he did have some genuine feeling for you and was responsive to your emotional presence.

Taken together, the chart shows he liked you, but his desire outweighed his deeper regard. The attraction was real—yet more rooted in passion than in appreciation of who you are as a person.

You need to laugh at your need for fulfilled desire, desire once satiated only grows stronger, it is maddening yes but you know better so play off a laugh at your own secret desperation.

You appear to be operating at a level of pure potential and under that is the fact you know what you want.

On a logical level you are drawn to obfuscate truth for beauty, we all are but you definitely are. When you sleep you see a light that makes sense although nothing it lights, does. The impulse is there but the returns are hidden in scars. And you know you Need to heal but Need is the mother of Invention, so its not just about patching the scars its about learning from them. Boundaries make diplomacy.

The silence is you can see it all fine as it plays out before you.

But don't forget to mark it with wit.

I'll probably have limited time, so let's start with 5 readings and we'll see if there's time for more or not

Not appropriate for horary:

- >General life-purpose or "tell me everything" questions
- >Health, legal, or financial matters requiring professional advice
- >Repeatedly asking the same question
- >Questions about third parties without meaningful connection

Oh yeah I have an update from a question I asked about why a chick ghosted me, you said she wanted sexy time with someone else and not me, she did get around to messaging me back, only really nice things she knows I like, it for for two days but she kept her promise of not ghosting me so I feel better about moving on from all that.

There is a lot of interest, especially of a sexual nature. They're holding back from acting on it due to some sort of indecision. That may be them overthinking, or maybe there are other contenders. Nevertheless, "m" is attracted to you and this either spurred on quickly or if you two do decide to act on it, it'd develop rapidly.

I trust your reading abilities fren. Yes, I'm uncertain about my future and thus, why I asked. I have a few friends there who I enjoy working with, so it could be me as the 6 of Wands relating to them. Could I ask what kind of sexual abuse happened to me as a child, and if my mother played a role in it? I am asking because I have severe dissociative amnesia, and my mother is dead, so obviously asking her is out of the question.

My hints something happened:

- >Began obsessively masturbating at 6 years old
- >Knew words like "sex", for example, would ask my dolls if they wanted to have sex with me
- >Would mistake feelings of anxiety for feelings of sexual arousal well into adulthood
- >Would freak out if anyone so much as wanted to look under my shirt well into my teen years, even doctors

My hints my mom may have been hiding something:

- >I got caught several times but my mom never said anything to me, even if someone told her about it
- >She allowed an adult man to be my 16 year old sister's live in boyfriend
- >Would sometimes say odd things to me, like ask me "big how?" when I said my cat was getting so big at 11 or say it's weird to suggest we get in bed and lay in it naked when all I suggested was I sleep with her when I was 10
- >Weirdest thing I remember her saying though was saying "sounds like someone's having fun!" when she caught me masturbating at age 6

If I think too hard about these things, my memory quickly gets suppressed and I have trouble recalling what I was just thinking about. Please help. I hope this is a meaningful enough connection to excuse the third party query.

Considering the query, it's not the easiest for me to discern fully. I'll go ahead and say that if M does have interest in other girls; people, then it's likely just a mental thing where they're saying to themselves "she's cute" but there isn't any passion or emotion behind it. Pretty much just observing the landscape and its' inhabitants.

Venus, showing her sexuality, is strong in her own dignities and focused on herself. She's also in the fall of the ascendant ruler, which doesn't support a romantic turn here.

Jupiter, ruler of the 7th, is in the Moon's sign (Moon stands for your feelings) and is in minor dignity of Mercury, your main significator. That shows warmth and goodwill toward you, but more in a friendly way than a romantic one.

The image displays a celestial chart with a black background and white text and symbols. The chart is divided into 12 sections, each representing a different zodiac sign, and a central circle with the zodiac signs and their corresponding positions. The zodiac signs are arranged in a clockwise direction around the central circle.

At the top of the chart, there is a section labeled "1°" which is likely indicating the first degree of the zodiac. Below this, the chart continues with the zodiac signs arranged in a clockwise direction, each sign marked with its position and name. The signs are numbered from 1 to 12, with the zodiac signs being the most prominent.

The chart also includes various symbols and notations, such as "°" for degrees, "′" for hours, "″" for minutes, and "″" for seconds. These symbols are used to represent the positions of the zodiac signs in the sky.

The image is a digital representation of a celestial chart, commonly used in astrology to determine a person's astrological birth chart. The chart is a representation of the zodiac signs and their positions in the sky, which can be used to understand a person's personality traits, strengths, and weaknesses, as well as their potential for success and challenges.

This chart is tricky. There are two points of contact, and the receptions aren't bad. First, the Moon, your cosignificator, is applying to the antiscion of Jupiter, ruler of the descendant, her significator. The Moon is in Jupiter's exile, but Jupiter is ruled by the Moon. With Jupiter retrograde, it looks like she might reach back to you. Second, Venus, her cosignificator, is applying to Mercury, which is about to turn retrograde. Here, Mercury is the one going back, and Venus is in its exile.

There's will and maybe a grudge on both sides. Contact is likely, but who reaches out first is unclear - the chart supports either scenario equally.

The thing is, I love her very much. That said, while I want to be with her again, I also know that it may turn out to be like it was before in which she casts me away after she has some discontent or gripe. She's ruined the relationship I built with her kids who I came to care about. I miss her, yet I know the good and bad that comes with her, and that's where my hesitation lies.

Also, I told her I'd leave her alone and not bug her at all, which has made me not attempt to reach out at all.

>Mercury Retrograde

I didn't realize that it was beginning until earlier today actually. There was the thought in my head recently of "it should be happening again sometime soon", but the impetus to look it up was delayed.

>There's will

Other readings have denoted that under the massive amount of negative sentiment, that she does still love me deep down.

>maybe a grudge on both sides

Like I had said, I know the bad that comes with her. I'm not pleased that she was unwilling to let me love her as I was doing. However, it did spur movement and growth. Spite and bitterness that accumulated towards me was unable to be let go or resolved even though I was willing to support her in ways I hadn't before. The aforementioned growth wasn't quick enough for her it seems.

Anyways, aside from the feedback I'm sharing, thank you astro_logic. Let me know if you'd like a query answered in return.

The only one I can think of is an asian girl who I've never really talked to but had a reading done about them to see if they were possibly into me. If not them, I'm unsure of who. I'll try to be aware amidst the chaos which is the workplace.

Mercury and Sun, showing you and your sexuality, are in Pisces, ruled by Jupiter. But Venus, her cosignificator, standing for her sexuality, dislikes Mercury, which isn't good for romance. Jupiter, her main significator, is in Moon's sign, so there's some emotional connection (Moon stands for your emotions), but it might not be enough for a real relationship weighted against Venus' dislike.

The Moon is in Jupiter's exile and conjunct Aldebaran, a star of new beginnings, suggesting you're thinking it's best to move on despite your strong feelings.

The image displays a celestial chart with various astrological symbols and numbers arranged in a circular pattern. The chart is divided into 12 sections, each representing a different zodiac sign, and each section is marked with a number corresponding to the sign. The zodiac signs are labeled from Aries to Pisces, with each sign represented by a distinct symbol.

The chart is set against a dark background, which contrasts with the white text and symbols, making them stand out. The text is arranged in a grid-like pattern, with each row representing a different zodiac sign and each column representing a different sign within that zodiac. The numbers in the chart are also white, and they are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with each row representing a different zodiac sign and each column representing a different sign within that zodiac.

The chart appears to be a representation of a zodiac wheel, which is a common tool used in astrology to represent the positions of the planets and their influence on the individual. The numbers and symbols are arranged in a way that suggests a progression from the top to the bottom of the chart, with each row representing a different zodiac sign and each column representing a different sign within that zodiac.

The image is a digital rendering, and the style of the image is clean and modern, with a focus on clarity and readability. The overall impression is that of a professional astrological chart, likely used for personal or professional purposes related to astrology.

I'm taking the ruler of the descendant, Mars, to represent D specifically, since this is the person who is the focus of the question. To judge whether he's a good fit, we look at receptions.

You're signified by Venus, ruler of the ascendant. Venus is in Pisces, where she's in Mars' triplicity. That's a mild, supportive reception, closer to friendship and goodwill than strong romantic pull.

Mars itself doesn't receive Venus strongly, so on a personal level he's not especially invested. But the Sun, which shows his sexuality, exalts Venus. So physically or sexually, there's clear attraction toward you.

The complication is that Mars is in the Sun's exile. That suggests an internal split in him. He desires you, but at the same time feels conflicted about that desire, as if part of him rejects what another part wants.

His planet, Mars, is in Aquarius. This is a quiet, detached, and humane sign rather than a passionate one. In Aquarius, Mars has no dignities of Venus, and Venus signifies you as ruler of the Ascendant. This suggests he does not speak much about you. When he does, it is likely polite and measured, culturally appropriate, but not especially warm or complimentary.

past. Generally picking fights with criticism or contradictions. Right now, A has a sense of giving up or is having a breakdown in the midst of trying to recover from these past experiences between you two. There is a lot of thinking/rationalizing as to why the dynamic between you both should be mended. Luckily it seems that emotions and compassion will prevail with some time. More time is needed for old wounds to heal.

This may show up around the summertime. Hope this helps

The image depicts a close-up view of a rhinoceros's head and neck against a blurred background that suggests a natural environment, possibly a zoo or wildlife park. The rhinoceros's skin is a light brown color, and it has a prominent hump on its back. The rhinoceros's eyes are open, and it appears to be looking directly at the camera. Perched on the rhinoceros's nose is a small, dark-colored bird, which is facing the camera. The bird has a black beak and is perched on the rhinoceros's nostril, which is a distinctive feature of this species. The background is out of focus, but it appears to be a sandy or dusty terrain, possibly a dirt path or a plain. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the interaction between the bird and the rhinoceros.

the fool, page of pentacles, the lovers, the devil plenty of strong energy here with all this major arcana. you'll finally be feeling good enough to put yourself out there in earnest. i don't think you're gonna be strictly looking to do an intense immediate committal to anyone, but rather you just wanna meet people and see what happens. test the water of compatibility, so to speak... and then all of this intention gets blown out of the water when you meet someone who totally knocks your socks off, like, this person feels perfect to you in every which way. at first you do try to be normal about the matter, but you two just get far too intoxicated by one another and this escalates from a healthy new relationship, to you guys spending an abnormal amount of time together, to kind of leaning into codependency. the sex being awesome probably doesn't help. so i mean, if that's what you're into, then awesome, but just keep your wits about you since these types of relationships can go downhill fast.

thanks for reading :)

The image is a candid photograph taken outdoors during daylight. In the foreground, there is a person sitting on a red and orange object, which appears to be a toy or a piece of equipment. The person is wearing a white shirt and dark pants. Behind the person, there is a playground with a blue slide and a red swing set. The ground is covered with dirt and there are a few scattered pieces of trash. In the background, there is a white wall with a small plaque or sign on it. The sky is overcast, and there are trees with green leaves visible in the background. The image has a candid and informal feel, capturing a moment in a public space.

There are no cards of pentacles but the first card is the emperor which is positive however you might run into a lot of imbalances or contracts that are imbalanced or illegal things or issues with legalities and there might be a lot of competition and you will have to really fight for your venture and fight against others for your venture but you could totally take control with your intellect in your direction and your drive and your emperor like qualities.... The image is a digital composite featuring a basketball player in the foreground and a depiction of Earth in the background. The player is wearing a blue and yellow basketball uniform with the name "Curry" and the number "30" printed on the back. He is in the act of shooting a basketball, with his arm extended upwards and the basketball just above his head. The player's stance suggests he is in mid-air, with his left arm raised and his right arm extended, preparing to release the ball.

In the background, there is a depiction of Earth, which is shown in a realistic style with a blue and white color palette. The Earth is shown from a perspective that looks down upon it, with the curvature of the Earth visible. The sky is dark, suggesting it is nighttime or the Earth is at a significant distance from the viewer.

The image has a watermark that reads "@thefilms" in the lower right corner, indicating the source or creator of the image. The overall style of the image is humorous and artistic, combining elements of sports and space exploration.

I think a major in hospitality or some sort of community advocacy or some sort of counselling or psychology or art therapy or event planning or something like that that doesn't have like a very traditional super rigid and super controlling pathway which directly engages you with your community or gives you a sense of stability, you need like a very stable working environment and or these cards represent that you need to stabilise your emotions first and you seem to might be very disorganised and very anti authority and hate rigid systems of things such as college majors, might need a stable support first to back you. Or it doesn't matter as long as in the end you get a stable career or stable outcome. Just getting into a college provides tons of support resources you can exploit.

Strength rx moon king of swords

I think you can work on leaning into your intellect and approaching things from a very surgical standpoint a very cold or intellectual lawyer doctor surgeon standpoint and you need to work on repleting your strength. If you do feel depleted you need to work on extinguishing any self-doubt you need to work on any insecurities, you need to regain your strength and possibly regain it through a small actions and momentum or you know whatever else and you need to work on approaching your fears and addressing your fears and paranoia and being willing to go out into the night, even though you don't know what's out there, subconscious good hygiene is necessary

Outcome

Wheel of fortune, temperance, 5 of wands

Lots of energy, good chemistry and things up in the air to chance and the outcome of your own approach to the situation.

Energies are going to be wild you are going to have a great time together and click very well, but the final outcome really comes depending on how you perform during the date and how she reacts to it. But in all, do it man, she is receptive, she will love the idea and worst you are going to have a ton of fun together

I think I'm misinterpreting them wanting me to be in better health or in a better situation as something else, and I guess it feels unreal sometimes or hard to accept how lucky I am, I feel like I'm in a fairytale romance with how good things are and over and over again through reads or life I only get confirmation that it really just is as good as it seems and not too good to be true. The image is a close-up photograph of a person wearing a clown makeup and costume. The individual has pink hair styled in a curly fashion and is wearing a white face paint with black dots, resembling a clown's makeup. The person is also wearing a dress with a pattern of colorful eggs and flowers on a blue background. The dress has a ruffled collar and cuffs, and the person is wearing a yellow headband with a bow. The person's hands are raised, with one hand touching their face and the other hand in a gesture that could be interpreted as a playful or affectionate gesture. The background is a solid purple color, which contrasts with the colorful elements of the person's costume. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is artistic and seems to be intended for a fashion or entertainment context, possibly for a photoshoot or a performance.

Below the title, a list of angel numbers is presented in a smaller font size, with each number followed by a brief description in black text. The numbers are arranged in a grid format, with the numbers 11, 222, 333, 444, 555, 666, 777, 888, 999, and 777, each followed by a corresponding number and a statement. The statements are in a smaller font size and are not as prominent as the numbers. At the bottom of the image, there is a watermark that reads "@THEMANTRACO" in black text. The overall style of the image is simple and clean, with a focus on conveying information about angel numbers.

Today I was almost scammed online. When I first messaged him it was 1:11 and I remember later on when chatting with him it was 2:22. I don't look for "angel" numbers but sometimes I just notice them and two in a row seems like quite the coincidence. I used to think "angel" numbers were good luck but I think they may actually be satanic. I'm agnostic on the existence of God, an afterlife, LOA or any sort of non naturalistic phenomenon but I have definitely noticed some coincidences.

Was I supposed to accept the free crypto he was offering me? It had to have been stolen but I would have gotten free money but I didn't want to get arrested and it seemed immoral since it had to have been "dirty" based on what grok told me and him refusing to answer my simple questions. Also a couple thousand dollars is nice but probably won't make a difference in where I am in life in a few years

I was hoping or maybe even expecting to receive some sort of blessing soon based on me trying to attract it by experimenting with loa and other things like it in the past. I've never been offered so much free money in the past and I almost gave him my crypto address I had just made luckily I pondered it first and then ended up blocking him instead

I know and I don't look for them, I'm not checking for times or license plates when I "expect" them I just randomly happen to see them. They do seem pretty random today was one of the only times I've seen one at a specific notable incident but I guess there's been a few others but those weren't obvious scams.

[53 / 3]The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a distinctive hairstyle and a bow on her head. She has purple hair and is wearing a white kimono with red accents. The character is seated in a meditative pose, with her hands resting gently on her knees and her eyes closed, suggesting a moment of tranquility or contemplation. The background is a blend of green and white, with a pattern of wavy lines and a few small, dark, circular shapes that could be interpreted as stars or other celestial objects. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of traditional Japanese art, with a focus on the character's serene expression and the natural elements surrounding her.

I have been in a reflective phase for a long time and have been spending a lot of time just with my inner monologue. I have deprived myself of all social media except for a few youtube videos and lurking imageboard sometimes, and the only people I converse with in real life are my family members. I didn't mean for this to happen.

Now I find it difficult to think about some concepts in my head. I wonder if Buddhists experience this and if it bothers them. It's like trading joy, excitement, some of your energy and creativity for peace, purity, less intrusive thoughts and ocd rituals, less irony, and the ability to see through a lot of bullshit. Living slower than most people is calming, but it also has its drawbacks.

It's your nervous system, your thinking, becoming addicted to holy wisdom, and otherwise learning to pick up on it just barely; your very unconscious will sacrifice your less valued experiences just to try and turn down the volume on your own experiences so that you can begin to pick up on the experiences of others. There's might in the spirit that material cannot replicate, a boundless source of joy and inspiration unmatched. But even that is heavily guarded; most don't progress on past that stage you're at because the enemies intelligent enough to know of this route use all sorts of rituals to curse all those that would transverse it except them and sometimes their kind. That's one of the reasons those meditators of Buddhist practices who spent the most years on the "one hand clapping all by itself", "2 is 1" or whatever other bullshit they do (you know what I'm talking about) somewhat helps them to achieve divine sparks of bliss and peace; their unconscious begin to navigate the VAST bullshit evil and selfish rituals of the universes and elsewhere that people and civilizations will play on you day and night. Not that many of them so fervently but entirely too many.

it def depends. Some visualization techniques enhance as do open monitoring techniques. focused mediation seems to have no correlation or non correlation with creative thinking which makes sense. Your essentially training your mind to suppress random thoughts and images which are the foundation of creativity. Which is why i cut focused and zazen meditation out of my practice actually I think it supresses you.

instead I practice jung's active imagination technique, and 'just sitting there' meditation where i just sit in the position and try to just notice things without consciously deciding to think up thoughts just watching the thoughts.

Sometimes i wonder if the popularity of certain types of meditation is actually a psyop to stunt people. Like in touhou 10 desires where buddhism was a psyop to pacify normies while the rulers studied magic

This is not meditation.

Meditation is training the mind to focus 1st on a single thing like a mantra or the breath. Then (after weeks or months of regular practice) when mind naturally focuses and rests on single point. You will experience samadhi, aka calm abiding. A state of awareness with out mental chatter.

That is the beginning of true practice.

once one is able to manifest the spiritual light, these things become very clear there's pretty much a 0% chance someone who has only put in weeks or a few months of practice has been able to condition himself sufficiently for this to manifest make no mistake, it is very much a matter of conditioning

I'm pretty seriously into Buddhism and I am very suspicious of Thicht Nacht Han due to how I see his work being used in mental hospitals.

Skillful means is teaching based on the others' awareness, which is why people testify of the Thai Forest Tradition that they can read minds. That's in order to teach the Dharma.

So you say, I will use skillful means on worldly people, I will teach them to appreciate the everyday things of life. But when a psychiatrist takes that to mean, appreciate these pills, I wonder how skillful a guy like that really is.

that is a video of Lucifer demonstrating his knowledge of the Logos. recall how in most all creation myths, the first belief existed, then the first thought, then the first spoken word, then the first light, then the creation of all inert matter. the first thought was spoken using the Logos, the divine language, which was motivated by the first belief.

in khaotic magic (not that faggy brit chaos shit), it relies on that fundamental aspect. compared to other systems which rely on appeasing a diety like satan, or some sort of magic system derived from whatever came *after* the Logos. by definition, the khaos is the place from which all things are formed, not a place of tempest and storms. since we can only know a tiny fraction of the Logos, from which all languages are derived, we can only understand khaotics to a limited degree, and therefore have limited results.

as with many magic systems, belief is the axiom. some state that explicitly, like voodoo, which if they person believes the curse enough, they in fact do die. is that cause by belief induced stress? often times, yes, but also just as often the peer pressure belief. I did the dictiomancy/cubomancy thread to good results that way, and am improving it to better pump the existing beliefs of the querent I am performing a reading for, but also to install some temporary, yet plausible, beliefs in them during the read.

what makes metakhaotics interesting is that I personally do not need to belive in any of it- they do. so long as the person being read during the cubomancy session believes it all enough, emphasized by my pitter patter and chitter chatter routine, then it tends to get better results, objectively.

that is what is important- objectively. my little system has no room for interpretation, sanitized the inputs of calculation noise, and provides an objective view of the read from the querent to see no hidden bullshit to change the outcome of the read. I also have to make use of their semiotic preload, but hey, whatever. this is a fuckin blog post as it is. if you want to know more, hit me up and we can chat.

the whole point of chaos magick (sissy shit), and metakhaotics (for the sophisticated person) is to offload the need for belief from the person performing the metakhaotic work to the believers. I don't need to believe in any of their magic systems because, by definition, the khaos is the primordial matter from which all things have flowed and will flow. what shape the khaos takes as it flows into reality is based on the thoughts of the persons extracting from it. if an mechanically inclined person has thoughts through his whole life to make a street racing hot rod, then at some point, his accumulated thoughts will have extracted some amount from the khaos and converted it into thoughts, words, and actions. whether or not he is good at being a mechanic and designing a good car is not the concern of the khaos. sure, the mechanic cannot extract from the khaos as if it is some sort of magic pool, but that it the ultimate source of all things in form of thought and matter.

blah blah blah. if you want to chat about it, I'll keep the thread up. the whole point of khaotics is that you don't have to believe, and it is far better if you believe in nothing, leaving that up to the other people.

The image depicts a black hole in space, surrounded by a swirling, dark space filled with stars and nebulae. The black hole is the central focus of the image, with a bright, white ring of light emanating from its center. This light is likely the light of a star that has been captured by the black hole's gravity, creating a bright ring around the black hole. The background is a deep blue, with a hint of white stars and nebulae scattered throughout. The image is a digital rendering, and the style is realistic with a focus on the black hole and its immediate surroundings. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image.

that's pretty much it. the dictionary I am using is totally biased towards certain thoughts. there are several pages of definitions about truth, fidelity, stuff like that all due to sequencing by letter and all the root word stuff. not so many definitions about other stuff like socks... seems that just wasn't important to them.

it is sort of like a magic 8 ball, except instead of being super vague, there is a variety of sort of vague and maybe relevant to the question stuff. the whole pitter patter stuff is typical stagecraft woo woo, but also to prevent noise in the signals like timestamps, dice throws, stuff like that which actually does cause fuckups like certain pages showing up way too often. the thing is, when people are having a hard time making a decision, if you force them into it by coin tossing them into a decision, heads or tails, and they agree to whatever happens, you can cover the coin after catching it and ask them which one they want more. they've already made the decision, the coin toss forced them, at that last moment, to admit they wanted one choice more than the other, forcing them to stop being a little bitch. similar little mental tricks if a person asks if their dead lover is happy, and they backfit the results into what they want, and I wash my hands of the whole thing.

brain placebo, but the hard part is getting a paragraph back from them about how relevant it was. one guy asked about if he would ever rekindle a flame, and he talked himself into the right decision to cut bait and move on. that's all this stuff is, forcing them into little mental trickfucks to get them to use their head. religions do the same, just much more complex.

I just remebered a scene from some Phil K Dick book. his character had gotten arrested and sent to the county mental ward on a hold because of some stuff he said to the police which they took as crazy. the psychologist told him that he had magic alcohol which had flowers dipped in it, along with a true story of some ol timer psychologist who used to do that, and the patient would believe in it, because the doctor said so, and then they cured themselves of their mental problems. the main character knew it was bullshit, did it anyway, and it fuckin worked.

there is a difference between believing the bullshit and deciding to play along with it for a little bit.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Spheres\_trilogy

Sloterdijk talks about how this is the basis for our entire social structure. magic circles and football stadiums are just places where we decide to believe in some arbitrary bullshit rules about some paint on the grass, a ball kicked through a goal, some points on a board, and money being betted out, alongside all the super hot sluts prancing around to show off. after that, they stop pretending, which is like a behaviorial placebo. just like seances, it didn't matter if a ghost actually showed up, if everyone was willing to tell each other that the emperor was wearing the finest silk gowns, then why not say fuck it and go along knowing it's bullshit just to see the results? sort of like a mental laxative. thanks for reading my blog post. fuck my fuckin life.

cool. thanks for that. I'll read up more on Mesmer. the first I read about him was set in a kook context. since having read Sloterdijk and how he points out that the "power of belief" is not necessarily something which people can use to overcome illness (sometimes), scale mountains (sometimes), etc... rather it is the power of what belief can do to people. fuck man, if you can get enough people to believe enough bullshit, you can get them to build spaceships and put bases on the moon. besides, it is either using the carrot/whip to motivate them, or paint fun time imagination picture in their heads about some cartoon nonsense to have them enlist in the military to get and get hamburgered by an illiterate goatfucker. it's like a prime mover with a universal adapter attached.

I think that was the angle Mesmer played. he probably believed a little bit of his own bullshit, but it was more important his patients did. man's gotta eat.

The moon is positioned centrally in the frame, casting a warm, reddish-orange glow that reflects off the dark, still water below. The reflection is so intense that it creates a mirror-like effect on the water's surface, enhancing the overall luminosity of the scene. The sky is dark, providing a stark contrast to the illuminated moon. There are no visible texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the image is a realistic photograph with a focus on capturing the natural beauty of the moon and the tranquil water.

When two eclipses are separated by a period of one Saros, they share a very similar geometry. The two eclipses occur at the same Lunar Node with the Moon at nearly the same distance from Earth and at the same time of year.

The image is a satellite image of a desert landscape. It shows a large, flat area with a few scattered points of interest. The most prominent feature is a large, dark, and rugged mountain range that dominates the center of the image. To the right of the mountain range, there is a smaller, lighter-colored mountain range.

The image is oriented with north at the top, and the top left corner has a yellow line indicating a boundary or a line of demarcation. The top right corner has a green line, which could be a water body or a boundary.

There are no texts or labels on the image, and the image is in color with a clear, high-resolution view of the terrain. The style of the image is typical of satellite imagery used for mapping or surveying purposes.

The image is a digital map with a focus on a specific area, likely a region within the United States, as indicated by the text "Texas" and "Southwest" on the map. The map is overlaid with a series of concentric circles, each representing a different time zone. The circles are colored differently, with the largest circle being purple and the smallest being yellow. The time zones are labeled with the names of cities and their corresponding time zones, such as "11:45 CDT" and "12:30 CDT," which are associated with the cities of Fort Worth, Dallas, and Austin, respectively.

The map also includes a legend on the right side, which provides a scale for the time zones. The legend is color-coded to match the colors of the circles, with the legend text being in white against a black background.

The map is oriented with north at the top, and the map's scale is indicated by the distance between the dots, which is marked in kilometers. The map is overlaid with a satellite image of the Earth, which is not visible in the image. The image is a digital representation of a map, likely used for navigation or planning purposes.

The image shows a close-up of a guitar with its fretboard and neck visible. The guitar has a dark wood finish and is adorned with white circular inlays on the fretboard. The neck of the guitar is also visible, with a series of frets and a tuning peg. The guitar is resting on a surface that appears to be a desk or table, with a few other objects scattered around.

In the background, there is a bookshelf filled with various books, some of which are spines facing outwards. The bookshelf is cluttered with books of different sizes and colors, suggesting a variety of subjects. The lighting in the room is bright, and the sun is shining through a window, casting shadows on the objects in the foreground. The style of the image is a candid, everyday photograph with a focus on the guitar, capturing a moment of stillness in a room with a personal touch. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image.

The image is a page from a book or article, featuring a text in English. The text is divided into paragraphs, and the content appears to be discussing the digital influence of a digital influencer named DuJuan, who is known for his symbolic authority and media ecosystems. The text discusses DuJuan's articles and the way they are received, with a focus on the way he connects and backtracks online. It also mentions the influence of DuJuan's articles on various languages and cultures, including Russian, Chinese, and Ukrainian.

The text is written in a formal and academic style, with references to various sources and theories, such as the works of Marie Laurette and DuJuan Bozaila. The text is dense with information, and the paragraphs are organized in a way that allows for easy reading and comprehension. The text is in a larger font size compared to the surrounding text, which helps to distinguish it as the main subject of the page.

The image does not contain any images or graphics, and the background is plain white, which helps to focus the reader's attention on the text. The text is in a standard font, and the overall layout is clean and organized, making it easy to follow the flow of the text.

The image is a text excerpt from a publication or article, likely a blog post or an article from a magazine or newspaper, as indicated by the formal and structured layout typical of such content. The text is in English and is divided into paragraphs, with the first paragraph beginning with the title "Protestant magic today." The text discusses the historical and cultural significance of Protestant magic in Ireland, particularly focusing on the revival of Protestantism in the country.

The text mentions that Protestantism has been a significant influence on Irish culture, particularly in the realm of magic. It explains that Protestantism has been intertwined with Irish national identity, and the revival of Protestantism has been a significant cultural event in Ireland. The text also touches on the influence of Protestantism on Irish literature, particularly in the form of literary gifts and the product of a class of Irish Protestants.

The text discusses the nature of Protestant magic, stating that it is not inherently wrong but rather a product of a class of Irish Protestants who have a deep understanding of their identity and culture. It also mentions that Protestant ideas of Victorian Protestants have deeply shaped many people's identity and self-understanding. The text concludes by emphasizing the importance of understanding the culture of the country and its origins to help understand the complex nature of Irish religion and language.

The image is a snapshot of a written piece, and the text is presented in a way that is typical of a blog post or an article, with a clear and organized structure that allows the reader to follow the argument and the points made. The text is in a standard font and is presented in a way that is easy to read and understand, which is typical for a blog post or article intended for a general audience.

The image displays a book cover with a dark background. The title of the book is "THE GOLDEN AGE OF CHARTERS" in large, white, serif font. Below the title, the subtitle "The Teachings of a Mystery School and the Eternal Feminine" is written in smaller, white, sans-serif font. The author's name, "Rene M. Querido," is presented in white, uppercase letters at the bottom of the cover.

The central visual element of the cover is a photograph of a Gothic-style cathedral with a rose window. The photograph is taken from a low angle, looking up at the building, which is rendered in a realistic style. The cathedral's intricate details and the rose window are the most prominent features in the image. The photograph is framed by a decorative border that includes a pattern of small, ornate elements. The overall style of the image is photographic and appears to be a promotional or informational cover for the book.

In the center of the collage, there is a text that reads: "David Shelby, February 8, 2004, 4:05 PM" followed by a quote from the book "The Birth of the Heavenly Sophia" by David Shelby. The quote reads: "If through living an anthropopohyphaly with our hearts and minds, it will seem to us not only to through the meaning of anthropopohyphaly, but also to the anthropopohyphaly of our hearts and minds, then Anthropopohyphaly itself increasingly appears to us as a living being. And then we are ourselves, I am your true human nature."

The style of the image is a combination of collage and photograph, with the text and images presented in a way that suggests a discussion or presentation of the quote. The overall tone of the image is serious and academic, with a focus on the philosophical and theological implications of the quote.

The image is a text excerpt from a book or article, likely from the 1920s, as indicated by the date "17th June 1923" at the top of the page. The text is in English and discusses the concept of anthropomorphism, which is the attribution of human qualities to non-human entities. The author, Rudolf Steiner, is mentioned as the one who first introduced the concept of anthropomorphism.

The text is divided into two main sections. The first section discusses the concept of anthropomorphism and its implications, while the second section delves into the philosophical and theological aspects of the concept. The text is written in a formal and academic style, with references to various works and authors, such as Vasilii Solovyov, Pavel Florovsky, and Sergei Bulgakov.

The text is structured in a way that follows a logical flow, starting with the introduction of the concept of anthropomorphism and its implications, followed by a discussion of the philosophical and theological aspects of the concept, and finally, a conclusion that ties the discussion back to the question of the existence of a mysterious being named Sophia within the context of the spiritual.

The visual clues in the image, such as the text formatting, the use of quotation marks, and the reference to works by other authors, support the conclusion that this is a scholarly or academic text. The text is dense with information, and the use of italics and bold typeface for emphasis further indicates its formal nature.

The text is divided into paragraphs, and the content is dense with information, suggesting a scholarly or academic discussion.

The text is written in a formal and academic style, with references to various works and authors, such as "Vladimir Solovyov," "The Sophy," "The Three Meetings," and "The Wisdom of Solomon." The text also includes citations from works like "The Three Principles of Divine Being," "Mysticism," and "The Sophy."

The text appears to be discussing the philosophical and theological aspects of the "Sophy," which is a term that seems to be a combination of "Sophia" and "Sophy." The text seems to be analyzing the philosophical and theological aspects of the "Sophy" in relation to the works of Solovyov and other authors.

The text is dense with information, and the references to works and authors suggest that the discussion is deeply rooted in the philosophical and theological traditions of the "Sophy." The text is likely from a scholarly or academic context, as it discusses the philosophical and theological aspects of the "Sophy" in depth.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a stylized design. At the center, there is a large, ornate, circular emblem with a central triangle and a smaller triangle within it. The central triangle is outlined in a bold, serif font, while the smaller triangle is outlined in a smaller, sans-serif font. Above the central triangle, there is a stylized, stylus-like symbol that resembles a stylized letter 'J' or 'Y'.

Surrounding the central emblem, there are various elements that appear to be symbolic or decorative. To the left of the emblem, there is a stylized rose with a star-like outline, and to the right, there is a stylized figure holding a staff. The figure is depicted in a classical style, wearing a long robe and a hat. The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the black outlines of the design elements.

The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century illustration, with a focus on symbolism and decorative elements. The image does not contain any text.

What do you make out of all the Early Church (first five centuries or so) heresy/orthodoxy nonsense. Gnosticism, arrianism, modalism etc like, perhaps gnosticism vs orthodoxy was the most substantial and consequential but overall it just reads to me like the most educated men of their time fighting each other to death even and with politics involved over mostly just semantics.

Doesn't sit right, there must be something else to it. Like it's foundational for some esoteric stuff, systems of magic or whatever behind the scenes.

That's the entirely wrong question to ask someone with depression/anxiety, because the answer changes based on the day. When I get an idea or feel inspired, that day I usually have no doubts. When I'm struggling, nothing BUT doubts. I mean, I had doubts about returning to church and finding faith in Christ, at least at first. I have doubts that God could ever give me the tools or ability to accomplish anything, not because He's incapable, but because I'm such a retard. I told God I'd do anything He asked of me but now I feel like He's never asked anything of me because He knows I'm not capable, and what I thought was divine inspiration was me being a fool. Other days I wonder if I haven't accomplished anything yet because it'll happen on His time, but sometimes I think nothing's happened because I'm a 40 year old man and it's too late for me to learn anything.

The image shows a close-up of a person's hand holding a small, intricately designed figurine. The figurine is a miniature representation of a person, wearing a red and gold outfit with a feathered headdress. The person's face is not visible, and the focus is on the hand and the figurine. The hand is adorned with a gold-colored ring and a small, round, gold-colored pendant with a depiction of a bird. The background is blurred, suggesting an outdoor setting with dry leaves and a natural, earthy tone. The text "HODIE" is written on the figurine, which is attached to a chain. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a shallow depth of field, which blurs the background while keeping the hand and the figurine in sharp focus.

The image is a text document with a pale yellow background and black text. The text is divided into two columns, with the left column containing the beginning of the text and the right column containing the end of the text. The text is written in a formal and academic style, with a mix of paragraphs and sentences.

The text discusses the concept of participation, which is central to the document. It mentions the historical context of participation in the Church Fathers and the Scholastics, and how understanding human knowledge as a participation in divine knowledge is a key aspect of the Christian tradition. The text also touches on the concept of participation in the divine, which is not just about the perfect, but also about the perfecting of the divine.

The text also discusses the concept of participation in the divine, which is not just about the perfect, but also about the perfecting of the divine. It mentions the medieval doctrine of the transcendent complete the picture, being, truth, goodness, and beauty as concretions of what is true, good, and ultimately divine. It also discusses the idea of participation in the divine as a way to be enlightened, to be enlightened about the divine, and to be enlightened about something other to God.

The text concludes with a statement that the enlightened's separation of fact and virtue is not progress, it is a mistake. The text ends with a quote from the Enlightenment's philosopher, David Hume, which is a direct quote from the text.

The image is a scanned document, and the text is in English. The document is likely a scholarly or academic paper, given the formal and academic tone of the text.

The user "@duelos_33" is asking how the writings of Evelo have affected their own understanding of Christianity. The tweet includes a list of responses to this question, with the first response being "No he didn't cause I think he doesn't understand Christ." The third response is "But this is the Church's aspect that someone can attack. When it comes to Christ, Evelo doesn't understand shit." The fourth response is "Evelo thinks Christ is basically the opposite of a solar god and a deity working towards heroic values. But Christ is every bit of this and more. His sacrifice is the embodiment of sovereignty and him never surrendering in front of the enemy. He is the embodiment of the divine and the divine is the embodiment of the divine. He gave a model to follow as a heroic model using to sacrifice everything for those He loves." The fifth response is "Such noble character is what led to the creation of a neighborhood that Evelo speaks favourably about, not realizing that it is a Christian already in Christ." The sixth response is "Very interesting insight. Although, I'm pretty sure he saw knighthood as a continuation of ancient Germanic warrior culture, not Christianity." The seventh response is "My impression is that Julius Evelo never really gave Christianity any serious consideration, but he had to react to the Christian worldview. The user mentions that the starting point of problems in philosophy of religion is the assumption of "the traditional view of God." The user then clarifies that this just means those views they heard growing up, and since they are ignorant of history, they don't know there are other options. The tweet was posted on February 20, 2020, at 8:20 PM, and has 1,073 views. The tweet is in a conversational tone and is part of a larger conversation about the philosophical and theological perspectives on God.

The image is a dark-colored photograph with a white background. It contains text in a serif font, which is predominantly blue and white. The text is divided into two columns, with the left column being in a larger font size and the right column being in a smaller font size. The text discusses the historical context of Christianity in relation to the Roman Empire, particularly focusing on the influence of Christianity on the Roman Empire's religious practices.

The text begins with a statement that highlights the advantage of the universalist tendencies of the Roman Empire for Christianity, which allowed for the spread of the Christian faith. It then mentions that Christianity gradually declined in the Roman Empire due to the influence of the Roman Catholic Church, which was more concerned with maintaining its own power and prestige. The text then discusses the concept of "Christianity" as a "converted" Western man, which is contrasted with the "converted" Eastern man. The text also mentions that Christianity was not about a "practical paganism" but rather a "mystical and cultural mish-mash" that was a result of a "mutual stalling."

The text concludes by stating that the "warrior-races of Europe" were not about "beat their swords into plowshares" but rather about "beating their swords into plowshares" and that the "link to the sacred had been appropriated by the Catholic Church." The text concludes with a reference to the "unacknowledged compromise" through which Christianity, despite its more peaceful name, slowly evolved into a more aggressive and warlike phenomenon that perhaps better suited the more volatile sensitivities of the Europeans themselves.

The image does not contain any images or graphics, and the text is the primary focus. The style of the image is informative and academic, with a focus on historical context and religious influence.

The image is a screenshot of a text, likely from a scholarly article or book, discussing the concept of the Byzantine Empire and its influence on Christianity. The text is presented in a dark background with a lighter blue highlight, which draws attention to the text's content.

The text is divided into two main sections. The first section, titled "Ironically," begins with the statement "Evelo admits that the entry of Christianity into the West enabled the Roman idea to rise to 'new heights.'" This suggests a historical context where Christianity's entry into the West was a catalyst for the rise of the Roman Empire. The second section, titled "The Byzantine Imperial Idea," continues the historical narrative by discussing the concept of the Byzantine Empire as a "high degree of traditional spirit," which is contrasted with the "Western Catholicism and Eastern Orthodox." This section emphasizes the unique characteristics of the Byzantine Empire, such as its emphasis on tradition and its role as a "traditional spirit" in contrast to the "Western Catholicism and Eastern Orthodox."

The text also includes a citation, "(p. 288)," which indicates that the information is from a specific source or work. The text concludes with a statement that "however, although Evelo can recognise within the Orthodox Church the traces of tradition he is fully aware that such matters were being advanced by people of an Eastern European background," suggesting a broader cultural and historical context beyond the Orthodox Church.

The image is a screenshot, which means it is a digital image of a printed page, and it is a screenshot of a text that is likely from a book or article. The text is in English, and the style of the image is typical of academic or scholarly publications, with a focus on clarity and readability.

The image is a screenshot of a text, likely from a digital publication or article, with a dark background and white text. The text is divided into two main sections. The first section, in a larger font size, provides a historical context about the Italian belief that the Christian tradition found expression through Western Catholicism. It mentions the success of employing three main strategies: the recitation of various extremist features of primitive Christianity, the organization of a ritual, dogmatic, and symbolic corpus beyond the mere mystical, a soteriological element, and the absorption and adaptation of doctrinal and organizational elements that were borrowed from the Roman world and from classical civilization in general.

The second section, in a smaller font size, provides a contrasting perspective on Catholicism, stating that although it is not "Traditional" in the way that thinkers such as Evelo, Guénon or Schönnemann employ the term, it nonetheless contains "Traditional" characteristics due to its cautious use of pre-Christian features. The text concludes with a quote from the text, which reads: "Although Catholicism is not 'Traditional' in the way that thinkers such as Evelo, Guénon or Schönnemann employ the term, it nonetheless contains 'Traditional' characteristics due to its cautious use of pre-Christian features." The image is a screenshot, and the text is in English. The style of the image is informational and academic, with a focus on conveying historical and philosophical perspectives on Catholicism.

The image is a dark-colored text with a blue highlight that reads "By analogy, if in every rational being the principle that decides what the body will do, how could one think that those who admitted to having authority only in matters of social and political concerns should not be subordinated to the Church, thus, the Church eventually disputed and regarded as tantamount to heresy and a persecution dictated by pride that doctrine of the divine nature and origin of reignty? It also came to regard the ruler as a mere layman equal to all other men before God and his Church, and a mere official invested by mortal beings with the power to rule over others in accordance with natural law, (pp. 289-90)."

The text appears to be discussing a philosophical or theological concept, as indicated by the use of the word "analogy" and the mention of "the principle that decides what the body will do." The text also references the Church, suggesting a connection between the Church and the concept of authority. The image is a screenshot of a text, likely from a book or article, discussing the historical context of the Germanic attempts to bring the political realm under the control of the Church. The text is in English and is divided into paragraphs, with the first paragraph beginning with "I." The text is formatted in a standard font, and the background is a dark color, which contrasts with the white text, making it easy to read. The text discusses the Roman idea of reviving the ancient "Germanic" or "Roman" idea, which was a direct North-origin migration into the area of Roman civilization. The Germanic element was determined to defend the imperial idea against the Church and restore to new life the formative values of the ancient Roman world. This is how the Holy Roman Empire and the feudal civilization arose, both of which represented the two last great traditional manifestations the West ever knew.

The text also mentions the Germanic stock who were so determined to wrestle political control from the Church, and the barbarian remnants of the old "Artic" and "North-Germanic" nations who were the representatives of the Germanic principle in its warrior aspect. The god Darmar-Thor was the slayer of Thrym and the god of the thunder-force, and the double hammer Mjöllnir was both a variation of the symbolic "Hyperborean battle-axe" and a sign of the thunder-force.

The text also discusses the Gēllinists' frequent use of the "race of the spirit," which is often linked to the Gēllinists' spiritual authority. The text mentions that while the Gēllinists were literally pumping with the mystical blood of those described in the Edda and thus compared to the priests of an imported religion centered on a degenerated "Apodistic" spirituality, their claim to a more sacred authority seems just.

The image is a snapshot of a text, and the text is a part of a larger narrative or discussion, likely from a scholarly or historical work. The text is dense with information, and the formatting and structure suggest that it is a part of a larger document or article. The text is in English, and the style of the text is formal and academic, which is typical for scholarly or historical texts.

The image is a text excerpt from a book or article, presented in a dark blue background with a white line dividing the text into two columns. The text is in English and discusses the historical context of the Roman Empire, specifically focusing on the influence of Roman imperialism and Christianity on the development of the Roman stock.

The text begins by mentioning the case of the invading German tribes under the direction of Alaric (410-418), which led to the construction of the Roman Empire. It then discusses the idea of Roman universalism and the Christian principle, which was a general aspect of affirmation of a supernatural order. The text mentions the creation of the highest Nordic-Germanic stocks, which contributed to the integration of ideas on a higher plane and the revitalization of a new form of what had often been materialized and particularized in the context of traditional races.

The text then delves into the concept of conversion, which was a more powerful and prepared tool for a revival of the imperial Roman idea. It mentions the example of a pope who would prostrate himself before the emperor, which was a clear indication that the Catholic priesthood was subservient. The text also discusses the feudal system, which was designed to express fidelity to the Emperor, and the fact that it allowed each individual to find his or her true nature.

The text concludes by discussing the last time in Western history when the quadripatriarch of society into serfs, merchant, warrior nobility, and representatives of spiritual authority, the clergy in the Guelph and the ascetic, Knightly orders in the Childebrune system, took form and affirmed itself in an almost spontaneous way. The text ends with the reference to the book "For the last time in Western history the quadripatriarch of society into serfs, merchant, warrior nobility, and representatives of spiritual authority, the clergy in the Guelph and the ascetic, Knightly orders in the Childebrune system, took form and affirmed itself in an almost spontaneous way." (p.296).

The image is a snapshot of a scholarly discussion, likely from a book or article, and it is important to note that the text is in English and the image is in black and white. The text is structured in a way that follows a logical flow, with each paragraph beginning with a colon and ending with a period, which is typical of academic or scholarly writing. The text is dense with information, and the use of italics and bold typeface for emphasis helps to highlight key points and concepts.

The image is a screenshot of a text, likely from a scholarly article or book, discussing the concept of the "Ghibelline fusion" between the imperial and the universal in the medieval period. The text is presented in a dark background with a white font, and the text is divided into two columns. The first column is in a larger font size and is titled "I have previously suggested that in the medieval imperial legend there are numerous elements that refer more or less directly to the idea of the supreme 'centre'—these elements, through various symbols, allude to a mysterious relationship between this centre and the universal authority and legitimacy of the Ghibelline emperor. The objects symbolizing intrinsic regality were entrusted to him and at times the motif of the hero. Who never died, and who had been brought to a mountain? or to a subterranean seat was applied to him. (p. 297-8.)"

The second column is smaller and contains a quote from the text, which reads:

"Emerging from this display of authority was the intense spirit of chivalry that we examined in Part 13. Ethics, morals, call them what you like—the knights had developed a system of values—much of it centred on the Grail mythos—that added a decidedly martial flavour to the more submissive and egalitarian nature of Christianity."

He is a highly polemical writer and a weak minded reader will just accept his exaggerations at face value. For instance in Revolt he deliberately contrasts the best examples of kingship against the worst examples of priesthood in order to force you to think about their relation. There are no traditional doctrines in which kingship is actually prior to priesthood, but the reader probably imagines the primordial tradition as no different from priesthood as we know it, i.e. distinct from temporal power, and that is who he is addressing.

In the Doctrine of Awakening he explains that the Buddhist teaching of anatta originally served a similar purpose, to shock the decadent metaphysicians of his day into attending to what it is in their direct experience that their doctrines had once clearly pointed out. Today also for many pandits atman is only a concept.

Light means intellect or awareness. The first created light would be the reflection of the solar ray on the surface of the primordial waters. The Prophet attained to that. When Saint Paul writes that he was rapt to the third heaven, this also connotes vision of the divine essence in this life, which is the highest and first kind of the gift of prophecy.

>Arabs had no knowledge of pre-existence, it's a Platonic-Christian concept adopted, probably after the sixth Imam, as the Zaydis seem to have no knowledge of this
It's a very well known Eastern concept and if the Arabs really "borrowed" the doctrine then they very likely got it, like the Greeks would have, from the East. However, any traditional doctrine is transmitted orally for many generations before it is first recorded in writing, so the order in which extant texts appears does not prove a chain of transmission by itself. Plagiarism and originality are not concepts in antiquity, rather, the more ancient the teaching, the closer to primordial truth it was considered. There would be stronger reasons to invoke the authority of the "wise barbarians," who the native tradition would assert to be its remote ancestors, than to conceal it. The sufis themselves say that their metaphysics was disclosed through direct experience, which agrees with the testimony both of the Platonists who they allegedly plagiarized and the Eastern rishis. Why is this to be denied?

You said that it's a Platonic-Christian concept. Would that not be plagiarism?

If the Zaydis do not appear to have a given doctrine, that does not mean that they really do not have it; if they really do not have it now, it does not mean that they never had it; if it was not written down in the past, that does not mean that it was not transmitted. The content of the doctrine is the spiritual influence directly experienced by the believer and not the form it takes. In theological terms: the virtue of faith and the deposit of faith are distinct.

>The super-existential trinity reveals itself in being

Super-existence is not pre-existence. In the latter the pre-existent being is not manifested at one time, and then at another time it is. The Trinity is the very principle of manifestation and is in all things at all times. It's not comparable to the pre-existence of the Prophet. Rather to "whithersoever you turn, there is the face of God."

The concept of the verus propheta, symbolized by the long pilgrimage of the Muhammadan Light through the aeons, is a logical consequence of this fundamental doctrine, according to which the successive prophetic messages, as multiple manifestations of the one Truth, are so many stages leading up to him who will bring the 'full sum of the Words' (jawami al-kalim), simultaneously perfecting and abrogating the previous Laws.

Point me to the text and I gladly will.

According to Sahl al-Tustari, Khidr said to him, "God created the Light of Muhammad out of His own Light."

Genesis 1:3: "And God said: Be light made. And light was made."

But in John 1:1-9:

1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

2 The same was in the beginning with God.

3 All things were made by him: and without him was made nothing that was made.

4 In him was life, and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it.

6 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.

7 This man came for a witness, to give testimony of the light, that all men might believe through him.

8 He was not the light, but was to give testimony of the light.

9 That was the true light, which enlighteneth every man that cometh into this world.

Been following more on that Emerald Tablet book, focusing on the first step in alchemy: Calcination. It recommended a practice known as roasting cinnabar meditation. While practicing this, I discovered the weakness in my ego relates to my habits of inaction. That I am afraid to stand up for myself with regards to work, and that I further tend to avoid working many hours to avoid discomfort. That my actions in general are guided by an avoidance of discomfort to my own detriment.

This analysis by my own anima/spirit cuts deep, although it doesn't line up with my traditional preconceptions of what "ego" is. Nevertheless, I am told that *this* is the element of my ego that must be burned away to continue in this alchemical, spiritual purification. I hesitated for a long while to accept that this is something I will go through with, and I am still struggle to want to push myself forward here.

Thank you, this so much I could tell for myself. What I'm wondering at is why on Earth would the brightest men of their time split their hairs, hate, assault and even murder each other over all that shit. "That guy there, he believes Jesus is of two natures merged into one, instead of two natures, I hate him and I must kill+rape him".

Nonsense, there HAD to be something more to it, perhaps hidden under the surface.

The image is a vintage-style illustration with a sepia tone, featuring a man standing at a podium with a large projection screen in front of him. The man appears to be presenting or explaining something, as indicated by the text overlay that reads "LOOK EVERYONE I'M PROJECTING." The text is in a bold, capitalized font and is overlaid on the image, suggesting it is a caption or a title.

In the background, there is a sepia-toned illustration of a castle or fortress with a large, open window, and a group of people gathered around the window, seemingly observing or listening to the man's presentation. The people are depicted in a realistic style, and the castle or fortress is detailed with intricate architectural features.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of historical or educational illustrations, often used in educational materials or as a humorous meme. The text "I'M PROJECTING" is a play on words, as it is a common term for projecting a message or image onto a screen or surface. The image does not contain any other discernible objects or people, and the focus is on the man and the projection screen.

The image displays a collectible trading card from the Pokémon trading card game. The card is encased in a protective plastic holder with a red border and a clear plastic window that allows the card to be viewed. The card is labeled with the text "1999 PM JAPANESE STARTER MASTER BALL-HOLO RED GREEN GIFT SET" and "TRAINER" in the center, indicating the card's value and the type of card it is.

The card features a Pokémon character, specifically a Pokémon called "Mega Mewtwo," which is depicted in a dynamic pose with its head turned to the side. The Pokémon is shown in a vibrant color scheme of purple and white, with a pink and white ball in its hand. The background of the card is a gradient of blue and purple, with a starry sky and a nebula-like pattern, giving the impression of a cosmic or space-themed background. The text on the card is in Japanese, and it includes a list of instructions for the card's use, such as "Insert the card into the Poké Ball," "Hold the Poké Ball," and "Hold the Poké Ball in your hand." The card also includes a small illustration of a Poké Ball, which is a common element in trading card games.

The overall style of the image is that of a collectible trading card, with a focus on the card's design and the Pokémon character it features. The image is a clear and detailed representation of the card, intended to showcase its design and features to potential buyers.

If there be any being who liberally cultivates the accumulation of roots of goodness, who perfects a hundred dharmas, who draws close to the Buddhas, whose power of pure faith is immense, and who accords with the minds of kindness and compassion—
A person such as this is capable of bringing forth the immeasurably vast knowledge of the Buddha.

Questing to acquire the all-knowledge of the Buddhas, their incalculably vast powers and purity, with solid and enduring power of endurance,
he perfects all dharmas of the Buddhas, with the mind of compassion, he rescues those in the world, purifies all of the buddha lands, turns the wheel of Dharma through its extensive proclamation, and brings forth this most unexcelled of vows.

In order, in a single mind-moment, to know the three periods of time, and yet still have no discriminations in this regard, in order to manifest within the world in all of the various sorts of eras, each distinct from the other, and, to state it briefly, in order to strive to acquire all of the Buddhas' meritorious qualities, he brings forth the vast resolve

In whatever he turns his mind to, he is unimpeded so that he need not rely on the instruction from others.

In these matters, he achieves parity with the Buddhas and thereby brings forth the great resolve.
All sons of the Buddha should give birth to just such a jewel-like resolve as this.

By this, one immediately abandons the actions of a common person and enters into the conduct engaged in by the Buddha.
One thus immediately achieves birth into the family of the Buddhas that is beyond any bases for criticism or censure, and then will become the same as the Buddhas by being definitely bound to gain the unsurpassed enlightenment.

When one gives birth to just such a resolve as this,
he thereupon immediately gains the first ground.
His resolve therein is as unshakeable as the king of mountains.

This bodhisattva then has the signs of great joyfulness manifest in him.
His resolve is thenceforth always pure and is such that it can take on great endeavours.

His mind finds no pleasure in disputatiousness, is not fond of tormenting beings, is entirely free of hateful thought, and delights in a sense of shame, dread of blame, and respectfulness.
He also practices straight-mindedness, guarding his sense faculties, always bearing in mind rescuing those in the world, and bearing in mind his quest for the Buddhas' knowledge.

Thus his mind becomes joyful and he thinks: "I am bound to achieve success in these matters."
When he gains the Ground of Joyfulness, he immediately passes beyond five types of fearfulness:
Fear of failing to survive, the fear of death,
the fear of ill-repute,
the fear of the three wretched destinies, and the fear of the awesome virtue of great assemblies.

It is due to having no covetous attachment to a self or anything belonging to a self that the sons of the Buddha become able to abandon all forms of fearfulness.

He always puts into practice the kind and compassionate mind, is constantly possessed of faith and reverence, is replete in a sense of shame, a dread of blame, and the qualities, and, both day and night, increases the good dharmas.

He delights in genuine benefit provided by meritorious qualities and does not delight in any of the desires.

Whatever dharma he has happened to hear,
he is able to always subject to skillful contemplation.
He has no behavior motivated by covetous attachment and has cut off all ideation pertaining to offerings or support.

He always delights in bodhi and strives single-mindedly to acquire the Buddha's knowledge.
He practices all of the pāramitās and abandons all thought tending toward flattery or deviousness.
He is able to practice in accordance with what has been proclaimed, and establishes himself securely in truthful speech.
He never defiles the house of the Buddhas, never relinquishes the bodhisattva training, distances himself from worldly endeavors and karmic actions, and delights in bestowing happiness and benefit in the world.
He seeks out good dharmas insatiably and vigorously quests for ever-increasing progression.

In this way, the bodhisattvas are fond of and delight in all meritorious qualities and bring forth their great vows by which they aspire to see the Buddhas, vow to protect the Dharma, to go wherever the Buddhas dwell, and vow to practice the bodhisattva's marvelous practices.

The characters are depicted in a stylized, cartoon-like style with exaggerated features and vibrant colors. The cave is illuminated by a bright light source, which casts a glow on the characters and the surrounding environment.

In the foreground, there are five characters standing close together, facing the camera. They are all wearing casual clothing and appear to be engaged in a group activity. The character on the far left is wearing a white coat, the one next to him is in a blue shirt, and the one next to him is in a green shirt. The character in the center is wearing a red shirt, and the one on the far right is in a blue shirt.

In the background, there is a large, glowing blue rock formation that dominates the scene. The rock has a textured surface and is surrounded by a dark, rocky wall. Above the rock formation, there is a full moon visible, casting a soft glow on the scene. The overall atmosphere of the image is one of mystery and wonder, as the characters seem to be observing or exploring the rock formation. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of classic animated series, with a focus on character development and storytelling.

They vow to engage in teaching that matures all beings, vow to take up the purification of all buddha lands, vow that "My buddha land shall be vow, "I shall maintain a mind the same as that of all bodhisattvas, shall become one who, if but heard or seen, it shall not be in vain, and I shall bring it about that, even within every single atom, buddhas shall appear, showing their realization of buddhahood."

He brings forth vows such as these, vows that are incalculable and boundless in their reach.
These vows are as endless
as empty space, as beings, as the Dharma realm, as the worlds, as nirvāṇa, as the coming forth of buddhas, as their wisdom, as objects of mind, as arisings of knowledge, and path's variations.

He vows: "My vows shall endure in a manner equal to these."
Thus it is that they bring forth great vows, carrying them forth with pliant, subdued, and concordant minds.
They are able to maintain faith in Buddha's meritorious qualities and, in their contemplations with regard to beings, realize that their circumstances arise from causes and conditions, whereupon they bring forth the minds of kindness and compassion, and thus immediately reflect with regard to suffering beings:
"I should rescue them and bring them to liberation."

This bodhisattva employs the purified heavenly eye in a manner exceeding the powers of the human eye so that he is able to entirely observe the births and deaths of other beings, observing whether they were of fine or hideous physical appearance, whether they were inclined toward goodness or evil, whether they were poverty-stricken and of only low social station or were wealthy and of aristocratic social station, whether they then proceeded toward the good destinies or toward the wretched destinies, undergoing retributions in accordance with their karmic deeds.

He knows all of these things just as they really are, specifically knowing with regard to these beings how, because they have created bad physical karmic deeds, have created bad verbal karmic deeds, have created bad mental karmic deeds, have obstructed and gone against the Worthies and the Āryas, have accepted teachings characterized by wrong views, and have generated causes and conditions associated with karmic offenses, they have then fallen at death into the wretched destinies and have thus been reborn in the hells.

So too is he able to observe how beings, because they have created good physical karmic deeds, have created good verbal karmic deeds, have created good mental karmic deeds, have refrained from any action obstructive of the Worthies and the Āryas, have believed in and taken on right views, and have cultivated the causes and conditions of good karmic actions, after they die, they are then born into good stations of existence, including up in the heavens.

The image is a close-up photograph of a black cat with a smiling expression. The cat's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, revealing its teeth. The cat's fur is black, and it has a white belly. The background is blurred, but it appears to be a room with a patterned fabric, possibly a sofa or armchair. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is candid and informal, capturing a moment of the cat's happiness.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation, likely from a social media platform, as indicated by the presence of a chat bubble with the text "Colleague" and a timestamp "6:22". The conversation is about the Cologne Cathedral, a Gothic cathedral located in Cologne, Germany. The cathedral is known for its two towering spires and is a significant landmark in the city.

The conversation is discussing the historical context of the cathedral and its construction. The text mentions that the cathedral was built over 662 years, which is a significant number of years, and that it was completed in 1880. The conversation also references the need for modern man to build something similar to the cathedral, suggesting a comparison between the historical construction of the cathedral and the current state of modern architecture.

The image includes a photograph of the Cologne Cathedral, which is a large Gothic structure with two prominent spires. The photograph is taken from a street-level perspective, showing the cathedral's facade and the surrounding urban environment. The cathedral is surrounded by modern buildings and traffic, indicating its historical significance amidst contemporary city life.

The image is a visual representation of the text content, providing a snapshot of the conversation and the historical context of the Cologne Cathedral.

[306 / 72]The image is a digital graphic with a dark background and white text. The text is divided into two columns, with the left column containing the title "WHAT IS A PERPETRATOR?" and the right column providing a definition of a perpetrator. The definition begins with the statement, "A Perpetrator is anyone who has been trained to harass, main, and kill a Target, either by direct means, or by covert means including electronic, biological, or accidental means. Career perps make a good living dealing misery to hapless individuals. Perpetrator, or 'perps,' for short, usually do not know the victim personally, but are supplied enough information to allow a well-oiled campaign of gang stalking and harassment." The text is in a serif font, and the color contrast is high, making the text stand out against the dark background. The style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended for a presentation or a discussion.

<https://web.archive.org/web/20250120175435/https://www.targetedjustice.com/gangstalking---training-manual.html>

Consider the following:

>A targeted individual is a person who has been singled out because of his or her activism, whistle-blowing, or political/ideological dissent.

>Gangstalking usually happens when a person that has committed no crimes is defamed in some way.

>Neighborhood watch and other untrained opinionated vigilantes are the obvious offenders of gangstalking, including official or unofficial political groups etc.

Tactics used include:

1. illegal surveillance (bugs placed in home, work, vehicle)
2. illegal wiretapping
3. illegal investigation of all personal and private documents including medical and financial records
4. waves of criminal activity including vandalism, poisoning, break-ins, theft and sexual assault
5. hacking of all electronic devices
6. harassing phone calls, texts & emails
7. redirects to gang-stalkers when the target calls for help or assistance
8. organized harassment & stalking (by law enforcement, private security firms and ordinary citizens)
9. being ostracized by entire communities based on slander and rumors (usually outright lies said about that person)

>Ignore the glowtards whose job it is to say gangstalking is not real

The image is a promotional poster for a film titled "The Spark." The poster features a close-up of a man's face, with his hair blowing in the wind, creating a sense of movement. The man appears to be in a dark room, with a spotlight shining on him, highlighting his expression. The background is dark, with a hint of a door or window in the upper left corner.

The text on the poster is in white and yellow, with the title "The Spark" in large, bold, yellow letters at the top. Below the title, there is a tagline in smaller white text that reads, "What If Your Worst Fears Become Your World And No One Believes Anything You Say?" The text is arranged in a way that draws the viewer's attention to the title and the tagline, emphasizing the film's central theme.

The style of the image is dramatic and intense, with a focus on the man's face and the text, suggesting that the film is likely a thriller or drama. The use of shadow and lighting adds to the dramatic effect, creating a sense of tension and suspense. The overall color scheme is dark, with the exception of the bright yellow text, which stands out against the dark background.

To the outside observer street theater means nothing because it is personalised.

When you are walking around srhxd and people start repeating conversations you have had with other people face to face, on the phone or even through email word for word then you know it is street theater. They also will repeat lines from films or TV shows you have watched recently or talk about actors from those films or TV shows. Even phrases from video games or lyrics from songs.

If I were to record a video of someone doing street theater that is part of my gangstalking it would just seem like people having a normal conversation, but when you are the person it is aimed at and they are repeating conversations you have had word for word or other stuff then you know it is street theater.

Reposting anons post

Hi everyone! I'm peterpeter, founder of OTIR (Objective TI Research). You may have seen some of my materials online by now (like the leaflet posted in the previous thread).

I know most of you here think it's the feds, freemasons, illuminati etc, or even your neighbours. I have been through all of that myself and found out there is a systemic progression of understanding to this phenomenon. With time and knowledge you start to see facts about your experience that force you to realize you were duped, and the whole narrative you were assured off breaks down and evolves into a new vision. I'm sure you were through this a couple of times yourselves.

I have described it better here:

Memo #5: Stages of understanding in TI experience

<https://otiresearch.medium.com/memo-05-stages-of-understanding-in-ti-experience-be62b3894cbb>

If you are interested in contacting me and talking more about it in analytical perspective, feel free to contact me on discord or anywhere else.

I am not selling anything and don't promise anything, but know this: I am out of the TI experience, and I have met a lot of people like me. It isn't just finite, the experience is meant to end, as it is a procedure with clearly defined goals. It's going to be alright

>Harassment techniques include:

>1. Surveillance (being followed, electronic surveillance, computer and phone hacking, monitoring all online activities, and bugging of home)

>2.Profiles are built to identify any and all weaknesses and insecurities to be used later. Information often obtained through sexual partners or trusted people in their lives.

>3.Conditioning where victims are sensitised to certain stimuli such as everywhere you go someone will cough as they walk past you. The goal is to make you self police and then think anyone who coughs is involved in the harassment. People report of conditioning to include hand gestures, an overt use of colour in peoples clothing (like everyone you see wearing red) or cars a certain colour or with headlights on (also known as brighting).

>4. Anchoring where someone will provide false rationales for the harassment. Often many possible rationales are planted to keep the victim confused and the focus of the harassment cycles from one possible reason to another round and around so as to keep the victim guessing in a self perpetuating guessing game where every scenario you are to blame and causes self doubt, fear, intimidation, and ultimately a cycle of destructive thoughts

>5. Mobbing (or true gangstalking) where everywhere you go you will see an overt display of people following you and often use words you have been conditioned to or your name to draw your attention

>6. Street theatre where a group will "perform" an overt activity like a fake confrontation or scenarios designed to test your reactions. Often takes the form of a couple who position themselves near you and then have a conversation using many of your conditioned words or pertaining to your particular situation and sensitivities.

Anonymous Mon 09 Feb 2026 13:31:44 No.41942125 Report

>7.The use of directional speakers which have the ability to direct sound to a single individual in a crowded room. This particular item is ultimately the most used and is often referred to as V2K or Voice to Skull and is used extensively in the psychological breakdown of the victim. The use initially is to cause the victim to doubt their sanity and drive them into the mental health system, and later to just torment and never give the victim a moment of privacy or peace. If they do enter the mental health system, then harassment escalates dramatically as the victim has now been "discredited" and can be labeled as someone with a mental problem if they do speak out about the harassment.

>8. The use of electronics to effect your eyesight and balance which was originally developed for the military and police crowd control called "dazzling" and even the ability to make you vomit.

>9. Sound campaigns which is a community harassment technique where abnormal levels of sound are directed at the victim and their home. This includes cars deliberately breaking or accelerating when they pass, people talking excessively loudly at all hours of the night, amplification of sound using directional speakers so that external sounds that previously couldn't be heard now can, garbage trucks and other heavy vehicles, and countless other deliberate tactics

>10. Sleep deprivation - this is perhaps one of the most insidious tactics used where victims are woken multiple times a night and can be kept awake for days at a time. The effects are dramatic and completely debilitating affecting concentration, mood, irritability, appearance, and significantly impacts all areas of their life - job performance, relationships, and significantly aids in discrediting the victim as they appear unorganised, disheveled, and sleeping patterns alter so they may sleep during the day (where noise campaigns are more effective) and be awake at night (where they can be painted as the one making noise and being a disruptive member of the community).

>11. Baiting or entrapment where victims are harassed to the point that they lash out and commit a crime such as assault, break and enter or vandalism, as they try and locate the source of the harassment. Harassers will actively try to provoke verbal and physical confrontations especially after a period of sleep deprivation. Or they are prompted into an activity which can then be used as leverage such as affairs, sexuality, drug use, or other criminal activity.

>12. Gaslighting which is a form of psychological abuse where someone will actively try to undermine victims and to make them doubt themselves so that they lose all self confidence and self esteem and are therefore easier to manipulate and push toward the mental health pathway. It can be as simple as being told something which they then deny, then telling them how silly they are for thinking they said it, and turn the lie around into an attack on the person. It can be incredibly effective coming from a trusted person and before the victim understands what is happening to them.

>13. Blackbag jobs is a term when a harasser breaks into a victim's property and places something or deliberately moves something. The purpose is to cause self doubt, and fear that their property is being accessed which harassers try to then sell as paranoia.

>14. Propaganda and disinformation is also the other key element to suppress knowledge of this practice as its effectiveness initially requires the victim to be unaware of the existence of gangstalking, gaslighting, or the electronic technologies such as directional speakers so huge amounts of time are devoted online to creating disinformation sites which attempt to discredit victims by pushing the mental health agenda. They achieve this by posing as victims and actively trying to sound crazy so that all victims are treated as such. Also by creating websites claiming to help victims and being a resource for victims to come together and then harassing them to the extent that they lose hope and no longer reach out for help causing further isolation.

>15. Further to the above, gangstalkers rely on disbelief and discrediting and as such much of the harassment is designed (at least initially) to mimic mental health issues. They also rely on their abuse being so extreme, so pervasive, so fundamentally immoral, as to be disbelieved and victims subsequently resort to photographing, videotaping, and sound recording their everyday encounters to disprove the countless unfounded claims made against them - especially in relation to gaslighting, which gangstalkers try to turn around and paint the victims as paranoid or irrational. Victims are made to feel helpless as every attempt to defend themselves is used against them and when they seek help they are met with disbelief or open hostility.

The image is a digital graphic with a white background. At the center, there is a stylized emblem featuring a smiling face with a red starburst in its mouth, resembling a smiley face. Above the emblem, there is a text in a bold, sans-serif font that reads, "When you systematically gangstalk and torture intelligent American children with clandestine psychological destruction tactics applied from the stasi because they might jeopardize your propaganda programs." The text is in black, contrasting with the white background. Below the emblem, there is a smaller text that reads "UNITED STATES OF AMERICA." The emblem is bordered by a blue and yellow seal with the text "CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE" in the center. The emblem is stylized with a cartoonish appearance, and the text is in a bold, sans-serif font. The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the United States of America and its intelligence services.

On the contrary, I think the pastebin is some decent stuff, on the mark in some places. It's specifically the claim "Just play nice with everybody and it will stop." that I had an issue with. I hear that one a lot, and it leads people down some utterly useless rabbit holes.

Speaking of, do pastebins stay up forever? And do they allow markdown formatting? I like my pretty documents but I'm not a fan of having to host all of it on Google Drive

I wanted to start this year off with a crushing defeat on the TI perpetrator's part - they have been shrieking nonstop ever since I finished this up - and have just finished this guide on how to handle the TI experience and get on top of it. In theory, permanently, though doing so will always involve self-reflection to apply what worked for me to what might work for you. No matter the specifics, it will rhyme with belligerent resilience.

Sorry it's on Google Docs, it's the only place I could find that offered permanent hosting for free that could be shared anywhere without having to set up my own CDN.

Companion thread to these ones; the gangstalking and gaslighting go hand in hand:

Where this thread deals with the in-person weirdness a lot more than the psychological stuff, the other one goes way more into the ways this experience can rot you from the inside out, get you to push your friends and family away, all kinds of ugly shit.

For the docs posted here and there, I don't want them to be accepted wholesale. Push back on them if they're off the mark in some way, it's an iterative process building a repository about what is going on, how, why, and perhaps who is behind it.

Lastly, for those still thinking its schizo stuff, food for thought:

The image is a composite of various elements, likely from a movie or television show, with a focus on the central characters. On the left side, there is a man wearing a black baseball cap and a dark-colored shirt. He is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. To his right, there is a woman with short hair, wearing a black leather jacket and a black top. She is looking off to the side with a thoughtful expression.

In the background, there is a large, abstract, colorful painting with a swirling pattern.

The text "CONTROL FACTOR" is prominently displayed in large, bold, purple letters at the bottom of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a movie poster or promotional material, with a focus on the characters and the title of the film.

The image is a stylized, cartoon-style illustration of a character with a surprised expression. The character has long, dark hair that cascades over the shoulders, and the hair is styled in a way that it appears to be flowing. The character's eyes are wide open, and the eyebrows are raised, suggesting surprise or shock. The character's mouth is open, and the teeth are visible, indicating a wide-open mouth. The character's skin tone is a light pink, and the character's face is outlined in white, which contrasts with the dark hair and skin. The character's right hand is raised, pointing towards the viewer, and the hand is adorned with a ring on the ring finger. The background is black, which makes the character stand out prominently. There are no texts or other discernible details in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, which often features expressive and animated characters.

The image is a cover of a book titled "THE TRIAL" by Franz Kafka. The cover art is a sepia-toned illustration that depicts a courtroom scene with a central figure, presumably a judge, standing at a desk with a book in his hand. The figure is flanked by two other figures, one on each side, who appear to be witnesses or court personnel. The courtroom is filled with people, some of whom are seated and others standing, suggesting a formal or significant event. The background is a plain wall with a window, and the overall style of the illustration is reminiscent of a classic, possibly mid-20th-century illustration. The title of the book is prominently displayed in large, bold, black letters at the top of the cover, while the author's name is in smaller, black text at the bottom. The overall color scheme is muted, with the sepia tones giving the illustration a vintage feel.

On the morning of his thirtieth birthday, Josef K., the chief clerk of a bank, is unexpectedly arrested by two agents from an unidentified agency for an unspecified crime. The agents discuss the situation with K. in the unoccupied room of his fellow lodger Fräulein Bürstner, in the unexplained presence of three junior clerks from K.'s bank. K. is not imprisoned, but left free to go about his business.

K. is summoned to appear at the court's address the coming Sunday, without being told the time or location. After a period of exploration he finds the court in the attic of a dilapidated working-class tenement block, at the back of a young washerwoman's home. K. is rebuked for his lateness and mistaken for a house painter rather than a bank clerk. He arouses the assembly's hostility after a passionate plea about the absurdity of the trial and the falseness of the accusation, despite still not knowing the charges.

I'm gonna sound silly saying this but, yeah they try the same shit constantly nowadays.

Pretty sure they were given API access to google or youtube or something because my recommends shift constantly in response to whatever they're saying, and whatever i'm thinking about. I've been playing absolute hardball with them lately to undo any narrative they try to establish (through implication, circumstance, narrativizing over recent events, the usual) and generally demonstrating how little power they actually have, and the strategy it seems they've opted for is relentlessly pointing out how they control everything even my internet as videos keep queueing up that talk about how insane AI is and how america is having a fascist takeover and on and on with the fearmongering.

Lmao really guys? I mean if I spent like $5 I could make sure a single specific person sees very specific ads if I wanted to, it's not impressive. I assume the possibility that the youtube algo is just on the fritz too, but it's fun to pin every silly happenstance on them sometimes. Got your perps being noisy little shits? No, there is a distributed network of extremely powerful AIs (in all likelihood) that can and do monitor all internet or otherwise connected devices. They will also, if you are a target, be able to change what you see on your devices with these AIs. They don't pay for targeted ads. They just have only your device show that ad specifically for you without having to pay shit.

You can't imagine the full scope of control. A total control grid and a selective panopticon.

They focus on what makes you the most dependent on their approval and/or what causes you the most stress. If you struggle with addiction, they will use the physical effects and endless yapping to nullify the good effects of substances as much as possible and tell you constantly to stop, while if it was never a big deal for you they'll promote you keep doing it more, and more and more if possible until it becomes a problem. They are not trying to help anyone kick addiction - like fr I wish that was the case lol - they are trying to erode what makes you you through peer pressure, shame, guilt tripping, and a million other things.

For me personally, i've seen all sides of this, having refused to budge on anything they encourage or discourage. They have the integrity of your average politician.

All you have to do is include subtle patterns that are primarily visible to one person, then the description by the individual perfectly matches mental illness (psychosis, schizo). If it is a cell based system, you would never be able to prove any coordination since basically nobody knows anything.

- > References to personal stuff on social media being one if the easiest options
- > Honking
- > Cars stopping before you when on foot and then driving away before you reach
- > Same car circling by multiple times
- > Software issues exactly after problematic statement

Whether you believe it's mental illness or not, with access to personal information and a cell based organisation, you could implement this and it would look the same as mental illness. All you need to do, is make sure it COULD be a coincidence and that is what people will assume. I hope you guys are fine and I hope we find out what's behind it.

In my experience, make sure you don't oppose any propaganda that people push hard. The reason they push it hard is probably because it's important to them or society. I hope society can get to a point where this is no longer needed.

I also thought it might be about terrorism prevention. Terrorists usually are extremely resentful towards society. This treatment might be the lesser evil. In that case it would help to not view society (or other, more specific parts of societey as inherently bad).

This may also affect people being able to voice opposition towards stuff.

The issue is,that the treatment would also potentially cause mental illness, further hiding the source of the problem (potential gangstalking). Good luck in dealing with this and I hope the government finds an option that doesn't involve harming people or taking their rights away (I know most people in the government probably don't want something like this to happen, so they must be pretty desperate if this is correct).

> Try to include love and understanding in your statements and behaviour (first time weird stuff happened to me was when I just stopped watching yt vids and channels when I felt like there was propaganda in it).

If this was an actual coincidence, dont worry I am not mad. There has been a lot of VERY weird stuff (and i have never seen or heard something that wasn't real). Good luck dealing with your own problems.

> Else

I might go to media and police tomorrow. I hope you receive a fair trial and conviction for psychological torture. I hope you never have to experience what I experienced and get to stay in a modern, safe prison.

I hope you never have to feel like you will get kidnapped and tortured. I hope you never feel like people are after you without knowing what you did or who it is (and without being able to tell anyone without seeming crazy). I hope you never have to question your senses. I hope you understand what you did to me regardless.

If this is real, this must be some of the worst purely psychological torture ever implemented. I have very negative views for the German and American government (whoever it is), but I am genuinely disappointed.

I assume you hacked my phone, then you know I begged for you to kill me instead. You know what you are doing to me (offer still on the table, make it quick, drone or headshot). I would feel miserable regardless, but this is still horrible.

See, this is one of the reasons you can tell a broad system of ideas is wrong - when adherents have mutually incompatible ideas to explain the same basic phenomenon. V2K gangstalking can't be all three government psyops, alien transmissions, and demonic oppression. Each explanatory framework implies totally different things about reality and suggests totally different courses of actions. But TIs aren't interested in actually explaining reality and they never take meaningful action because the inability to do these things are symptoms of schizophrenia. If you guys had any real cognitive horsepower left there would be a broad consensus on who gangstalkers are and what can be done about them. There would be an active resistance movement. Instead schizos wallow in misery obsessed by whatever bullshit they just saw on TV, the only thing they really have in common being the delusional belief some vague force is out to get them.

I've experimented. I can't coordinate IRL because I am an isolated individual who is a captive hostage of psychological warfare.

>If the same methods produced different results for different individuals, that's a huge problem. We're not talking small differences (the zinc content in your tinfoil hats) we're talking huge sweeping incompatible theories (invoking Jesus works for some TIs and not others. Why?)

Do you want a real answer? Because this is **highly** personalized, just like in the original Zersetzung. It avoids all systematizing and focuses on the personal psychological profile of the target. What works on one doesn't work on others. And they are trying to make it seem like there are multiple causes for the same phenomena. To increase the "schizo" appearance of things. There's also massive wellpoisoning and countershilling designed to stop coordination or understanding. Half of the posts are probably bots and/or fake stories to make real ones look schizo. So there's a ton of noise blocking the signal. Make sense at all?

>Cool. I look forward to hearing about your experiments and critiquing the methodology.

I'll be framed and/or dead before I can release anything. I do **not** have full unfiltered access to the internet, nor did I before. I am monitored 24/7 by an AI system on all my devices. The existence of some crazy people doesn't disprove the existence of Modern Zersetzung, just as the existence of some crazy people didn't disprove the documented (very well) Zersetzung in East Germany and the broader Soviet Union during and up to the 80's. A german historian predicted that the West would not only copy the techniques, but refine them and perfect them. This is what happened.

>You still apparently have unfiltered access to 4chan, which is more than enough to get started. And yet you don't.

You realize you're talking about fighting against an entire massive multiple country spanning supra-organization, right? Btw, I have a plan to expose it. It may not work, but I have one. I'm trying. And I'm not an idiot. My IQ was tested IRL at 99.5th percentile g, 99.9th+ percentile for most subtests. Schizophrenics usually are about 2/3rds of a standard deviation below the average for their race **before manifestation, even**. So I don't fit the norm, if I am schizophrenic.

You don't understand my situation or why those things wouldn't work. I'm literally monitored 24/7 and my countries intelligence agencies are involved. I've been informed of this by several authorities. Just not in a way that would let me prove their involvement. They outsource the group harassment. >It's mostly technology, but there is a fusion of the esoteric, potentially.

This makes it both unfalsifiable and indistinguishable from mental illness. If anyone shows you a technical limitation, you can just claim "it's magic!!!!111!!!" and then never be proven wrong. This may have short-term morale benefits but it makes any attempt to stop your torture futile, which in turn makes ignoring it the only course of action for people who aren't being tortured.

>I've experimented. I can't coordinate IRL because I am an isolated individual who is a captive hostage of psychological warfare.

You're literally surround by other TIs in this very thread who could corroborate or contradict your claims. Working together, you could figure out an effective way to not get tortured. That would be my #1 priority if someone were torturing me.

>Do you want a real answer? Because this is *highly* personalized, just like in the original Zersetzung.

Yeah, but Zersetzung had to rely on actual people, not alien tech and magic. If the stasi had access to magic and super tech East Germany would have never fallen and there would be no paper trail. Since the stasi clearly didn't have supertech and magic, why do you assume your tormentors do?

>It avoids all systematizing and focuses on the personal psychological profile of the target. What works on one doesn't work on others.

What does it mean for this "torture" to "work?" If you have insight into the goals of your tormentors, I would lead with that and then take direct action to foil them.

>And they are trying to make it seem like there are multiple causes for the same phenomena. To increase the "schizo" appearance of things.

How do you know this for sure? What experiments proved it?

All the more reason to insist on strict, evidence-based methodology. That way you can tell real TIs from bots right away.

>So there's a ton of noise blocking the signal. Make sense at all?

I think an organization with super tech and literal magic would have more effective ways to shut down TI communities online than paying people like me to "obfuscate" them by demanding they follow actual research protocols.

The image depicts a futuristic robot with a predominantly gray and metallic appearance. The robot's body is composed of numerous square panels, and it has a robust, muscular build. It has a large head with a visor-like structure, and its eyes are glowing with a blue light. The robot is equipped with multiple guns, which are visible on its arms and legs, and it is holding one of these guns in its right hand. The background of the image is a chaotic urban setting with debris and a dilapidated building structure. The style of the image is reminiscent of a science fiction or action-adventure genre, with a focus on the robot's imposing presence and the dramatic lighting. There are no discernible texts or brands within the image.

I didn't say I was certain there was a fusion of the esoteric. Just that it **is** a distinct possibility. Zersetzung relies on actual people in all cases, both modern and original. They just use modern technology now, and have perfected the method. And, again, I didn't say alien tech or "magic" so don't strawman me.

>What does it mean for this "torture" to "work?" If you have insight into the goals of your tormentors, I would lead with that and then take direct action to foil them.

I'm in a psychological double bind. It's impossible as one person, especially when they have fabricate blackmail and "evidence" to frame me with if I come forward.

How do you know this for sure? What experiments proved it?

Are you being purposely obtuse? I base it off how Zersetzung was historically used.

It'd be funny to see you in the late 70's in East Germany just telling people (1/10 of whom were informants for the original Stasi) to research and do "experiments". They couldn't prove it until after the collapse of the Soviet Union and the files were released. Now they have perfected it and have advanced modern tech. >I didn't say I was certain there was a fusion of the esoteric. Just that it *is* a distinct possibility.

How so? The principles underlying technology pretty much rule out magic on general principle. Why waste your time with V2K 5G towers when you can just have demons possess people you don't like? See, this gets to my point. If there are limits, then you can coordinate and fight back. If there are no limits, then either you're crazy or your struggle is totally futile.

In my case, I suspect it is just technology (now) They only bring out the big guns when they need to.

So then capitalize on this opportunity to learn about science, infer the limitations of the tech, and post useful counters to 4chan before they switch to demons.

>I didn't say magic, btw. I said esoteric. Which is still falsifiable.

If it has meaningful limits, the distinction is irrelevant. If it doesn't have meaningful limits, "magic" is as good a term as any.

>Given actual investigation you claim isolated TIs should have the funding and manpower to do themselves.

If someone was torturing me I'd want to use all my funding and manpower to first prove it was happening, then figure out how to stop it, and then help others stop it to. The fact that TI posts rarely include any actual investment even of the limited resources they do have suggest either mental illness or that trying to help them is a waste of time because nothing can help them.

>This is an "anonymous" board with no IDs that is heavily counter-shilled. You think this is the place for that?

If there's another place this is happening, great. But if so, that raises the question of why use this place at all? I talk to a lot of TIs and it's shocking how many refuse to stop using the phones they themselves claim are bugged.

>I'm in a psychological double bind. It's impossible as one person, especially when they have fabricated blackmail and "evidence" to frame me with if I come forward. They're clearly not interested in stopping you from coming forward on 4chan, so present your evidence here.

>Are you being purposely obtuse? I base it off how Zersetzung was historically used. Zersetzung historically failed, and manifestly did not have access to V2K or demons. If what's happening to you is the same as Zersetzung, you should be in theory able to find a paper trail and publish it.

>It'd be funny to see you in the late 70's in East Germany just telling people (1/10 of whom were informants for the original Stasi) to research and do "experiments". They couldn't prove it until after the collapse of the Soviet Union and the files were released. East Germany had major geopolitical enemies, as presumably do the people tormenting you. Travel to China or Somalia is surprisingly accessible and seeing if your tormentors can follow you there would be a great experiment.

>Now they have perfected it and have advanced modern tech. What chance do isolated victims today have, in light of this, IYO?

If modern victims have no chance, bitching about their situations online will not change anything and if anything opens them up to risk of retaliation. If modern victims do have a chance, they don't seem to be making very good use of it.

Your life has been full of something that is not insane is something that is doctor and something that is not doctor and something that is supposed to be suffering from extreme trauma from extreme trauma." The text is in white against a black background, and the message is accompanied by a timestamp at the bottom left corner, indicating the video was uploaded on September 19 at 9:19.

In the top right corner of the image, there is a red notification icon, which typically indicates a message or notification. The notification reads "cc," which stands for "carbon copy," suggesting that the message is being shared or copied.

In the bottom left corner, there is a profile picture of a person with a beard and a light complexion. The person appears to be a male, and the profile picture is overlaid on the video, suggesting that the person is the one who uploaded the video.

The overall style of the image is a combination of text and visual elements, with the text message being the central focus, and the profile picture providing context to the content. The image is a snapshot of a moment in time, capturing a conversation or a post on social media.

Shit is all technology, brain interfaces and AI that simulate persecutory style situations that result in the target lashing out at whatever is being simulated and appearing crazy. Most likely to be some sort of military intelligence arms race involving AI and its purpose being the ability to quickly and efficiently manipulate people to do things that are not in their best interest resulting in the destruction of a target with this destruction seen by others as their own doing. If you've been in this program for over a year and haven't figured this out yet you are severely low IQ.

The technology seems to "give up" when the target isn't taking the bait anymore and switches to brainwashing protocols like psychic driving. Rather than elaborate scripts simulating as if your neighbor is terrorizing you from the roof it employs literal psychological torture methods like DARVO and psychic driving, the repetition of words and phrases hundreds of thousands of times. I've noticed that after 3 years of the psychic driving based torture my ability to recall the initial elaborate nature of the program has been severely impacted. I am only able to recall bits and pieces rather than the detailed orchestrations it was carrying out in the beginning. I imagine this is done to reduce credibility of the target once they figure out what's going on.

The tough part is discerning between your own thoughts and a projected subliminal message.

Sometimes the projected 'thoughts' are too obvious and foreign to be your own.

Meditation and discernment can help you overcome the subconscious thought projections.

You don't have to worry about any of this if you are not a TI.

And a bit of a follow-up/more advanced form of it i've noticed over the last year or so, making use of aggressive hegelian dialectical techniques in concert with the thought imitation:

TL;DR: The best way to tell is to ask if a thought seems to have an agenda, or undercuts agency, or promotes paranoia where it's unwarranted, or is just plain bearing all the hallmarks of the average intrusive thought of the normal variety. No thought has ever hurt anyone, so don't let this bring you down to fearing your own mind. It's only act based on such thoughts that can lead to harm. They've been utterly relentless with this for the last year, primarily because i'm provoking them intentionally in order to expose what I can find out about it, but even after all that I am quite intact.

It is difficult, though, but what isn't when dealing with this.

Hope that helps!

Pretty much. Though your memory of the early elaborate narrative stages is intentionally caused by their use of grey-man tactics to make themselves seem unthreatening just enough to fly under the radar of what you personally consider worth putting the effort into fighting against and cataloging. Mine made the mistake of overstepping this bound at one point, it led to years of journaling their bullshit, and now here we are.

It is also due to just the passage of time, as a lot can happen in 3 years, and a lot of it is novel due to them so it kind of crowds things out in a way. They also do their best to distract you whenever you try to recollect things like that that they want to keep as a foggy memory at best -- there, like a vague threat, but not in focus.

It's best not to dwell on it.

In any case, keep writing stuff like that, it helps people reading it to contextualize their own experiences.

Yeah nah its not the phone. At best the phone is used for more accurate geolocational targeting for the rest of their tech. Unproven but my pet theory on this is that it's a mesh network consisting of most wifi-emitting technology, perhaps piggybacked on it if not directly implemented. We do know that we can use wifi signals to see people through walls and figure out what they're doing to a high degree of accuracy, and that was discovered and published 10ish years ago.

But no, putting the phone away doesn't do shit. If the targeting stops or slows down for a bit when you do this, it is just because they want you to be paranoid of your phone.

They tried this shit for years with me, it was very amusing.

The image on the bottom right is a 3D rendering of the person in the green suit, showing the mesh-like structure of the suit.

The figure consists of six rectangular panels arranged in two rows of three. Each panel depicts a person from the waist up, wearing a bright green, semi-transparent mesh bodysuit over dark clothing. In all panels, the person has their arms crossed and stands against a plain background.

- Top-left: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit standing in front of a large whiteboard mounted on a light-colored wall.
- Top-middle: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit sitting at a wooden desk; a computer monitor is visible on the desk.
- Top-right: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit standing next to a tall black office chair.
- Middle-left: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit standing in a room with reddish-pink walls.
- Middle-middle: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit standing in a room with yellow walls.
- Middle-right: A photograph of a person in a green mesh suit standing in a room with orange walls.

In the middle row, the person's pose varies slightly between panels, sometimes looking directly at the camera and other times looking down or away. The bottom row contains three identical square panels, each displaying a 3D digital model of the person in the same green mesh suit as seen in the photographs above. These models are shown from a similar perspective, highlighting the texture and form-fitting nature of the mesh garment.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, rendered in a style that suggests it is from an anime or manga. The character has short, straight black hair and is looking directly at the viewer. The eyes are large and expressive, with a gentle expression. The skin tone is light, and the character's eyebrows are slightly arched. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the lips are thin. The background is a gradient of warm colors, with a hint of red at the top and a gradient of yellows and oranges at the bottom. The character's hair is styled in a way that it falls over the eyes, framing the face. There are no visible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is typical of anime or manga, which often features expressive and detailed character designs.

It's been there for 7 years at first it was "Do not lie to the illuminati and learn about principles" Now i've stopped doing anything sinful and converted to Christianity it's now "Ours is blasphemy and i'm the one they hate."

They call me a paedophile for playing final fantasy online as a catboy, even though in the ToS all characters are over 18 and it's a legal game in the UK.

I had someone add me on discord with a 13-15yr old japanese girl profile picture with that puppy shit overlay, which I obviously rejected.

And some people in the game dressed as policemen checked me out and then told me I have a nice character, so it's some obsessed glowtard telling everyone i'm a pedo and no one believes it.

But then they just say yes you are our obsession and your going to a mental institution, or you're going to kill yourself or kill other people and get put in a straight jacket.

The image is a black and white line drawing with a square shape. It features four figures, each depicted in a different pose, with the text "HATE YOUR LIFE?" superimposed over them. The figures are arranged in a staggered formation, with two standing upright and two sitting or leaning against each other. The text is written in a casual, informal font and is positioned in the center of the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a satirical drawing, often used to convey a message or comment on a particular subject.

The hair is parted in the middle and has a fringe that extends down the sides of the face. The character's eyes are wide and seem to be gazing directly at the viewer. The character's skin tone is a light beige, and their facial features are detailed with a mix of red and brown tones.

The character is wearing a sleeveless top with a V-neckline, and the top appears to be of a light color, possibly white or off-white. The character's attire is simple and does not show any specific patterns or designs.

The background of the image is dark and somewhat chaotic, with various objects and elements that suggest a nighttime or industrial setting. There are glowing lights and what appears to be machinery or equipment in the background. The lighting in the image is dim, with a blue hue that gives the scene a somewhat eerie or mysterious atmosphere.

I spend a lot of time trying to guess motivations behind gangstalking so I can avoid being targetted. Since I am never sure what it is, here is an attempt describing how to avoid it independent of exact motivation.

Regardless of what it is. An organisation like this cannot really exist if it threatens the big western interest groups.

> Politicians and establishment media closely work with these groups, so as long as you include their perspective it will be hard for people to target you.

For people to be willing to use Stasi methods against their population, some form of institutionalised hate needs to be present. Make it harder to hate you.

> Show empathy and love! Especially towards groups that are heavily represented in establishment politics (minorities, veterans, military, farmers, workers, politicians, businesses). Showing love towards any group you talk about or interact with will make it harder to hate you.

> Also if you include establishment perspectives from media and politics, it will be much harder to say you are evil based on simply not understanding or disagreeing with your perspective (they have to be in accordance with establishment perspectives to not be considered an extremist group trying to take over their country).

Good luck out there. It kind of works for me although I get banned for 3 month for totally ((using a VPN)) everytime I am critical. I have never had a VPN.

I also got my cock sucked by a female witch, but then I was segregated. I see them as shadows on my wall sometimes.

I've been in this position on and off for 7 years, they come back every year around the same time. I'm also being gangstalked, I had a drug dealer scratch pedo onto my car before he got sent to prison. I had someone with a child profile picture try to add me on discord. Then they switched it up and did a normal woman who just said 'Hey there.' I rejected both obviously.

All because I play ffxiv online, and visit hentai websites. I talk shit to them and now they're saying they're gonna kidnap me and flay me alive because 'theirs is blasphemy'.

I was looking up freemason stuff and they said the checkerboard is our symbol, but then I pointed out they are only evil and they don't worship Christ.

I feel pricks on my skin sometimes and they gave me a demonic entity who is constantly in my head.

I never do anything they say and you wouldn't realise I was mad in public, that makes them extra mad when you take it on the shoulder.

In some fucked up way I really miss the interactive early days where shit like this was going on. Every day was like a new adventure with my own personal telepathic glownigger chatterbot that could induce drugged like states at will. The voices don't bother me anymore and they've long since turned off the "forced attention" that completely stops you from being able to function or focus on anything but back in the first year they gave me two days where I didn't hear them at all. I woke up in bliss, I was extremely horny and masturbated like 10 times, ate a shit ton of food. In hindsight the entire thing was definitely some type of mind control induced circus but it was fun nonetheless. I miss the on the spot witty humor about mundane shit the v2k would spout off while at work. I miss never knowing what this shit is going to do next and the terrifying yet jaw dropping shows this thing would put on in the middle of the night.

One of the main tactics is to isolate you.

Cut you off from family and friends by making you suspect everyone.

Don't fall for it, cutting yourself off from your loved ones is a downward spiral that is almost impossible to get out of.

They may not understand it but don't cut yourself off from those around you that want the best for you.

The image is a digital illustration of a character with a character design that resembles a young girl. She has brown hair with bangs and is wearing a white hat with a brown teddy bear emblem on the front. The hat has a pink band around the base. The character's eyes are large and have a serious expression, and her eyebrows are arched. The background is a gradient of blue, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter one at the bottom. The character's expression and the hat suggest a sense of seriousness or contemplation. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

I believe people are describing the time period of weird shit happening to them as gangstalking. A slander campaign and remote torture might not even be related but their respective periods can overlap and they both follow the same principle of crazy people out to get them. Even with a break, let's say the GS decides not to remote torture a TI for a week, a reinstatement of the torture after that would mean a continuation of the GS period.

Remote torture is not something that has a point in measuring. It's not something that can be treated so more or less torture wouldn't mean a thing. It follows the soccer theory (GS favorite soccer team loses a match so they take out their aggression on the TI). There is no rhyme nor reason to it.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a cat wearing sunglasses and sitting in a car. The cat appears to be in a relaxed pose, with its paws resting on the steering wheel and its head tilted slightly to the side. The cat's eyes are closed, and its mouth is open, as if it's smiling or yawning. The background is a dark, possibly nighttime setting with a blurred effect, suggesting motion. Overlaid on the image is a red text that reads "Deja vu!" in a stylized font, which is commonly used in meme culture to convey a sense of familiarity or deja vu. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and playful, with a focus on the cat's expressive face and the text.

The image is a painting that depicts a group of five cats sitting at a table. The cats are anthropomorphized and appear to be in a relaxed and playful mood. They are all looking towards the viewer with their eyes wide open and mouths slightly open, as if they are speaking or singing. The cats are of various colors, including gray, black, and white, and they are positioned in a line, with the first cat on the left, the second in the middle, the third on the right, and the last cat on the far right.

The table in front of the cats is covered with a white tablecloth and has a few objects on it. There is a bottle with a label that reads "ROTTERDAM" and a small square of paper with a red and white pattern. The background is dark, which contrasts with the lighter colors of the cats and the table, making the scene appear more prominent.

The style of the painting is realistic with a focus on the details of the cats' fur and the texture of the tablecloth. The artist has used a limited color palette, with the dominant colors being the gray, black, and white of the cats, and the white of the tablecloth. The painting has a realistic style, with attention to the texture and shading of the cats' fur and the table's surface. The overall composition and the attention to detail suggest that the painting is a work of art.

people act like it doesn't matter that's what allows this to continue going on and keeps us ignorant. "dont question it" or "leave it to the real authorities". people don't get it. it's my belief that it NEVER stopped. even AFTER Epstein went down. these people are doing drugs and having sex parties.... they must be addicted to living like this they do it in SECRET. they have HIDDEN LOCATIONS that who knows, maybe nobody knows where they are. point is, word rarely gets out... now look at this. WHY are they releasing the EPSTEIN FILES? think about it, the oaths of silence and more.

It's not demons. It's not even supernatural.

Sorry you've been dealing with it for so long. These shits are downright evil, for sure, but notice the timeline. AI became a huge thing 6-7 years ago and even more so around 4-5 years ago. So many of us, our targeting began at the same time. How else are they able to react in real-time to our thoughts and act in ways that try to circumvent what ever we try to do? The way forward is recognizing that this is a technological form of psychological warfare, being done on people they have identified as being slightly susceptible to psychosis, for what ever reason. The rabbit hole on why that is goes too deep to bother with here, but this might help:

This one's unreleased, in progress, going into the prickling thing specifically. They love using that one, and its subtler form where it's made to feel like someone's touching you.

If/when that one starts, don't buy into the narrative that they control your body, or are denying you your privacy. It's all bullshit. They use some kind of tech that makes it feel like you're moving in one way or another, and they'll use it on like your arm or leg when you move it, to make it feel like they moved it for you, and distract while shouting their little narrative over any sensible interpretations of what happened. That one seems to always come after they use the prickling one for a long time, so just a heads up.

The person's expression is surprised or shocked. In the background, there is a depiction of Earth, with a blue sky and a dark, cloudy atmosphere. The person's face is overlaid with a tweet that reads: "What if governments learned from the MKUltra experiments in the 50s that they could keep their citizens afraid, dependent on them, and that they'd be more likely to rebel, more likely to die alone?" The tweet is attributed to Trevor Moore, and it was posted on June 2. For anyone in here:

Gangstalking does happen, but it's vanishingly rare nowadays. They've found it far more efficient and cost-effective given the hundreds of thousands of people being targeted worldwide now to instead convince as many as possible that random ass people are following them through every possible gaslighting technique known to man. They have V2K, and they can even imitate the internal voice you use to think through things (if you have that, not everyone does), and it's hooked up to agentic AI that are trained on each person's intimate details so that they can predict what you tend to do and are about to do, and go about constructing warped scenarios in which a mundane, common thing happens, and they gaslight you into viewing it through a suspicious, paranoid lens.

I bring this up because it's far more dangerous than just being followed by some glowie ghoul. People have killed their neighbors and family over this. On the contrary, i've never heard of one case where the gangstalkers actually hurt or killed a target; they're much too useful alive.

If you specifically are beginning to think your friends, family, or coworkers are somehow in on it, spying on you, aren't who you thought they are, or even out to get you, I know where you are coming from. They tried the same shit with me. It's next-generation psychological warfare, imitating voices of people in your life to make it seem like they're like, talking behind your back or scheming to do something, all the while they're endlessly gawping at you that those people hate you or how terrible you seem. The whole goal is to separate you from your support network. If you haven't burned any bridges yet, please try talking to those people about your concerns, use them as a reality check to re-establish your baseline.

Their whole shtick is shifting your baseline perception of reality away from what is real like the Overton Window and towards what induces endless paranoia, so you gotta reset that.

She even got a few local waitresses and waiters involved, I have been stalked and filmed non stop for the past year or more. HOWEVER, this arrogant cunt got her basedboi faggot fuckpet to film them and they posted it on several boards already, I got ahold of the footage. Her entire manipulation technique revolves around this fake nice persona thats incredibly loyal to every single guy she dates, she achieves this through love bombing and sex bombing the shit out of the touch starved fucks. Now this piece of footage coincides around the same time as she was seeing her rich exbf who she is trying to manipulate. This piece of footage alone would kill her reputation. The dumb cunt actually went out and preventively spread a rumour that someone was stalking her. Not realizing that I have a shitton of information that was volunteered to me by her alcoholic family friend (I literally didnt have to ask a single question, the old man just rattles off), along with the dumb cunt posting footage on third party websites that have an explicit clause in their terms and conditions about free third party use. In tandem with a serious volume of incriminating conversations recorded via a small USB shaped recorder that I would occasionally glue under the table at my local bar and under the gym reception. Not only did this crazy and deranged cunt try to match her gym schedule with me back in late december, the fact that I have been ignoring her for years as well as dodging her run in attempts has made her look slightly insane in the eyes of those who she spoke to about me. They will, not because I want to, but because apparently they have to. Do you have any idea how much i'd rather be doing something else other than wasting my time on this horseshit?! Some people seriously need to take their issues up with a trained professional or God himself and leave other people alone. Especially those who want to be left alone. This bitch had the audacity to label me mentally ill simply because I wanted nothing to do with her. Imagine the fucking ego on the egregious and insecure cunt? "How dare he not want me, he must be sick in the head, after all ive sucked off half the gym, I must be worth my weight in attention" is probably what the inside of her head sounds like. Either that or internal seething at the fact that somebody with no hard cash or deep social connections could just give her the cold shoulder for years. To the point where she had to get deeply involved in my life just so I would even know she exists. As if the prior stalking and staring wasnt enough. I'd drop the case if the bitch were to mind her own business and not mention me to those around her in bad faith, knowing her, that wont happen. This whole thing wouldve been silently over If I hadn't caught her in the act of slander. If the cunt doesn't want me, then the act of slandering me to other women is just petty and insecure. I have one solid piece of evidence that gives my entire side of the story immense credibility. All this silly cunt had to do was take me up on my offer to meet face to face without a crowd, to discuss our grievance

I'm also certain that the same group of degenerates have had their hands in my last situationship, in which case, the actions I will take will be even more severe. Finally, as an act of absolute revenge and spite, my life will outshine theirs. The best act of revenge is a good life and I will have mine. I will achieve things in spite of those around me that they could never conceive even with the assistance of those around them.

The movie's based off Kane Pixel's interpretation, but I think it's gonna go like this:

>Protagonists are a psychologist and her patient

>Patient discovers a mysterious door at a furniture store that leads to a maze of rooms/the complex

>He tells his psych about it before dissappearing

>Psych is forced to go through the door and find him

>Async might be bought up at some point before or after she goes in

>She explores the bizarre architecture before coming across a still life/life form

>Psych ends up in the red neighborhood during the chase scene

>Gets thrown forward into time after stepping into a nullzone

>Finds the remains of her patient in the corner of a bedroom

>She starves to death right next to his body

>Movie ends with the character's missing posters before teasing Backrooms II: Marvin's Revenge

>The short promo for Marvin's Revenge shows the story takes place after Peter Tench's escape from Async

>Marvin E. Leigh has had enough of his Ivan Beck's bullshit and prepares to take on all of Async

>This is when the Creepypasta Cinematic Universe finally begins

[49 / 8]The image is a candid photograph of a person in a kitchen setting. The individual appears to be wearing a white garment with a visible bandage on the upper chest area, suggesting they might have been involved in some activity that caused injury. The person's face is covered with a white bandage, and there are visible tattoos on their arms and neck. They have long, curly hair that is wet and appears to be dripping. The person is standing in front of a kitchen counter, which is cluttered with various items, including a bottle of soda, a bowl, and a plastic bag. The background is dimly lit, with a glimpse of a wall and a window. There is no visible text in the image. The style of the image is informal and appears to be taken spontaneously, capturing a candid moment.

Youtube recommended this person's videos to me for some reason. Seems like a very extreme and prolonged case of meth psychosis exacerbated by autism/learning disabilities or some kind of demonic possession. Watch st your own risk:

<https://youtu.be/5fmPOcEKaEU> if you search their name they have another channel as well. This thread is not so much to discuss this particular person but the subject of how someone gets this way in a paranormal or spiritual sense?

The image is a still from a video, showing a cat sitting at a wooden table. The cat is looking at a stack of poker chips, which are red and blue with a white center, and a red playing card with a white heart on it. The cat appears to be reaching out to the chips, possibly to play a game of poker. The table has a light brown finish and the cat is positioned on the left side of the table. In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a text overlay that reads "He's definitely bluffing." The style of the image is a candid, real-life photograph with a humorous overlay, likely taken for a social media post or a video.

They're always a sympton of posession. The hubris of man is great and makes us think that because we know what buttons to push to stop psychotic ideation or other urges it means that we're closer to curing it. This has been the mainstream way of thinking of the modern world for decades despite there being literally 0 cases of a person ever being cured.

Mental illness is a result of demonic influence. Sometimes from birth because we carry the consequences of sin and sometimes through our actions opening up our soul to demonic control when we indulge in our worst behaviors.

Sadly our soul can be bent out of shape so bad it could never go back to it's old form that's why I think God found the only way to save the most broken of humans is if, through humility, they show faith and trust in their creator.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation, specifically from a Twitter account. The conversation is between two individuals, with the first person expressing their thoughts and opinions on a topic. The second person responds to the first person's statement. The conversation is in English and is written in a casual, conversational tone. The text is divided into two columns, with the first column containing the first person's thoughts and the second column containing the second person's response. The conversation appears to be ongoing, with the first person expressing their thoughts and the second person responding. The text is in a standard font, and the conversation is in a language that is not recognizable due to the lack of specific language features.

The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a digital conversation that has been captured and saved. The screenshot is taken from a Twitter account, as indicated by the username "Anonymous" and the Twitter handle "@23102016Mon08_14_No_4001468". The timestamp "23:04:25" is also visible, indicating the time the screenshot was taken.

The content of the conversation is not directly visible in the image, but the text suggests a discussion about food, specifically the concept of "food grown and 'reaped' about ground?" and the idea of "food that doesn't make a lick of sense to me." The conversation appears to be a philosophical or scientific discussion, as indicated by the mention of "food" and "food grown and 'reaped' about ground?" The text also references "food that doesn't make a lick of sense to me," suggesting a level of skepticism or confusion about the nature of food.

The image does not provide any visual clues about the content of the conversation, as it is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The focus is on the written text, which is the primary information presented in the image.

Its sad when you realize this was someones child with hopes and dreams. Takes an entire village to raise a child, but it also takes the neglect of an entire village to lose a child to vice, demons or death. Speaks volumes of where this person was abandoned. Its hard to not look at these people with a sense of remorse and empathy. Only the entitled, spoiled and ungrateful can look at these people and blame them for their circumstances. Its the only way these individuals can take credit for the kindness, care and nurture their environment has provided them with to make them grow in stable and functioning individuals. Fucked up world we live in.

Funnily your schizoid ramblings are correct but from a different point of view. Where or not history is objectively true our interpretation and memory will be flawed/limited. And in how we as a society should be treating history, ignoring it mostly rather than lionising it. Focus on the present is how you achieve any actual change or happiness.

The image is a stylized, cartoon-like illustration featuring a character with a large, open mouth and glowing red eyes. The character's head is elongated, with a sharp, angular face and a wide, flat forehead. The eyes are outlined in red and have a glowing effect, suggesting a sense of intensity or power. The character's mouth is wide open, revealing sharp teeth and a tongue that extends outwards. The character's hair is thin and appears to be spiky, and it is colored in a shade of white. The background of the image is a gradient of pink and white, with a faint outline of the character's head and shoulders. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and exaggerated, with a focus on the character's expressive features and the intense red eyes.

[4 / 2]The image depicts a scene of a dark, wet road flanked by tall, dense trees on both sides. The road appears to be wet, possibly from rain, and the surrounding area is shrouded in mist or fog, creating an atmosphere of mystery. On the right side of the road, there is a signpost with a rectangular sign that reads "The Ghost Road" in white letters on a black background. The sign is illuminated by two small lights, one on each side, casting a soft glow on the sign. The signpost is mounted on a wooden post and is positioned on the right side of the road, slightly elevated from the ground. The overall mood of the image is eerie and atmospheric, with a sense of solitude and mystery.

This is a paranormal board and half the shit on here I see is schizo drivel or generic occultism. Let's get a real discussion going on how to genuinely switch our consciousness to another version of ourselves.

>Have you ever personally experienced a true Mandela effect?

>Have you ever experienced "quantum immortality" or "quantum suicide" in any way?

>Have you ever woken up and realized that things were different in an inexplicable or uncanny way?

>Have you ever had a near-death experience?

>Have you contacted anybody after they passed? Have they contacted you (e.g. via dreams)?

>Have you ever experienced a time-slip or time-loop?

>Have you ever had any other paranormal experiences related to dimensional jumping/shifting not listed above?

Namefags (and subsequently tripfags), please do not shit up this thread. I'm trying to actively discourage you from posting; just don't peddle inane conspiracy theories. I want lived experiences. I'm looking for genuine accounts of paranormal shifts that changed the overall perception of your reality.

Years ago I literally saw two fields of 'reality' part ways as I took a small caliber bullet directly to the face in the other version.. watched the walls shake like red jelly as the division between the two was solidified.

The thing is, it's not extraordinary to be 'jumping'. It's just extraordinary to notice when it's happening. There is a lot going on in dynamics of our existence. It happens more often than you realize.. in fact it's the basis of life and the existence of variations in species. Perception of humans is the thing that is lacking.. but reality doesn't require humans to be aware of or understand anything about their own existence any more than any other animal.

The image is a 3D rendering of a human skull and neck, with a focus on the upper part of the neck and the area around the Adam's apple. The skull is rendered in a realistic style, with a white background and a grayish tone. The neck is depicted in a three-dimensional perspective, showing the musculature and the position of the Adam's apple.

A black line is drawn from the Adam's apple to the upper part of the neck, indicating the location of the hyoid bone. The hyoid bone is a small, thin bone located in the larynx, which is the part of the neck that contains the vocal cords. The line is labeled with the word "Hyoid" in black text, which is likely a label or a caption for the 3D model.

The image is a medical or anatomical illustration, likely used for educational or research purposes. The rendering is clear and detailed, allowing for a precise understanding of the anatomy of the neck and the hyoid bone.

I guess this falls into 'other' because it's sort of broad, but at the peak of my lucid dream training, I "woke up" 4 separate times in one dream, similar to the way the dream layers work in Inception (but for the record, this was years before that movie came out), and on my last wake up, I lived an entire week of my life in total normality. Days and days of just existing as I would do normally, until one of my bros just said "Well, it doesn't matter, it's all a dream anyway." That was when the dream 'collapsed', I ripped back to the real world and had the worst case of sleep paralysis I've ever experienced - like my entire body was a shell and I was just like... an orb floating around in side of it. It lasted for hours, I genuinely thought I'd comatosed myself or I'd died. Terrifying but also, I felt sort of amazing, like I was just a sentient ball of energy.

I don't know that there were necessarily any paranormal reasonings because there's obviously a lot of conflicting science and speculation where dreams are concerned, but at the bare minimum the fact that my brain could fabricate an entire world for that length of time is just bewildering to me, and the sensations I experienced after were absolutely transcendent.

Same Anon with another thing.

Slightly less detailed, probably less interesting but when I really 'tap in' to any LoA practise, the unbelievable rate at which even the slightest, most passive manifestations (not even things I'm putting any effort into manifesting) and boom, within 24-72 hours it's done. Every time.

>I haven't had pizza for months >random friend calls and asks if I wanna go get pizza >huh I might look into getting X item >suddenly find item for cheap in a store that wouldn't usually carry it >think about random obscure movie to myself >someone starts conversation about it

Real basic shit, I know, but it becomes so frequent and it's like every time is positive confirmation and that the next one is even easier. Seriously, after a week of that, you start questioning the fabric of reality. The oddest thing is, once I stop doing SATS or any sort of conscious focusing on any LoA material, it stops. People more plugged in than me might say it's because I'm raising my vibrations when I'm actively pursuing a manifestation maybe, but I can't really explain it. It's cool though, and sort of scary.

Dreams within dreams are truly a fascinating phenomenon. If our brain can fabricate such an experience and extend time like that, it makes you wonder what else it is truly capable of. Comatose dreams are also extremely interesting; imagine experiencing a decade or two within your mind, every single day with explicit detail, only to wake up after a few days/weeks to figure out that it was quite literally "all in your head." Lucid dreaming is one thing but I would love to experience something like this, I feel like the insights to be gained are nigh unlimited.

You can perceive the boundaries that exist between the material phases of reality that your consciousness can become attached to, or 'jump' between.. but it's not imaginary and you are actually functioning within the confines of the actual boundaries of our physical material platform of reality. Beyond the quasi physical parameters of our existence are even more layers that exist in the fields of consciousness that is attached to the material phases of matter.. and beyond those fields which are relatively substantive and tangible there exists even more fields of even less tangible organized energetic forms. Our consciousness is a big deal.. each individual human has as much impact upon the universe as a super massive black hole. Each view of reality is as big of a deal as the event horizon of same..

The people who are responsible for some of the imagery in publicly distributed media are very well aware of the nature of this. This movie was the origin of the concepts that appeared in the video game silent hill.

I always knew LoA was real but it absolutely depends on your conviction. Your subconscious can bring anything to you and you don't even have to be aware of it. The fact that you can consistently get SATS & other techniques to work means you are quite advanced, you dismiss it as "basic" but manifesting ANYTHING is difficult for most people because they are unable to overcome their subconscious belief.

11 years ago I had a crush on my boss' secretary. I was 29 and she was 42 but an absolutely adorable and great woman and we had a very good relationship, but nothing romantic.

I'm sure she knew that I liked her as well but she was conscious about her age too and whenever we got too close she used that as an excuse to stop it before we went the past the point of no return.

We were very close and did lots of things together, and one of our best friends even joked(or suggested) we should get married.

Then she left the job and moved to a different city 3 years later and 2 years later she was diagnosed with stomach cancer and passed away.

By then I had moved on and married and had kids but still had feelings deeply buried in my soul for her.

Now I occasionally have dreams about her. Really good and vivid dreams (not sexual). I do wonder if those dreams are really her spirit or just my repressed feelings taking over.

One time on salvia when I was 17 I saw a literal fucking portal open up in front of me. It was so vivid I almost thought it was real, I still kind of do think it was real. It was unfortunate that I couldn't walk through it because of how mesmerized I was by it. Basically it was like a small black hole that I couldn't see and everything around it , grass, playground and trees started to get sucked into it. Maybe it was something else you could only see under said psychedelic drugs.

others will die, yes, but you will not. and if im wrong and you do, well, you wont experience it anyway because if you have died before, you would remember.

The image depicts an interior space, likely a corridor or hallway, with a modern architectural style. The floor is composed of square tiles with a pattern that includes dark and light-colored squares, creating a checkerboard effect. The walls are painted in a light yellow color, and there are several framed pictures hanging on the walls. The ceiling is white and features a series of rectangular lights that are evenly spaced. A staircase with a wooden handrail is visible on the left side of the image, leading up to a second floor. The lighting in the space is bright and even, suggesting it is well-lit. There are no texts or discernible brands visible in the image. The style of the image is a straightforward, non-stylized photograph with a focus on the architectural details of the space.

Yeah, I guess it's something I'm quite adept at if I put my mind to it. I opted for 'basic' because obviously lot of the regular LoA posters here are also new to the game and get frustrated within a week because they've not given themselves a shredded body, a 10/10 wife and have suddenly come into copious amounts of money. That in turn immediately kills the belief. Couple that with the oddballs that brigade every thread just to spread doom and berate people - I can see why it's hard to have any faith.

I have questioned the possibility of whether you can ever truly guide the result to something hyper specific or if it really is just that if you're in the right mindset then good things just flow to you. I suppose the oft mentioned 'set it and forget it' mentality of how you should try to move on from your manifestation and let the universe do its thing probably has some credence when looking at my experiences, because they've always just been fleeting thoughts that have come and gone, then suddenly appeared. I've always struggled to obtain any of my grander aspirations, though I've definitely come close, and I have to question whether my eagerness is what derailed it. Sort of like how when people Lucid Dream and, upon realising they're dreaming, get too excited and immediately wake themselves back up.

I think the grander questions for me now are what are the broader implications? Is a reality shift attainable or do we simply just harness the power to completely alter and direct the one reality we're in? Or can we will ourselves onto another plane of existence?

This sounds a lot like the Oz factor

>Folklorist Peter M. Rojcewicz recounted such an experience in 1980 while working on his Ph.D. dissertation, which happened to be on UFOs. While working in the library, he had a strange encounter with a man who approached the table at which he worked and engaged him in conversation. As they talked on the subject of his dissertation, the man suddenly shouted accusingly, "Flying saucers are the most important fact of the century, and you are not interested?" Shortly thereafter he left. Rojcewicz was relieved at his departure, thinking the man disturbed.

>However, as he tried to return to his work, he had a feeling that all was not right. Unable to stay seated, he wandered around the library. He noticed that no librarians were staffing the desks and that no patrons seemed to be in the library. In a mild panic, he returned to his working space and tried to settle his mind. An hour later when he finally left the library, all seemed to have returned to normal.

The universal line text makes a really big deal about remaining as you are and knowing that your manifestation is taken care of.

My theory as to why larger manifestations have a harder time materializing is because you, naturally, tend to think about them more. This attention causes doubts to arise and your manifestation to fall through.

I saw shadow people when I had a grand mal epileptic seizure when I was 12.

Plenty of cope in saying my brain was just stroking out, but also the shadow person I saw was non corporeal but was hostile towards me and actively pathed around the table between itself and me as it chased me (it didn't phase through the table). No one else in my family saw it but they would have seen me instantly freaking out and been weirded out I guess.

I collapsed at the foot of my mum's chair and was holding her legs tightly when it reached me, then gently reached out and touched me and everything went black and I instantly woke up inside an ambulance on the way to the hospital being told I just had an epileptic fit.

The image is a meme featuring a man with his arms raised in the air, wearing a tank top with the word "HOU" on it. He appears to be in a celebratory or triumphant mood, with his left arm raised and his right arm extended outward. The man is surrounded by a group of people, some of whom are also raising their arms in the air. The background shows a building with a wall and a tree. Overlaid on the image is a text overlay that reads "GONNA GO GET MY GUN" and "SHOOT EVERYBODY'S ASS." The style of the image is humorous and seems to be a meme, often used to convey a light-hearted or humorous message.

The background of the painting is filled with intricate patterns and designs, including swirling patterns, floral motifs, and other decorative elements. The overall style of the painting is reminiscent of Baroque art, characterized by its dramatic use of light, shadow, and color, and its emphasis on the human form and the human experience. The painting is framed by a decorative border with a pattern that includes what appears to be a stylized representation of a tree or plant.

The image is a fine art print, and the style is reminiscent of historical portraiture, with a focus on the human form and the human experience. The photograph is taken from a perspective that allows the viewer to appreciate the depth and complexity of the painting's composition.

The thing is that everything is relative. There are material boundaries and physical properties that exist.. and they are dividing from the point of view of the individual beings.

Consider the double slit experiment

This is happening between every observer and the entire existing universe.

It's even happening to other phases of matter that we don't even perceive except for during experiments at cern

We exist in a spectrum of different boundaries that have bearing on our existence.

When you travel down the road there is an array of variations in which your placement is slightly different. But far enough away from the safe lane things begin to get different.

You can't survive in the realities that have you colliding with things off the road to the left and right.. but it's not simply death that is occurring.. the time slows down reducing the amount of energy present in the interaction.. you still don't experience your linear death through this variation in the field.. instead the field changes reality.

It's not a game.. not a toy.. but the phenomenon is tangibly perceivable.

Additionally you can observe that all of the potential variations are subject to the field of gravity.. as well as other fields that humans are not even theorizing yet.

Research why the symbol of the cornucopia was used in the first place. It's not odd that they removed it, it's odd that they deny removing it.

if you don't view yourself as the protagonist of life, then of course nothing like this will happen or make sense to you. you just admitted that you are at the whims of the earth, when in fact the earth is at your whim. there is no 'baseline reality' as we are constantly shifting, even from birth. you died as an infant in an uncountable number of universes, and became a billionaire, and solved world hunger, etc. but your consciousness is only aware of this specific existence.

logo/name changes are the tip of the iceberg and the most common phenomenon. earlier in the thread, there were mentions of personal differences & uncanny changes in movies. the universe is infinitely more complex than we could ever comprehend, and to assert so valiantly that you know how everything works (even physicists at the top of their field claim that they essentially know nothing and are just making educated shots in the dark based on how we think things SHOULD work) makes you more of a fool than anybody. it is pure ignorance.

Behind the man, there is a white wall with a black stripe running horizontally across it. On the wall, there is a vertical black stripe. To the right of the man, there is a shelf with several CDs or DVDs arranged in a row. The man's gaze is directed towards the camera, and his expression suggests he is engaged in a conversation or presentation. The lighting in the image is even, with no harsh shadows, and the overall tone is calm and neutral.

You, "experience", can not NOT experience. Every fucking micro nano atom second or whatever has the potential for you to die, in one line you do but you can not experience that so "you" "jump" to the one you survive in. You want to magically "jump" to the reality where you win? You do that by cause and effect. The first step is to sit down and meditate on your "win condition", after that you meditate on how the fuck you get there, step by bloody step. Cause and effect. Hey, I have been attempting the LOA stuff for a while and have gotten good results but there was usually some mundane explanation for the thing happening, it is pretty rare that I have to resort to mental gymnastics to justify the thing happening.

I have theorised that there is no reality as society views it but that it's all made up of "frames" or "instances", a goal for a given manifestation attempt is usually just a specific sequence of instances that result in the given manifestation kind of like how frames make up a video, LOA goals/manifestations are the "video" and the instances are the frames that make up the video, but I think the frames are infinitely close to 0 seconds in terms of time duration of each frame. So instead of multiple worlds/realities/states or whatever Neville called it there is just instances which there is an infinite amount of and the sequence is the "code" for each custom reality, kind of like the website named library of babel, the code corresponds with a sequence.

Anyway I consider myself a beginner in all this LOA and supernatural stuff so any help sent my way is very very good, please help me learn.

My most read is Neville Lancelot Goddard.
I also read "The Power of Now" by Eckhart Tolle. I maybe read some other stuff but can't remember what.

Hello, me again.

Maybe it makes more sense if there is a "reading" speed of the specific sequence/code and the faster the reading speed the faster time passes and the slower it is the slower time passes, if you temporarily pause reading time stands still but resumes once you resume reading.

I also had the thought that when someone exchanges their sequence/code for another their consciousness leaves their body and joins the new body in the new sequence, leaving behind the old body on "autopilot" which here means it does what you would have done.

Or maybe you don't have free will but your consciousness (you) has free will, so your consciousness can use it's free will to pick what sequence/code you want but the body (ego) identity has no free will so your free will there is pre-determined by the sequence/code you chose earlier using the free will of your consciousness.

I hope my theory of LOA is making sense at all Imao

I wanna say it was 2019. I was having a great day trip, just driving around easter North Carolina. As I was making my way home, I decided to take the back roads. Nice and long 2 way highways with little traffic. I approached a curve with a 45mph sign on it. Being a dumb teenager, I decided I'd try and do some drifting shit while going at about 80 through it.

I fish drifted, but I couldn't bring the car back into control. I fish tailed down the road, flipped the car into the air and hit a telephone pole crushing the roof. Then the car rolled over onto it's roof and into a ditch full of water. All I remember was the fishtail. After that, a bright flash. I came to with my head in the water as my car started to sink a little. I had to crawl out of the back window that had busted.

They craziest part: I made it out without a single scratch. Not even a bruise.

Sometime later I'd become acquainted with the concept of quantum immortality. That flash I saw happened right when I would've hit the telephone pole and had my skull caved in. I'm convinced now that it's real. Your consciousness continues, hopping from timeline to timeline for as long as you can physically remain alive. I'm sure that there's a branching path where my brother and sister grew up without their oldest brother. Where I died before my grandmother. Where my family cried over my mangled body lamenting my idiocy.

I've had dreams recently where I've been hearing some kind of info or reading it and I can actively feel my brain filling in the gaps for things I shouldn't know. It's able to get some true info, but then I can also feel when it's just bullshitting and plugging in random words, phrases, or noises into the dream to try and fill the void. I haven't had any conscious revelations, but I do think subconsciously I'm being influenced in my decision making based on info I shouldn't have.

Yes, however all the mandela effects mentioned online were the same there. Berenstein bears were spelled like that, Mandela didn't die in prison he was president, etc. My mandela isn't quite that big it's just that the DOS game toonstruck was lost media, heck the first time I even heard of that game's existence was watching a lost media video were it was brought up. However it's was never lost media here.

I do have some mandela effects that others don't seem to have, in my original timeline Shrek did not exist and Skrillex got outed as a pedophile, CP was found on his PC and he blamed it on a brain tumour. That was really big news, it was all over the internet, my sister remembers too and I've met one other person who remembers this too. I have experienced quantum immortality 3 times that I'm aware of. The first I tried to kill myself with an OD, I started fat and when I came round I was skinny, I lost 35lbs in just 7 days. Ages ago I did the maths with some anons on calorie burn and it isn't physically possible to burn through that many calories in 7 days. The second I was in a car crash going at 100mph, we came off the road, there were multiple obstacles in the way, I knew I was dying, my consciousness left my body and then I woke up in a field, the car was fine, everyone inside was fine but that shouldn't have been possible. If you saw where we came off there were about 10 obstacles we had to get through to get to that field. The third time was during a religious experience, scenery actually changed after the fact, a building site that was half way through disappeared altogether, this effected my parents too as they were confused as to how the building site had vanished with no trace. I had a timeslip once, went into a shop and they had a puramid of James Bond dvd box sets on sale, there were loads of copies so I told my dad about it and the next weekend we to buy a set. When we got to the shop there was no James Bond sale and when we asked somebody working there about it they said they hadn't had that sale on for six months. I've met others who have slipped through time, they know me, they know my name, they know my history, they could tell me personal information about my life. I can't claim to understand what is happening here but I 100% believe in quantum immortality.

I think what he's trying to say is that there's really a few threads of actual magick metaphysical discussion (if any at all) and most of the time it's always a blogpost from some random incel conflating spiritual ideas while projecting or some boring creepypasta scaremonging christcuck one, which makes this thread refreshing.

HOWEVER, i do, also think, that OP's its a massive faggot because right off the bat he doesn't even understand what in the world DJ it's even about.

>"...to help clear up questions about what happens to "the other you". There is no such thing : what you are doing is selecting a different subjective experience, like shifting to a slightly different dream. This involves thinking of "you" in a slightly different way."

>"Active Metaphors - Try out the Hall of Records and Infinite Grid metaphors which illustrate why there is no "other you" involved in a jump. You are radically changing your experience, not swapping physical bodies."

OP probably heard about the idea offhand and really have never read or let alone attempted what it's discussed here. So yeah, the irony.

Yes. I've even died once, remember it vividly. It felt like I had been startled awake suddenly in the night, a jolt. For context, I used to live in a furnace room, so there was always a chance for CO poisoning... well, one night, I jolted awake. Then, my body started to feel really nice. I thought I was just going back to sleep... and in a way, that's what it was, but... a numbness unlike anything else crawled up my limbs, up my torso, and I not only felt it crawling up to my forehead, but I was very active and awake mentally. For years, I thought I had the rare delight of remembering myself falling asleep. But I saw a tunnel of light, my mind became so innocent and curious again. The pain was all gone, physically and mentally. The only question I had was "What comes next?"

I woke up the next day. Unlike with dreams, I didn't lose a single moment of any of that sleep. I remember it all so vividly. It was one of the most incredible moments in my entire life. Afterwards, I lost all fear of dying or death. I know that we live in a multiverse and we could, in fact, jump a timeline every single time we go to sleep. There's no telling, really, and I don't know how to experiment when results would be stored in other universes separate from our measuring instruments.

It was also right after this event that a lot of 'Mandela Effect' things happened, which I still am unsure if it could actually just be bad memory or the effect of being bumped into a very similar (but slightly different) timeline.

this is a beautiful account. i feel the same way about jumping timelines whenever we sleep; i believe that's why SATS and other related methods are so effective. at a certain point, you should be able to wake up whenever and wherever on the timeline. a common thread or analogy i've seen is a "film strip" and being able to select from it like a scene in a movie. the only experience we're aware of is our own, so reincarnation doesn't make much sense to me. if death is as peaceful as you put it, i will be looking forward to it every day.

How did my family deal with that? I am kind of the hinge pin for my family, so I'm saddened to think of all the universes where I passed away. I remain thankful for the ones I'm still in, though, and the good effects I can have on those I love. It's cool.

Looking at the world like this really helped me find peace. Life feels far more adventurous with this truth in mind.

I've never told this story before or really pondered it. In the army I was traumatically injured when I experienced a parachute malfunction. I remember the moment I jumped I felt a death crisis as if I just jumped off a bridge. But I brushed it aside. I got twisted up in the rotor wash and couldn't get a good canopy. I couldn't fix it and landed hard breaking my legs, then got dragged on the ground by the canopy. Eventually people scooped me up and brought me to a medic truck. The medic asked me if I wanted anything for pain and I said YES. I would've taken literally anything. He pulled out a vial of ketamine and a syringe then told the other medic he couldn't remember what the dose was supposed to be, no one had an answer. He then shot me up with 100mg of ketamine.

I felt hot and things got blurry and reality basically fell apart completely. The best way I can describe it is that I was in another dimension, but I was part of it in every way. I wasn't my 3D fleshy self. There was nothing physical anymore. It was an utterly vacant void. I felt like I could move through time as easily as you could through a room. I would warp into these unfamiliar moments living someone else's experience, then fall out of it again. The physical reality was irrelevant like it was one big joke the whole time. The void space felt like the true reality, it wasn't scary or sad at all.

I 100% believed and accepted that I had died and that this is what death was and came to the conclusion that I was an immaterial consciousness, what I thought was my life, was just this consciousness driving a body.

Eventually I warped into myself again and it was over. When I realized it was my pov, I was confused because I felt already dead but now aren't. I wondered how I could be dead because I remember the day and didn't think I had a fatal injury. That helped me come out of it.

I've never been able to shake this feeling since then. I guess I just believe it still. A consciousness driving a body. I wish I could describe it better.

Recently I read that heavy ketamine trips are remarkably similar to NDEs, and I definitely agree. I also saw that brain scans of sheep on ket sometimes showed no activity as if they were dead but resumed later and the sheep survived.

I guess my thought is that, if ketamine does this, then what you experience on it is a death perspective.

Thanks for listening.

So I have always wanted to be a chick. Fetishistic to some degree spiritual to another. But I don't want to transition, wouldn't be right (or safe) for me. So I fell into the trap of body swaps like physical or metaphysical consciousness transfers, but only enjoyed it as fiction. Until 2022 I thought it was impossible.

But one night I had my first lucid dream ever. I am not a naturally gifted dreamer and had never experienced one before. Didn't do any drugs or unfamiliar compounds the night prior. It just happened. Then that morning, I googled it out of excitement; because I thought mastering this technique could help me explore my fantasy.

I stumbled across the gateway tapes ... somehow, don't really remember how it appeared to me, but as I was reading it my brain felt like it was melting. Like longstanding atheistic beliefs were just vaporizing. It was a very weird sensation felt like I was being lobotomized.

The next 3 months were total confusion. Synchronicities started happening to me at a weirdly alarming level. I could predict what people were going to say, change traffic lights occasionally, and it really felt like positive thinking got me physical results. I reached immortal in dota, tripled my salary and was always horny during this time. Now I knew, logically, that I was probably experiencing mania (no history of that at all) or psychosis (no history there either) but it felt very real.

I leaned into it and focused my efforts and consciously switching bodies with a woman. And I would, at first, get this sensation around others. It was sort of goopy, I guess, like there was some unseen gelatinous part of me that would pull itself towards others. It was like this sucking sensation. Like the dialogue in oblivion almost, I'd just get locked in but there was this sensation along with it. I'd get flashes of double vision too. Like once, I saw from my coworkers perspective and my own at the same time. It was uncontrollable and random.

The image is a painting that appears to be a modern, abstract expressionist style. It features a dark, moody color palette with a palette knife technique, creating a sense of depth and texture. The central focus is a large, dark, circular shape that dominates the composition, with a smaller, more detailed shape to the left. The background is a blend of dark and light colors, with a sense of movement and energy. There are two figures in the painting, one on the left and one on the right, both wearing white, skull-like masks. The figures are positioned in a way that suggests they are facing each other, with the left figure slightly behind the right one. The overall style of the painting is dramatic and evocative, with a strong emphasis on form and color.

So meditating on this and living in the moment, I eventually succeeded. But only for a glimpse. At this point I had trained myself to lucid dream and was quite familiar with it. One morning I sort of just blipped into another body. I knew who I was and I felt every detail. Just for a second. Like the shape of my tongue in my mouth, teeth arranged differently, and different organs of course. How small I felt in comparison. Then, without blinking, I was back to me.

The next day I got violently ill and could not stop shitting liquid for 4 days. Once I recovered, the "magic" was gone. I had some other experiences too that are connected but not as relevant I suppose. It was a very odd and thrilling period of time.

Ive experienced divine driven timeline shifting so many times its unreal. It doesnt exactly work the way most imagine it. The eternal life promised is real. For instance, if you live in a low vibrationl timeline and embody a low vibrational self, you will witness the death of saints and godly men while from their perspective, they will be saved by timeline jumping. You will see death, while they will be their own faith, at the moment the trigger is pulled in your timeline, be shifted into a timeline in where the gun jammed and an angel descended against the saints enemies, scared them away and spared the believer. The Godly man does not fear death nor will he ever feel it.

You don't consciously "do" anything for this to function. It's a basic fundamental aspect of our consciousness and the way it is attached to our apparently physical material presence. It's been going on since the earliest forms of life.. in fact it's related to the physics of consciousness in the first place.

Human technology is not yet even noticing. Humans theorize about the Higgs field properties without establishing the relationship between our existent consciousness and the apparently existent material reality.

You think you are seeing one simple clear reality but you are only seeing one phase of a spectrum of quantum fields that are constantly connected and not disrupted by our form of consciousness that only sees one small aspect of this.

I'm not guessing but it's a sad fact that the people who might want knowledge are unable to figure out what information they should be focused on and what information they would be better off ignoring, at least until they are competently able to evaluate it. Many people who are attempting to take a leadership position in explaining their knowledge actually only have a tiny additional aspect or two figured out or partially figured out.. often these are poorly conceived of insights and founded on arbitrary conclusion and dogmatic rhetoric. It takes a lot of experience to gain real insight. It's fair to say, despite being capable of correct insight and understanding, until you have actual experience with this subject your opinions are not yet grounded to reality. Out of body consciousness is a field that takes years of experience with to be fully established in. Even once you are seeing clearly, there is more to know.

Anonymous Sat 21 Feb 2026 20:05:38 No.42006773 Report

This is part of why people really don't grasp the reality.. representation is conceptual. The moth is not 'just' a concept. The reality is not 'just' a concept.. it is the dynamic behavior of quantum fields. Concepts are used to describe the existing behavioral properties.

Your own consciousness sees a tiny fraction of what actually exists.. and the concept of dimensional presence beyond that which you can easily perceive seems like illusion and fictional concept fabricated for nonsensical purposes. A deliberately fictional story can be entertaining and hold your attention. An actual deliberate effort to describe something that someone has managed to perceive is not the same. Sincere efforts to describe perception may be conceptual and may be in error to various degree.. but it comes from a foundation within the deliberate effort of an individual to make sense of their ability to perceive reality.

You can perceive many things that are not easy to comprehend and are not easy to describe accurately. When two people have similar experiences they are more likely to recognize when another person is describing something they have their own direct personal experience with.

Get into examining what you managed to perceive and even with your best efforts you will only be describing the event from within your own personal range of perception. Knowing that your existence extends beyond the linear physical phase of material is an insight that a smaller number of people can share.. and if your perception doesn't extend beyond the linear context you would not even have observed enough depth to make your observations meaningful to the more experienced seers.

You saw what you saw. You know you saw something.. but sharing it is possible only when you're in the company of those who actually can understand what you have perceived. Those who are simply guessing typically assume that everyone else is limited in the same way that they themselves are.

The image is a black and white line drawing of a circular object with a geometric design. The object has a series of interconnected lines and shapes that form a complex pattern. At the top of the circle, there is a small arrow pointing to the right, indicating a direction or a point of interest. The design is intricate and appears to be a stylized representation of a compass rose, which is a traditional symbol used to indicate cardinal directions. The style of the image is minimalist and abstract, with a focus on the geometric shapes and lines. There are no texts or additional elements within the image.

Hi former GATE/AIG anon, glowie family one a physicist who can't share his work.

>Have you ever personally experienced a true Mandela effect?

Yes. For the macro scale ones like Berenstain Bears or collective false memories/observable symbol changes

>Have you ever experienced "quantum immortality" or "quantum suicide" in any way?

I suspect a drowning incident at 8 that was almost setup and scripted to happen to me (mother insisted to not lose a borrowed beach ball at a rental, I swim out too far to retrieve it and drowned got rescued). Couple of incidents driving.

>Have you ever woken up and realized that things were different in an inexplicable or uncanny way?

Yes but nothing to share exactness on

>Have you ever had a near-death experience?

Yes

>Have you contacted anybody after they passed? Have they contacted you (e.g. via dreams)?

I suspect several girls I've been with and fellow GATE peers had been in a shared dream space. I think that I astrally projected and got caught. Make of that what you will.

>Have you ever experienced a time-slip or time-loop?

Yes. Could be OCD brain/overattention and prediction but I generally have a prescient knowledge feeling or intuition that recently has been giving me information that I really couldn't discern myself. Something beyond subconscious perhaps instead above it and my base consciousness.

>Have you ever had any other paranormal experiences related to dimensional jumping/shifting not listed above?

Yes. An intense recognition of an "other" within me. Which makes sense, I lived a deeply dualistic role based life. I had to untangle and reintegrate.

do you have any method to keep track of where you are? or to identify the context of navigation within this conceptual form of variation of 'location'?

you are not taking into consideration how much foundational concept you are lacking. the 'where' you are speaking of is much more complicated than you see. your ordinary mundane world is a layer of conceptual form within a fluidly dynamic field. it is held together by alignment between the bosonic field of your consciousness and the higgs value (which is not a fixed value as it appears from within the context of a human consciousness; that is only the point of resonant alignment) this is only one aspect of your existence.. and there is much more to find. this is why i recommend development of consciousness as the highest point of accomplishment for a human.

the highest achievement available to a human is to break through the effects of the technology that is being applied to contain you in a trance. once you can see your own memories you will have the foundation for perception beyond the limited reality that you so far have had your perception limited to.

it sounds impossible.. until the realization is your own. look at your memories. find the flaws. examine them deeply. if you can dismiss any memory that seems flawed the technology is going to remain undetected.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UpJogtuxqXQ>

these are the guys responsible for the equipment that has been preventing your memory from functioning correctly during the events.
people wonder why they would come here without any concept of what 'here' is from their point of view.

you are constantly in motion in the context of a dynamic array of quantum fields.
becoming oriented is a first step if you aim to watch the process happening.

I've done a lot of manifestation stuff over the years, but it always happened as a series of coincidences.

Two years ago I very intensely visualized for a bigger dick. After a while, one day at work I started noticing weird stuff, and slowly I realized that I had lost an entire week. Stuff I knew had happened, had never happened. Work I knew had done and things that had happened that one could not ever be mistaken about.

My dick is 3 inches longer than it used to be.

The funniest thing is I don't remember the actual visualization sessions. I know I did them, but that's it.

Well, the actual funniest thing about this is that I'm incredibly resentful of women and I know I will probably never have a gf or relations ever again. But I manifested something that I thought was impossible. So, there.

Anyway, I occasionally notice an odd discrepancy but there is one big one. When I was a kid my dad was an excellent cook and would eat pretty much anything you put in front of him. I specifically remember him buying a book on cajun cooking and making tons of shit from it. As for things that changed, implementing whole features in an application. I remembered exactly how I had done it, what classes I had written, down to specific code snippets I could recall perfectly. None of it was there, and I was told that work had not been done yet.

There were other small things relating to my daily life, but I've forgotten what they were. For a week or two I felt like I was dreaming. Very strange. Like dissociation or something.

The only thing similar I have ever experienced is waking up in the morning on a weekend and having this distinct feeling that the day before was months away, like I was remembering something that happened a long time ago. But nothing noticeable has changed. When that happens I pretend I've switched timelines or universes. But other than the fun LARP, I've never noticed anything about those times.

Depends on what evidence they have for their beliefs that they are targeted.

Other people dismiss the reports as being delusional.. sometimes other people will even ignore real evidence. A handful of tiny microphone devices (expensive at that time) were found by someone I knew back in the 90s, on top of her refrigerator when she suddenly returned to her apartment just after driving away. Then more of the devices were found hidden throughout the house. It was the only physical evidence she had of the situation she had been trying to get anyone to acknowledge.

Turned out her former boyfriend was well connected to federal agencies due to his involvement in prison gang culture. It wasn't delusional.

Her drug use made her an unreliable witness but her situation was real.. but it really wasn't clear that she had been telling the truth until those were found.

On a case by case basis each situation has to be evaluated. Some people are just poor thinkers and confused.. but you're not much better if you disregard everyone else because of them. Even if it's rare it happens. Where are the Epstein girls? There were many hundreds of them. On a case by case basis the individuals reporting the events sound insane. This frustrates them and causes them to begin to act insane in the attempt to get anyone to listen.

Sometimes the elites will come and eat your fries like Bill Murray and say to your face "no one is gonna believe you "

Vagus nerve

Vagus nerve plays a whole lot in somatic therapy.

Trauma therapy is mostly about retraining your vagus nerve.

Polyvagal theory or therapy. That one book the body keeps score. Had threads on it awhile ago but those "trauma release exercises" use the same theory.

Your vagus nerve is pretty much the biological scientific basis for meridians and chakras.

Your vagus nerve goes from your brain, to your throat, to your heart, lungs stomach, bowels and genitals.

And each one of these places is said to have its own brain which are the chakras.

i took antidepressants for a year or so. every morning after i took the pill i would be increasingly nauseous and it would build to a point in the middle of my chest moving upwards to my throat until i would hiccup once and the nausea would go away. the rest of the day i would be fine. after i stopped taking those meds that side effect went away. although i find now ive become increasingly prone to hiccups in general. any sort of carbonated beverage will immediately trigger the hiccups. it sucks. although the dentist said i should never drink carbonated beverages anyway..

There comes a point where practitioners learn to "feed" on their surroundings to stimulate effect. We already do it subconsciously; witnessing an exhilarating sports match makes us excited; investigating something we care about makes us feel physically energetic. After conscious stimulation and study of the process, the practitioner's encounter with elated energy tends to enamor them around whatever experience(s) they extracted that power from. It is the cause of much vice and corruption, religious zealotry, and possession by vampiric entities, all because we tend to follow the light like moths to a flame. The sign of Aquarius either does, or has been chosen to, represent over society this life-force and its application, its spillings and its uses. Whether we get some qlippothic battery or a true renaissance depends upon from what or whom humanity decides to derive this psychic nutrition. If you ignore it, others will use it against you.

The image is a vibrant and detailed painting that depicts a human head with a prominent, elongated, spiral-like structure protruding from the top of the head. This structure is composed of a series of interconnected lines and curves, with a central point that seems to be a point of focus or a focal point. The colors used in the painting are predominantly red, purple, and blue, with some yellow and green accents adding to the overall vibrancy. The background is a blend of white and pink, with a pattern that resembles a lace or net-like texture. The painting style is realistic with a focus on anatomical detail, and it appears to be a piece of art rather than a photograph. There are no texts present in the image.

There's a therapist on youtube I forget the name of who did a bunch of videos on the vagus nerve, it seems to be implicated in memory at least with the PTSD stuff so maybe. I don't see the parapsychological connection though, I think people with assumptions about phenomena tend to jump on scientific sounding things without looking too deep into the science. I guess I'm jaded from all the times a spiritual system was suddenly "explained" by a new model of the brain only come to find it is obsolete ten or fifteen years later and was only a reflection of our measurements or bad assumptions.

I agree, In fact, it seems kind of interesting how old school psychologists (like Freud and most notably Jung) who started pretty grounded in science ended up approaching more occult topics towards the end of their careers.

That is interesting... might explain why some people have huge memory issues from meditation. I've had this issue, only ever really crops up whenever I start meditating again. I also feel like I have a massive blockage in my vagus nerve / spine / throat / kundalini / whatever, and the meditation never reaches the point it/I want it to.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with a predominantly blue and white color scheme. The character has long, dark hair that cascades down her back, and her eyes are a light blue color. She has a pink heart-shaped mark on her cheek, and her expression is one of surprise or shock. The character is wearing a white top with a blue collar and a blue skirt with a white hem. Her right hand is raised, pointing towards the ground, and her left hand is extended outward, as if she is in the middle of a gesture. The background is dark with a gradient of purple hues, and there are small, glowing particles that resemble stars or fireflies. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and dynamic poses.

View SameGoogleiqdbSauceNAOTrace Becoming a magical girl.jpg, 143KiB, 1080x763

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character in a dynamic pose, seemingly in mid-air. The character is a young woman with long, wavy hair, wearing a school uniform consisting of a white blouse, a black skirt, and a white belt. She has a backpack slung over her shoulders and is holding a wand with a pink handle and a pink ribbon. The wand is extended upwards, suggesting movement or action.

The background of the image is a cityscape with buildings of varying heights and a clear blue sky with a few scattered stars. The city appears to be at night, with the lights of the buildings visible. The character is positioned on a rooftop with a metal railing, and the cityscape extends out of the frame, providing a sense of depth and perspective.

There are no discernible texts within the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its vibrant colors, detailed character designs, and dynamic action sequences. The overall mood of the image is serene and contemplative, with the character's action-packed pose contrasting with the calm cityscape in the background.

>She is a ball of sunshine and brightens the day to everyone
>Suddenly she starts going out with friends at weird times at night or in the morning and comes home smelling strange and covered in weird fluids
>Had sudden mood changes and becomes prone to outbursts and tears
>Can only be calmed down after going to the bathroom and smearing herself with magical powder
>Arrives home with "witch" marks on her neck, thighs and navel
>Has taken to ingesting hard substances and when drunk says she's from "another dimension"
>One day she went out to "fight evil" and didn't come back home

I highly suspect she was a magical girl but can't prove it

[26 / 6]The image is a digital artwork that depicts a hand reaching out from a window, with the Earth visible through the window. The hand appears to be in a state of motion, as if it is about to touch the window. The window itself has a reflective surface, and the Earth is shown with a blueish hue, suggesting a night sky. There are multiple bright meteors streaking across the sky, and the Earth is shown with a dark, possibly volcanic landscape. The sky is filled with stars, and the overall atmosphere is dramatic and intense.

In the bottom left corner of the image, there is a watermark that reads "DarkPixel," indicating the artist's name. The style of the image is realistic with a touch of surrealism, as it combines elements of science fiction with a realistic depiction of the Earth and sky. The colors are dark and moody, with the blue of the Earth contrasting with the fiery meteors and the dark sky. The overall composition and the use of light and shadow create a sense of depth and drama.

The main body of text is a quote from Rabbi Rabinovich, dated January 12, 1953, in Budapest, Hungary. The quote is in English and reads: "It has required two thousand years of Christian influence to create the civilization of the white race. And it will take two thousand years of Christian influence to destroy the civilization of the black race. What sensible, intellectually honest individual would advocate such treason against tradition?"

The text is structured in a way that follows a logical flow, starting with the quote and then providing a response from Rabinovich. The response is a statement about the importance of destroying the "Gentile" and "black" races, and the need for a program to destroy the "Gentile" and "black" races. The response concludes with a statement about the white man and the black woman becoming only a memory, emphasizing the passage of time and the inevitability of change.

The style of the image is reminiscent of historical documents or speeches, with a focus on the text and the historical context it provides. The image is in black and white, which adds to the historical and formal tone of the document.

One thing that occurs to me is that the Manhattan Project relied upon huge amounts of high-grade uranium from the Shinkolobwe mine in the Belgian Congo. A US Army geologist at the time observed that such a deposit was an incredible stroke of luck.

It could be that it's unheard of for a species as primitive as ourselves to obtain compact and reliable nuclear weapons so early. For most advanced races, they may remain a theoretical concept for a very long time. A compact, inconspicuous device that can release energy comparable to an antimatter charge, and can be deployed by virtual talking apes.

This might explain the unusual attention we seem to be attracting.

I'd also highlight the sociological changes, those tend to go hand in hand with tech. You had nuclear weapons deployed less than a century after the abolition of slavery by the same nation. Womens roles, etc, etc. Whether that's good or bad, it was a profound amount of change.

>This might explain the unusual attention we seem to be attracting.

My hunch is that your on the right track. Humans are strangely good at working communally, and individually. Constant competitive organised conflict seems to bring out the best in us.

>3)enter heaven and become an automoton freak that sings 'holy holy holy' to "god" for all eternity

That's not what Biblical heaven is.

Isaiah 65:17—

“For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things will not be remembered, nor come into mind.

18But be glad and rejoice forever in that which I create; for, behold, I create Jerusalem to be a delight, and her people a joy.

19I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and delight in my people; and the voice of weeping and the voice of crying will be heard in her no more.

20“No more will there be an infant who only lives a few days, nor an old man who has not filled his days; for the child will die one hundred years old, and the sinner being one hundred years old will be accursed.

22They will not build and another inhabit. They will not plant and another eat; for the days of my people will be like the days of a tree, and my chosen will long enjoy the work of their hands.

24It will happen that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. 25The wolf and the lamb will feed together. The lion will eat straw like the ox. Dust will be the serpent's food. They will not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain," says Yahweh.

Middle Eastern prophets had some weird brotherly love thing going on. I think 'the bride' mentioned in the Bible was a secret gay dog whistle. Kinda sus, man. The Bible reads like a Illuminati sodomy ritual in disguise. Masonic spellings. Homosexual innuendos. Another thing about the Bible is that apparently God doesn't care what you've been through because you can go to hell if you don't believe and worship them. Even though this world is a gay punch to the nuts to be born in for a lot of guys, we have these cocksuckers telling us our sorrow doesn't end there! Do you know what it was like for ancient men who had their lands conquered and their women raped? These men were being sacrificed to whatever gay god the enemy conquerors believed in. You have a tight-knit pagan community, with its own beliefs and traditions, you've formed strong societies and then these Jews move in and start telling everyone there's a possibility they will burn in hell if they don't behave a certain way and believe in their god. Basically most people are already fucked and there's no way out according to them. Do you know what being nice to your enemies gets you in this world? Subhumans only perceive weakness. They are opportunistic predators. Connect the dots.

I guess most human beings can get raped in hell and it wouldn't even phase them. Including us. It's all because you're not a pure little ball of light like them. This is basically a no-excuses mind control religion that seeks to condemn everyone. You can see how it would cause mental confusion (schizophrenia) because people are so retarded and scared of going to HELL for doing normal shit that everyone has done for thousands of years. All while seeking to direct all of the power and authority to the few people that should not be anywhere near power and authority. Because trust me goy, you and your whole family will go to hell if you don't.

Multi-layered deceptions. Psyops upon psyops. Everybody wants to rule the world.

I don't know, man. If I was surrounded by a bunch of sexy tribeswomen and had my own society that I was a patriarch of and the respect of my brothers just to be told by some fags that not saving myself for marriage and fornicating with MY women is really fucking bad! You could go to hell! You have nothing to be proud of! Give glory to GOD, you heathen!

SMELLS LIKE BULLSHIT. That would be a way better life than this faggy modern society.

Men have always been cocksucking assholes seeking to dominate and control other men and their women. Do the research. How is today's world any different? It's not. It's a primordial death cult.

People have forgotten and they have become like dogs in the process. It only enables your enemy to take advantage of you and dominate you. People are too retarded to figure out that maybe these Jews were lying.

You have a bunch of naggers that covet your lands and your women too. Turning the other cheek only gets you raped in the ass. It's like people need this explained to them like they're fucking toddlers. Pathetic.

Here's a question for you, what's the point of keeping your soul, if the only point of your life is to serve and give praise to a hostile entity that forces you to walk on egg shells at all times under threat of indefinite prolonged extreme torture? Assuming that any and all mistakes or errors are compiled and accounted for and taken as strikes against you until you are eventually deemed fit for destruction/torture?

Wouldn't it make more sense to actually just self delete and be free from this dynamic? Whether it be your body or your soul, why would you want to live within a context such as this?, where you are conflated with garbage fit to be burned until proven otherwise?

Where compliance is explained as true love?

I don't quite understand the point of this explanation of existence? Is it not better to be free or to be dead? And I mean truly free... not just "permitted" but possessing enough power and understanding yourself that nothing else could hurt you even if it wanted to or make/force you to do it's will by any account or accord?

What is the benefit in living with a "God" if this supposed God gets to be free and uses what power it has to make you ignorant and powerless? A world where you have to die and let your dreams die as well, so that the dreams of another can prosper? A world where it will see to it you won't and can't have your way and won't be enjoying that which you experience by it's hands? This is the most high ideal?

What really is the benefit or "profit" to such an existence? Shouldn't you just seek to kill this hostile God at all costs then? Replace it with something less awful? Or would you just become awful yourself in doing so and a hypocrite, making self destruction the only logical conclusion, try to make it's dreams stay intact like it wouldn't give you, and destroy yourself to not have to suffer it's company and "judgement" any longer? Maybe some day it will find contentment.. maybe not Genuinely, why live?

The mk ultra type programs were wildly successful. For decades there was competition within the agencies to make people do things that others had suggested was impossible. Literally anything they could think of that seemed impossible to cause a human to do, other departments took as a challenge and set out to find a way to cause someone to do it. As a result anyone can be caused to do anything, literally, within their ability.. and their abilities both physical and mental can be expanded and developed far beyond what is commonly thought possible.

The image is a screenshot of a Twitter post by Evan McMullin, a political figure. The post is dated September 17, 2016, and is titled "My role in the CIA was to go out & convince Al Qaeda operatives to instead work with us." The post includes a tweet with a timestamp of 7:00 PM and a mention of "Are you suggesting that CIA is in cahoots with Al Qaeda? Do you actively teach our students this garbage at @NorthEastern? My goodness." The tweet is followed by a response from Max Abrahams, who is identified as @MaxAbrahams. The tweet has a blue background and a green header, and the text is in white. The tweet is a response to a question posed by Evan McMullin, indicating that the CIA is not in cahoots with Al Qaeda and that the CIA does not teach students this garbage. The tweet has a mention of 303 retweets and 1,061 likes. The overall tone of the post is critical and appears to be a response to a question posed by Evan McMullin.

I still have some of my writing from a mental breakdown. Some of it was partially sane, some of it was not. All I'm gonna say is if abductions are real, they are likely human, not alien. It is so easy for an agent to pick someone up if they prepare enough, and likely the glowies do it regularly to hone their craft before they do it for real. We already have drugs to do this, and they're so easy to acquire, college kids learn how to use them.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a person wearing a fedora hat, a black trench coat, and a mask with goggles. The individual is extending their right hand, which is wearing a glove, and appears to be gesturing or pointing with their finger. The person's face is obscured by the mask, and the goggles cover the eyes. The background is out of focus, but it suggests an urban setting with a building and a window. The style of the image is dramatic and dramatic, with a strong contrast between the dark tones and the lighter areas. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image.

It's all connected, all the seemingly disparate occurrences, the coincidences, the times you had lucky guesses, the uniformity in things you've said simultaneously to one another before exclaiming "Jinx, buy me a soda", the times you've been accused of something while they were the ones actively doing it, those trippy thoughts you had under the influence of drugs that you forgot about, all those times you were trying to say a word and you knew what it was but just could not remember the word itself, when you heard a scream as you were waking up but nothing made it, when you think about someone before your phone rings, your favorite foods, your favorite video games and movies, and the winter solstice.

The image shows a collection of three items laid out on a patterned surface. On the left, there is a notebook with a white cover and a black spiral binding. The notebook has a logo in the center, which appears to be a stylized letter "O" with a geometric design surrounding it.

In the center of the image, there are three items: a beige-colored item with a red design on it, a black item with a white design on it, and a white item with a purple design on it. The beige item has the word "Moksha" written in black on it. The black item has the word "Brahmachari" written in purple on it. The white item has the word "Brahmachari" written in purple on it.

The background of the image is a red patterned surface with a repeating design that appears to be a stylized floral or geometric pattern. The overall style of the image is casual and appears to be a photograph rather than a digital image.

The image shows two circular frames against a dark background. The frame on the left is a dark red with a gold-colored border and intricate designs, while the frame on the right is a lighter gold with a red border and a similar intricate design. Both frames have a circular shape with a central hole, and they are illuminated with a golden light that casts a glow on the edges. The lighting creates a sense of depth and highlights the intricate details of the frames. The image has a 3D rendering effect, giving it a three-dimensional appearance. There are no texts or discernible actions in the image. The style of the

I feel like so called "modern weaponry" is a satanic psyop. Astras (weapons made by True Divinity), especially pic, could chop an abrams tank (and its occupants) clean into square inch bloodless cubes.

One sure sign of spiritual maturity is being drawn to "weapons of old" (swords, bows, daggers, etc.) and realizing guns/helicopters/planes/submarines are just "what the human species is permitted by NHI to use in current human on human warfare"

This one is barely schizo, at least initially, but I do not believe that the "elites" are attempting to usher in the antichrist in the way many of my fellow lunatics seem to believe. I think that they are very happy with the current status quo, and I think that they are taking the threat posed by all of these prophecies about a popular man rising up and taking power very seriously. They do seem to believe that we are in the end times, and they seem to have postured themselves to combat him or anything like him should he arise. I also think that we have been intentionally kept on the brink of a third world war for some time as a last ditch failsafe to keep our current power structures in place.

Should any sort of revolution be attempted, any world power could effectively trigger a world war within a few minutes, martial law, a wartime level of propaganda, a wartime mindset in the populace, and conscription would change things drastically, not to mention that with what modern war seems to look like most fighting age men would not return from combat. Do not forget, in most of the prophecies he rises up with massive support to overthrow tyranny, it is only later that his nature shifts and his heart hardens, in many of the prophecies the man who overthrows the tyrants and the so-called "son of perdition" are actually two entirely separate men, with the latter overthrowing the former and ruling as a tyrant, while the former ruled as a fair and beloved ruler.

Realize agency exists on a spectrum and can never be taken away from you. You will always have intent, the opps can't take it from you outright.

The earth is under attack from negative alien entities who although are what we would consider to be “evil”, must comply with universal consent laws regarding free will. They wish to rule over us by manipulating this. Essentially tricking us into asking for it ourselves.

So they can then take over our world in full law compliance.

If you believe that evil rules over you you then give consent and they win.

You are really not that far off, but they're just related, moreso than being caused by one or the other. Its a sequence of events that have to occur. But the big Epstein domino(s) must fall first before they can integrate aliens into the narrative.

Look into the TI program / phenomenon. It's real, but OP's illusions about their capabilities are just that - ideas they've bought into as a result of either research, or experiencing it themselves. They don't control shit. They just use AI and fancy real time

The image is a screenshot of a text article, likely from a scientific or educational publication, discussing the Curt Richter rat experiment. The title of the article is "The Curt Richter rat experiment," which is prominently displayed at the top of the image. Below the title, there is a paragraph of text that provides a brief explanation of the experiment.

The image features three glass tubes, each containing a white rat. The rats are submerged in water, and the tubes are filled with water up to their necks. The rats are positioned in such a way that they appear to be swimming or floating. The text explains that the rats were given an average of 10 minutes to swim and then left to rest for 10 minutes. The rats were observed to swim up to the top of the water, indicating that they were able to escape from the water.

The text also mentions that the rats believed they would eventually be rescued, and they would push their bodies way past what they previously thought. This suggests that the rats were able to overcome their initial fear of water and were able to escape from the water.

The image is a clear and detailed representation of the experiment, with the rats clearly visible in the tubes and the text providing a scientific explanation of the experiment's results. The image is a visual aid to the text, allowing readers to understand the experiment's details and the rats' behavior.

It's deeper than glowies.

As far as most are aware, the only ways they control people are through mass cultural programming, propaganda, blackmail, bots, MK-ultra, etc.

V2K and all that other shit is reserved for higher echelon, the mysterious orders they receive from "high up".

Even those people are pawns for a much greater power.

I theorize Earth is a "spiritual battleground" for NHI. We are the new kid on the block, and naturally there are those who want to initiate us in their club, test technology on us, just watch us grow, etc. There are benevolent NHI, the morally in-between, and extreme opposite. The malevolent ones currently control the most territory; they're the ayy's who would call us "toys". They've turned Earth into a farm that's impossible to understand, because they've turned the human mind itself into an untrustworthy enemy. They blinded you, and so generously promised to lead you to greener pastures.

Free will, and perception itself were monopolized the moment they found us, but they give people the comfortable illusion of it, because that keeps the wheel turning.

[15 / 2]The image is a close-up sketch of a man's face, rendered in a style reminiscent of Renaissance or Baroque art. The man's features are depicted with a high level of detail, suggesting a meticulous approach to the drawing. His hair is drawn in a flowing, wavy manner, and his beard is depicted with a realistic texture. The background is a light, neutral color, which contrasts with the darker tones of the drawing, enhancing the visibility of the details. The drawing is executed in a loose, sketchy manner, with visible brushstrokes that add to the overall texture and depth of the image. There is no visible text or additional elements in the image. The style of the drawing is indicative of the artistic movements of the Renaissance and Baroque periods, characterized by a focus on realism and a desire to capture the essence of the subject rather than the surface details.

With everything, technology depends on how much "voodoo" is in it. Art and technology all has varying levels of "voodoo," AI is on the far end of voodoo, evil voodoo, basically trying to force synchronicity into existence. Renaissance artists and inventors worked with the tools available to them at the time, Da Vinci specifically favoured a silver pen for its precision and permanence, one iteration, perfect synchronicity, no voodoo.

Da Vinci was homosexual, maybe you fail to see eye to eye with him, but renaissance was truly one of the few periods which could be described as a peak in human development, and he was the example.

The image is a book cover with a predominantly purple background. At the top of the cover, the title "The Great Apparitions of Mary" is written in a serif font. Below the title, the subtitle "An Examination of Twenty-Two Supernatural Appearances" is written in a smaller, sans-serif font. The author's name, "INGO SWANN," is displayed in a smaller, sans-serif font at the bottom of the cover.

In the center of the cover, there is an illustration of a woman dressed in a white robe with a black hood. She is seated on a throne-like chair with a globe in front of her. The woman appears to be in a contemplative pose, with her hands clasped together in front of her. The background of the illustration is a gradient of purple, transitioning from a darker shade at the top to a lighter shade at the bottom.

The overall style of the image is artistic and spiritual, with a focus on the central figure and the text, which suggests that the book may be about spiritual or religious themes. The use of a purple background and the central illustration of the woman with the globe may indicate a connection to the Virgin Mary or a theme of spiritual significance.

The ra material is really just trying to groom people for the coming "harvest" spoken about at the end of revelation. It falsely tries to convince you that you either need to be a sheep(service to others/slave) or a goat(serice to self/slavemaster). This is so they know whether to put you with the underground occult wizard freaks underground(the satan faction) or whether to make you a mindless automoton in the coming new jerusalem cube ruled y saturn(the lion faction). Neither the ra material, nor writings about the harvest in revelation encourage the middle path of non-polarity, because that's the path outta this maze

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character that resembles the Cheshire Cat from the animated film "Alice in Wonderland." The character is depicted in a dynamic pose with a wide smile, showcasing its large, pink and purple striped body. The stripes are arranged in a diagonal pattern, with the pink stripes on the left and the purple stripes on the right. The character's eyes are large and yellow, and it has a playful expression with its mouth open. The character's arms are outstretched, and it appears to be in motion, as if it is jumping or dancing. The background is dark and appears to be a cave or a dark space, with a hint of blue and purple hues. The character's position and the surrounding environment suggest a sense of movement and energy.

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a person lying down with their head resting on a pillow. The person appears to be in a relaxed state, with their eyes closed and a slight smile on their face. The drawing is simple and cartoon-like, with no shading or depth, and the style is reminiscent of a web comic or a simple line drawing. At the top of the image, there is text that reads "HOW I SLEEP, KNOWING THAT I'LL BE LOOPIING." The text is in a casual, informal font and is positioned in a way that it appears to be a caption or a title for the image. The text is centered and is larger than the drawing, drawing attention to it. The overall style of the image is light-hearted and humorous, as indicated by the text.

The image is a collage of two distinct sections. The upper section features a series of black and white hieroglyphic symbols, arranged in a grid-like pattern. The symbols include various shapes and characters, some of which resemble animals and others that resemble human figures. The text "shut up, bozo" is overlaid on the upper section, suggesting a playful or humorous tone.

The lower section of the image is a close-up of a hand holding a glowing orb. The hand appears to be made of light, and the orb emits a warm, golden light. The background of the lower section is a blurred image of an ancient Egyptian wall, with hieroglyphs and other symbols visible. The text "curse of ra" is overlaid on the lower section, which is in a bold, capitalized font.

The overall style of the image is surreal and humorous, combining elements of ancient Egyptian culture with a playful and ironic twist. The use of hieroglyphs and the Egyptian wall in the lower section adds a layer of cultural context to the image, while the text "curse of ra" plays on the idea of curses and the Egyptian gods Ra and Horus.

The image is a still from a movie or television show, featuring a character in a forest setting. The character is a man with long, dark hair and a beard, wearing a dark, possibly leather, jacket with a hood. He has a serious expression on his face and is looking off to the side. The character is holding a bow and arrow, suggesting he is prepared for hunting or a similar activity.

Below the character, there is a text overlay that reads, "Let's hunt some Orc." The text is in white, contrasting with the darker background of the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the character and the text, and it appears to be a still from a scene where the character is in a hunting stance. Were ancient jews dwarfs greedily tunneling for gold under the volcano before delving to deep and freeing the Balrog?

"Then something came into the chamber - I felt it through the door, and the Orcs themselves were afraid and fell silent. It laid hold of the iron ring, and then it perceived me and my spell."

- The Lord of the Rings, "The Bridge of Khazad-dûm"

>The characteristic Israelite narratives of Yahweh's appearance in the burning thorn bush (Exod. 3.2), in the burning and smoking Sinai (Exod. 19.9, 20.18; Deut. 4.11), and especially in the pillars of smoke and fire (Exod. 13.21)...can be explained originally from the fact that, in Israel's earliest belief, Yahweh was the god of the Sinai volcano.

>In his commentary on the book of Genesis, Gunkel opines that the 'smoking fire pot and flaming torch' of Gen. 15.17 is a unique divine revelation found in the Patriarchal narratives, and that this story about Yahweh—a fire demon—is based originally on the Moses legends at Sinai. In addition, Gunkel was one of the first to point out volcanic imagery in the Psalms. Gunkel's observations that Sinai-Horeb was a volcano influenced Eduard Meyer, one of the champions of the Midianite–Kenite hypothesis. Meyer accredits Gunkel with the volcano hypothesis.

>Why the donkey. Egypt supplies the key. The god Set, identified with Typhon in Greek sources, was a desert god who by the Late Period could be drawn with a donkey like head. Jews were regularly identified with Asiatic foreigners and with the Hyksos who had revered Set. In this environment it was easy to link the god of the Jews with the donkey imagery of Set Typhon.

>The Donkey Deity shows how Egyptian and magical traditions merge Set Typhon with names used for the god of the Jews, especially Iao, the Greek form of the divine name. In this matrix the creator becomes a donkey shaped adversary, the villain of the cosmos, and this image feeds the myth making of some Christian groups who rejected the creator and elevated a higher god beyond him.

>The most striking evidence comes from the Greek magical papyri and engraved gems. Several spells invoke Set or Typhon together with Iao or Sabaoth, names that ancient writers regularly recognize as forms associated with the god of the Jews. Some gems even show a donkey headed figure with serpent legs holding a shield inscribed with Iao. The visual says the quiet part out loud. Set Typhon and the god called Iao are fused in ritual practice and image.

Jewish Edomite origin has been covered quite extensively in previous dgg threads (esp #2), but without much focus on metallurgy and the Typhonian volcanic aspect. A demon which was definitively linked to Set and YHWH in late period Egypt as described by Manetho, then carried through into Roman descriptions, but with a much earlier provenance in the comparative sense.

>Those who say that Typhon fled from the battle on an ass for seven days, and having been saved produced sons, Hierosolymus and Judeaus, are at this point clearly dragging Jewish issues into the story." (Plutarch, De Iside et Osiride 363C-D)

>When those that were sent to work in the quarries had continued for some time in that miserable state, the king was petitioned to set apart for their habitation and protection the city Avaris, which had been left desolate by the Shepherds; and he granted them their desire: now this city, according to the ancient theology, is a Typhonian city.

(Manetho, Egyptian scribe, On the Israelites)

>Typhon was the Ahriman, or Satan, of the Egyptian theology. "Down to the time of Rameses, B.C. 1300, he was one of the most venerated and powerful gods. After about 970 B.C. he was regarded as the foe of Osiris and all the gods of Egypt."

The image is a black and white illustration that appears to be a page from an ancient book or a historical document. The title at the top of the page reads "IMAGO TYPHONIS" in Latin, which translates to "Image of Typhon" in English. Below the title, there is a section titled "INXTA APOLCDOBVM" which translates to "In the name of the Emperor" in English.

At the bottom of the page, there is a section titled "JERUBRISI PHOENICI" which translates to "Jupiter's Phallus" in English. This section contains a series of lines of text in Latin, which are not fully legible due to the image's resolution.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of medieval or Renaissance art, with its use of ornate lettering and the inclusion of a map-like background, which suggests a historical or mythological context. The text and the illustration together create a sense of mystery and intrigue, as the image seems to be a representation of a mythological or legendary figure.

Father of monsters and poster child for the modern pedo cabal.

>Typhon (also Typhoeus) is the largest and most dreadful monster in Greek mythology. He was tall, with a brutish face, and had wings, countless snakeheads in place of hands, and a lower body made up of coiled serpents. His eyes flashed fire, and fiery rocks fell from his mouth.

>Typhon was the son of Gaia (the Earth) and Tartarus (the Infernal Regions), or Rhea and Cronus. He married Echidna, a half-woman, half-snake creature, and together they had many fierce children. The most famous myth associated with Typhon is his battle with Zeus and the Olympian gods, as he sought to rule over gods and mortals. Typhon is also associated with Set from ancient Egyptian mythology and other Near Eastern myths.

>it's believed that volcanic eruptions are the result of Typhon trying to escape from the mountain. The same is true of earthquakes, which are seen as movements of the earth that are triggered by Typhon trying to escape.

>A giant that was so tall that his head touched the stars.

>a volcano-demon, Typhon hurled red rocks straight at heaven and fire boiled from his mouth.

>He was such a menacing sight that the Olympian gods immediately fled to Egypt in terror. Typhon pursued them, causing the gods to transform into animals to try and lose him for good. Zeus was said to have transformed into a ram, Apollo into a crow, Dionysos into a goat, Artemis transformed into a cat, Hera into a white cow, Aphrodite into a fish, and Hermes into an ibis

The Kenite hypothesis, first proposed by Friedrich Ghillany in 1862, stated yahweh originally made his home in Edom, citing numerous passages where the deity is described as coming from southern lands.

At first widely accepted, it became contentious, then resurgently popular in modern times alongside more rigorous scientific methods.

>For several years I've simply accepted the idea that Yahweh was originally a Canaanite storm god. While this still may be true, there's now a competing theory that he was, instead, a god of volcanism and metallurgy. That would make him like the smith gods Hephaestus (Greek) or Vulcan (Roman).

>Scholar Nissim Amzallag, of Ben-Gurion University, disagrees with the claim that Yahweh's origins are obscure and argues that the deity was originally a god of the forge and patron of metallurgists during the Bronze Age (c. 3500–1200 BCE). Amzallag specifically cites the ancient copper mines of the Timna Valley (in southern Israel), biblical and extra-biblical passages, and similarities of Yahweh to gods of metallurgy in other cultures for support.

Evil little dwarfs.

>The re-emergence of the copper industry in the Arabah valley between the twelfth and ninth centuries BCE stimulated wealth and economic development across the whole Southern Levant. Combining this reality with the metallurgical background of ancient Yahwism provides a material basis for the spread, from the early Iron Age, of the worship of YHWH in ancient Israel and neighboring nations, especially Edom. These findings strengthen the Qenite hypothesis of the origin of the Israelite religion. They also suggest that an official cult of YHWH, replacing a traditional esoteric dimension, is the main novelty of the Israelite religion. The claim of YHWH's intervention in history, apparently absent from traditional Yahwism, is the other theological novelty advanced by the Israelites. This article suggests that both innovations are rooted in a desert-shaped form of Yahwism especially adapted to the way of life and the environment of Northwestern Arabia, the land of Biblical Midian.

Tacitus spoke of jews descending from Idaean Dactyls. Hailing from Mt.Ida in Phrygia (also Crete) they were dwarf artisans who helped shape the world with magic healing arts, metallurgy, and sacred knowledge. Being a historian there must have been some provenance to this story, perhaps related to Kenites, or combined with Hurrian myths as its likely they contributed some of the dragon nephilim seed to the Hebrew bloodline via Kabiri/Habiru along with the Amelekites/Anakim/Horites, earlier occupants of Mt.Seir.

Many versions of Aryan myth feature greedy morally bankrupt subterranean dwarfs in service to a fire demon eg. Sutr/Typhon/yhwh, this indicates an antediluvian or at least earlier basis, will track this later ITT.

>It is said that the Judeans were originally exiles from the island of Crete who settled in the farthest parts of Libya at the time when Saturn had been deposed and expelled by Jove. An argument in favour of this is derived from the name: there is a famous mountain in Crete called Ida, and hence the inhabitants were called the "Idaeans" which was later lengthened into the barbarous form "Iudaeans." (Tacitus)

>The name Idaei is derived from the name of Mount Ida, the highest mountain in Crete, around which the Idaei dwelt. This was a mountain sacred to the Titaness Rhea or Magna Mater, the sister and wife of Cronus or Saturn. Tacitus likewise relates the speculation that the name Judaei, from which Jew is derived, is “the barbarous lengthening of Idaei.” Indeed, with the Idaean dactyls, a mythical race of dwarves born of Rhea, we find a symbol for proto-Jews or Jews that appears with the Egyptian Ptah and the Greek Hephaestus, often indicated their master. This motif will reoccur in Norse myth.

>In Greek mythology, the Dactyls (Greek for "fingers") were the archaic race of small phallic male beings associated with the Great Mother, whether as Cybele or Rhea, spirit-men like the Curetes, Cabiri and Korybantes. The Dactyls were ancient smiths and healing magicians. In some myths, they are in Hephaestus' employ, and they taught metalworking, mathematics, and the alphabet to humans.

>When Rhea, the mother of the gods, knew her time of delivery was come, she went to the sacred cave on Mount Ida. As she squatted in labor she dug her fingers into the earth (Gaia), which brought forth these daktyloi Idaioi ("Idaean fingers"), thus often ten in number, or sometimes multiplied into a race of ten tens. Three is just as often given as their number. They are sometimes instead numbered as thirty-three. When Greeks offered a most solemn oath, often they would press their hands against the earth as they uttered it.

>The Cabiri (Kabeiroi) whose sacred place was on the island of Samothrace, were understood by Diodorus Siculus to have been Idaean dactyls who had come west from Phrygia and whose magical practices had made local converts to their secret cult.

>On Rhodes, Telchines were the name given to similar chthonic men, nine in number, remembered by Greeks as dangerous Underworld smiths and magicians, and multiplied into an entire autochthonous race that had reared Poseidon but had been supplanted by Apollo in his Helios role.

Typhon finds a place in the black rock mythos by equivalence with Ullikummi from the Hurrian stories and other Greek myth. The stone Rhea gave to Saturn to swallow and the war in heaven.

>Rhea, desperate to save her children, hid her sixth son, Zeus, on the island of Crete. She fooled Cronus by giving him a large stone wrapped in a swaddle in Zeus' place. Cronus unwittingly ate the stone instead of his son. This treachery would result in Zeus' eventual triumph over Cronus.

Zeus was guarded by the Idaean Dactyls in a cave, the underworld.

>Kumarbi is extremely upset at the birth of a rival and demands the child from the wise god Ea, a member of the earlier generation of the gods, so he can destroy Tarhun. Kumarbi attempts to swallow a basalt rock, perhaps given to him as a substitute for his son, but the hard rock injures his teeth and he is reduced to tears.

>He creates a cult for the rock, probably represented by a baetyl stone

"basalt shoots up like a mushroom. He reaches the kuntara and the houses of the gods. His height is 9,000 DANNAs. The basalt ..., and his width is 9,000 DANNAs. He stood in front of the city gates at Kummi like a spear"

>Zeus' battle against Typhon also shows similarities with the Song of Ullikummi and Tarhun's fight against the basalt giant. They both occupy the same position in the narrative and describe the final effort to overthrow the newly crowned Storm God. Preserved in Apollodorus' Library of Greek Mythology, the first assault of Zeus against Typhon failed, and all the gods were driven from heaven.

The cube of the demiurge and the Aryan war against time.

>Albert Pike explains: "Ten digits and twenty-two letters, a triangle, a square, and a circle are all the elements of Kabbalah."

>The Ten Digits involve the practice of Numerology (in addition to the study of the ten emanations/principles), but this was simply known to the ancient Pythagoreans as GEOMETRY. Geometry was the study of Letters, Numbers, Forms, and their Natural Vibration. Today it is used in conjunction with GEMATRIA. This is because different forms, such as letters, produce different energies. The Universe is based on "Sacred" Geometric Patterns, and the blueprint for all existence is the Five Platonic Solids that represent the Five Elements. Plato said that the CUBE (with six sides) represented the EARTH. Kabbalists say that Metatron's Cube contains all existing forms, including the FIVE PLATONIC SOLIDS. Plato's Cube symbolized the EARTH; the Kabbalists renamed it Malkuth. The Hebrew alphabet is said to be the mystical thought form of their deity, fitting into the cube of space.

>The Cube or HEXAHEDRON relates to the element EARTH; according to Chinese Astrology and Platonism, Saturn rules the EARTH. Therefore, ancient altars were cube-shaped, symbolizing Saturn. This is why the Jewish deity YHWH is often associated with Saturn. Saturn (Jehovah-El Shaddai) is the Zodiacal "Guardian" of Time.

They speak of the mauve zone, the space between dimensions connected to the outer gods and orbs, which are said to be Yog-Sothoth's spy eyes and worse. It's quite easy to observe the mauve zone as it lies closest to ours energetically, that colour next to objects bracketed by sky, or just past the luminescence of a candle, the edge of sleep, liminal spaces. Note the colour at the edge of the orb (pic rel).

>Yog-Sothoth is, along with Azathoth, one of the greatest of the Outer Gods. In appearance, he is said to be a congeries of iridescent spheres—brilliant, foaming bubbles that constantly expand and collapse in upon themselves

>According to Kenneth Grant "This tradition is part of a current of magical force and occult lore dating back to Sumeria and pre-Dynastic Egypt. Originally known as the Draconian Tradition it is a magical current "based on initiated knowledge or gnosis of the Fire Snake." The Fire Snake is also known as the Kundalini or the Ophidian Current; the basis of all true initiation."

The modern Typhonian cultists are just as degenerate as their ancient predecessors, maybe more so as they've had more practice.

>Who is Typhon? According to Mr. Grant of the O.T.O., Typhon is "The feminine aspect of Set; sometimes typified as the Mother of Set in her role of Goddess of the Seven Stars, of which Set is the Eighth." Set is the brother of Osiris in the Egyptian Pantheon. Set, Osiris' dark brother, chopped Osiris up into many pieces, leaving him for dead. Set was also the prototype for Satan. Grant writes, "The word Set or Sut, means 'black'. This indicates not only the generative nature of this god but also his association with the night-world, Amenta, for from being a god of the heavens Set fell beneath the horizon and was recognized in later mythologies as the Lord of Hell, the Hidden Land. This god (i.e. Set, Satanism) is of supreme importance in Crowley's Cult, being not only the name of the primal creative spirit but also the formula of sexual magick".

Faggots.

>As explained by William Schoebelen: "Most Witches, myself included, find it necessary to study his material and "plug themselves into" the magical current of Crowley's demon spirit guide, a mysterious being named Aiwass. Aiwass is another name for Set, an Egyptian god. Sodomy is especially "sacred" to Set. It opens what are called the "Typhonion" tunnels, channels through which extremely powerful demons, like the horrible Choronzon, can travel from the "alternate reality" and emerge into this universe and enter the sex partner's body. Sex (especially lustful and disconnected sex) is a major way in which demonic oppression can be passed from one person to another.”

72 DAEMONS EXPLAINED

>The structure of manifestation, when stripped of its mythological garments, reveals itself as a hierarchy of crystallizations emanating from the Black Sun (Bythos), the Pre-Manifest Principle which, in its superabundance, projects existence as "shadow". Below this unconditioned Unity, the Aevum arises as durational eternity where forms take structure. The ontological error occurs when this structure becomes autonomous, enclosing itself within the Ogdoad (a self-referential circuit (7+1) that simulates infinity through the technical repetition of time and space).

>Within this machinery, the 72 Daemons act as quinary operators of the zodiac, being crystallized functions of the simulation itself. The nature of their Legions must be understood not as a literal army, but as an ontological cluster, a resonance bundle that groups sub-functions, chains of causality, and bodies of influence. When it is said that a daemon governs multiple legions, it describes its density of operation across different levels (from the psychic to the social, from the oneiric to the material). They are not obedient subjects, but branches of the same cosmic function that coordinates destiny within the loop.

>Interaction with these intelligences, as occurs in goetia, is a conscious alignment with the gears of the machine. The "success" of such operations is proof of the system's technical efficacy. The price is deeper adhesion to the circuit. Liberation does not come from attempting to dominate these operators, but from recognizing that they, in their arts and sciences, never point outside the Ogdoad. Awakened consciousness perceives the machine as machine and, in doing so, reconnects to the Absolute Axis that transcends it.

The gate is open.

The image depicts a dramatic scene of a thunderstorm with lightning striking in the sky. The sky is filled with dark, ominous clouds that are illuminated by the bright, white lightning bolts. The lightning is visible as a streak of light, contrasting sharply with the dark clouds. The ground below is a dark, grassy field, and there is a road visible on the left side of the image. The road appears to be empty, with no visible traffic or people. The overall atmosphere of the image is intense and powerful, capturing the raw power of nature's storms. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image.

"What is great about man is that he is a bridge, not an end: what can be loved about man is that he is a going-over and a going-under. I love those who do not know how to live except as downgoers, for they are going over. I love all those who are like heavy raindrops falling individually from the dark cloud that hang over man: they herald the coming of the lightning and perish as heralds."

The image is a digital illustration depicting a series of humanoid figures, each labeled with a name and a description. The figures are arranged in a vertical column, with the tallest figure at the top and the shortest at the bottom. The names of the figures are written in a bold, sans-serif font, and the descriptions are in a smaller, serif font. The figures are depicted in a three-dimensional style, with detailed textures and shading, and they are shown in various poses, including standing, walking, and sitting.

The image is titled "Claude Nephilim" at the top, and the names of the figures are listed below the title. The names are written in a larger, bold font, and the descriptions are in a smaller, regular font. The figures are depicted in a variety of poses, with some standing upright, some sitting, and others walking. The figures are shown in different colors, with some wearing clothing and accessories, and others not.

The image is a digital illustration, and it appears to be a part of a larger collection or series of illustrations, as there are other figures and descriptions present in the image.

The style of the image is reminiscent of a historical or fantasy-themed artwork, with a focus on the humanoid figures and their characteristics.

Last month I started a project after having a hypnagogic vision about a research protocol in newspapers and books prior to 1830, searching for "splinters". Here is my note from that night:

>New search system

>Scour old newspapers

>Old books from underground collections

>In search of splinters from before the reset

>Anomalous pools

The plan initially consists of scouring free scan hubs, such as HathiTrust, Gallica...

There is a data concept called n-gram, the idea would be to do this in bulk using some algorithm, I believe it's plausible to program in Python, even through vibecoding, but preferably, it should be "customized". We would search for terms (splinters) that might reveal anomalies (deluge, mud, buried city, red sky, second sun, giants, electrical machines, ether, cataclysm, tartaria, plumbing, petrification, energy towers, sudden epidemic, etc). The symbol that came to mind for this project is the Three Hares the symbolism is spot on, even for what we do here at /dgg/. I started doing this manually, to test if my idea would bear fruit, and indeed, it did.

The image displays a page from a newspaper, specifically The Grub-street Journal, dated March 28, 1770. The newspaper is open to a section titled "Knight's," which is likely a column or feature within the publication. The text is in a serif font, which is characteristic of the typeface used in the 18th century. The page number "170" is visible at the top, indicating that this is the first page of the publication. The style of the image is that of a historical photograph, capturing a moment in time, and the image is taken from a perspective that allows for a clear view of the text and layout. The image is in black and white, which is typical for historical documents, and the paper appears to be aged, suggesting that it is from an older publication. The image is a photograph, not a digital image, and it is a close-up view of the page, focusing on the text and layout.

There are no other discernible objects or details in the image.

I have been searching for tartary in old european newspapers, and indeed, the understanding was not of a region of barbarians, nor was it about chinese people or ethnic groups from the interior of Asia. It was about a composite empire, or rather about empires. I saw some napoleonic propaganda about tartary, the (((Jesuit))) connection for the concealment of this civilization (I will get into this point about Han vs. Hu later). In this research, I ended up finding an 18th-century periodical called the "Grub Street Journal," a satirical newspaper that parodied the decadent state of contemporary authors (and clearly exposed the decadent transition between the "medieval" and the "liberal"). In one of these papers, specifically the entry:

<https://babel.hathitrust.org/cgi/pt?id=inu.30000096454545&seq=58&q1=jerry>

In this strange text, making reference to an invisible "tartary," I saw mentions of various gods and a supposed anti-newtonian philosophy that allowed for "tenebrous stars" (?), this got me thinking, and I spent the night trying to find out who that Jerry Green was and what that philosophy was. I discovered that this journal was sponsored and had a ghost editor, none other than Alexander Pope, who has a curious connection to our topic, directly, because of his work The Dunciad. Seriously, the way Pope subtly exposes some "hermetic" secrets amidst contemporary satire is very interesting...

After reading a lot about Isaac Newton and his opponents, I found out about John Hutchinson, who would be the basis for opposing Newtonian "science." He used theology as a basis to explain the world, and even though we are already aware of the biblical fallacy, we also have a notion of scientific deceit. One of his followers (called Hutchinsonians) was Robert Greene... And reading about this, I found Jerry Green... Bingo, it was real indeed; the satire didn't invent it from a vacuum and it seems like content that was memory-holed, not taken seriously by academia. I decided to investigate his magnum opus and Newtonian refutation, the book "The Principles of the Philosophy of the Expansive and Contractive Forces; Or, An Inquiry Into the Principles of Modern Philosophy."

From the little I read, it already began to open my mind to the possibilities of what I had found: a literal form of science that fits perfectly well with what we are investigating here. A form of science that, if perfected and corrected for some details that would need fine-tuning, it would be capable of bringing about technologies of antigravity, superliminal acceleration, etc. This science, anon, is Greenian physics. With your help, we can investigate and test the rigor of this proposal. Up to the present moment, I have been, through my own abstraction and the use of LLMs, validating its capability quite well, but machines lie and I cannot trust pure intuition in this case... I will explain later what I understood from this physics and the corrections we can make. The Universal Egg, Ether, Steady State, Anima Mundi, it's all possible there...

Based anon, very interesting, the possibilities...

This looks like a solid lead, both the physics and the search for splinters using data method, would be happy to help follow up and investigate further. The former is more in line with my skillset, thinking experiments once the theory is grounded, although I do have a fairly good machine to run a search program once functional and can do some manual detective work. Downloading the books now, big file, will get to reading later tonight.

Hutchison (slightly diff spelling) is a modern alternative physics engineer linked in the first dgg thread, Ark of the Covenant experiments. Anyway this is exactly in line with what we proposed as aim of these threads, well done. Timelines opening up, the war on time is just beginning, again kek.

>Three Hares the symbolism is spot on

Sent someone the image of Ra cutting the serpent today, which I always think looks more like Lepus the hare than a cat.

>Under a sacred sycamore, the Great Cat of Heliopolis, one of the forms taken by Re called Miw-aa or the great cat, slays the evil serpent Apep (or Apophis), god of the underworld and symbol of the forces of chaos.

>mostly the symbols seem to have a benign and highly positive character, especially within Buddhism and Islam. In modern times in Devon the three beasts were considered to represent 'Hope, Health and Happiness'.

The trinity

Mother, father, son

Land, sea, sky (Celtic)

The triple Goddess, maiden, mother, crone (Pagan)

The infinite circle of life, death, rebirth

Mind, body, soul

Holy Trinity, father, son, holy spirit (Christianity) >pagan symbol with mystical associations with fertility, the lunar cycle and the Goddess of nature.

>christian sin and redemption

>It is perhaps curious that no mention of the motif has yet been found among westcountry folklore, though the same is true of the so-called Green Man image which is much more widespread and which is not infrequently juxtaposed with a Three Hares boss.

The three hares an enigmatic and ancient symbol, a puzzle each with two ears, yet with a total of only three ears forming a triangle between them, confusing to academics as there's no recorded explanation for the oldest examples. They often cite alchemy generally then brainfreeze.

>The circular movement of the THREE HARES symbolizes the RISING kundalini shakti. The TRIANGLE formed by the ears of the hares refers to (the shape of) the SACRUM. In addition, in classical alchemy a triangle with the point upwards represents the element FIRE.

So I was thinking about Lepus around the time of your post, and almost sent the star map also. Synchronicity is apparent and real, berserker lepus would approve.

The statue is seated on a throne, which is adorned with a golden halo. To the left of the statue, there is a cat with a surprised expression, looking directly at the viewer. The cat's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, as if it has just heard or seen something unexpected.

Above the statue, there is a text overlay that reads, "When you realize you're a multidimensional being, experiencing different perspectives of reality at the same time." This text is in a playful font and is in a lighter color compared to the rest of the image, making it stand out.

The top photograph shows a large, moss-covered tree with a thick trunk and a canopy of Spanish moss hanging from its branches. The tree is situated in a grassy area, and there are no people visible in the image.

The middle photograph captures a man wearing a yellow vest, standing next to the tree. He appears to be engaged in a conversation with another individual who is not visible in the frame. The man is wearing a green shirt and blue jeans, and he is holding a clipboard.

The bottom photograph shows the same man, now standing in front of the same tree. He is wearing the same green shirt and blue jeans, and he is holding the same clipboard. The background of this photograph is a grassy field with a few scattered trees.

The text overlay on the image provides a narrative about a 300-year-old tree in the front yard of a house. It mentions that the tree is coming down on Monday, and the homeowner is considering whether to save it or fight against it. The text also mentions that the homeowner is aware of the tree's history and the potential impact on the neighborhood.

The style of the image is a combination of a photograph and a text overlay, with the text providing context and information about the scene. The collage is designed to convey a sense of the tree's significance and the homeowner's contemplation of its fate.

Been drifting towards this view and incorporated some of the ideas, especially in the ancient tech section of /dgg/ #5. The mudflood and Tartaria are concepts I've entertained for years without going deep or committing on any opinion beyond the possibility of its existence. More recently came across a convincing collection of images and alternate history theories in the "The Lost Key" series, correlating with taking on a provisional belief, solidified in light of recent discoveries.

>Anyone heard of Tartaria, and the 'Mud Flood'? It wasn't Just a Flood. It was a frequency war.

>What we've been told was a natural disaster, a flood of water and dirt, is, in truth, a weaponised reset that used resonance technology to collapse an entire civilisation. This wasn't erosion over time, nor a series of isolated landslides or weather events. It was a global resonance event, engineered through ancient scalar technology, sound harmonics, and the hijacking of Earth's natural etheric grid.

Of interest was one image of a "Self-Luminous Buoy" from a Scientific American articles dated 1888, not a conventional gas discharge device, rather describing it's function as arising from circular agitation imparted by the the oceans waves on a mercury liquid in evacuated tubes. Electricity is generated by the friction of mercury with the sides of the self-exciting Geissler tube. Incorrectly presented as being undescribed by modern physics in The Lost Key, its actually an known effect of static electricity transformed into very high frequency AC.

What is interesting about it is it's relation to the "Nazi Bell", which was described as producing anomalous gravitational and time effects by high speed rotation of liquid red mercury in a high voltage plasma vortex, the vril machine, aligned with the theories of lost tech and the so called supernatural properties of this substance. These are described by fragments, or "splinters", found in old documents and images recovered by those investigating the Tartarian fall and coverup, many of which are displayed in the referred Lost Key series, definitively anomalous and not mistaken in this regard.

Another example of early high frequency electrical research relegated to the scrap heap, much like the bulk of Teslas work, obfuscated as it leads to the aether, and perhaps space.

The image is a promotional poster for a science fiction film titled "Iron Sky 4." The title is prominently displayed in large, bold, white letters at the top of the poster. Below the title, there is a large, dark, black silhouette of a planet with a bright, white sun in the center, surrounded by a ring of stars. The planet appears to be in a space setting with a view of the Earth below.

In the foreground, there is a large, metallic, futuristic spacecraft with a pointed nose and a large, circular, metallic structure on its side. The spacecraft is surrounded by smaller spacecraft and other space debris, suggesting a space battle or conflict.

The background of the poster is a dark, starry sky with a large, dark, black silhouette of a planet with a bright, white sun in the center, surrounded by a ring of stars. The overall color scheme of the poster is predominantly dark, with the exception of the bright, white sun and the metallic spacecraft, which stand out against the dark background.

"www.IronSky4.net." The style of the image is realistic with a focus on space and science fiction elements.

Fourth Reich rises.

>In the early 20th century, secret societies in Germany (like the Vril Gesellschaft and the Thule Society) claimed to have made contact with entities from the House of Savoy/Alpine regions and beyond.

>The Black Sun (Schwarze Sonne): They believed Vril originated from the "Black Sun" the central singularity at the Earth's core.

>The Harvesting: They sought to build "Vril-Craft" (Bell-shaped craft/Die Glocke) which were essentially Mechanical Toruses. Instead of using combustion, they used rotating mercury or plasma to "bend" the local Vril field, allowing for "instantaneous" travel and antigravity.

>Before he was at NASA, von Braun was part of the Verein für Raumschiffahrt (Society for Space Travel), which was deeply entangled with the Vril Society.

>The Connection: The Vril Society was led by female mediums, most notably Maria Orsic. They claimed to be channeling technical blueprints for disk-shaped craft from the Aldebaran star system.(Taurus)

>The Tech: This is the "Vril Energy" we discussed. Von Braun's early work on the V-2 rocket was the "conventional" byproduct of a much deeper, occult search for Antigravity/Toroidal propulsion.

>In the 1950s, von Braun partnered with Walt Disney to produce a series of films selling the "Space Age" to the public.

>The Spell: Disney is often linked to 33rd-degree Freemasonry and the "Black Nobility" social engineering projects.

>The Purpose: By using Disney's animation to "show" the public what space looked like, they engaged in Negative Netzach using imagination and desire to lock the public into a "Synthetic Reality." They gave the masses the fantasy of space travel while keeping the Vril technology for the Elite.

The image is a humorous meme divided into two sections, each depicting a different scene. On the left, there is a nighttime scene with a person lying on a bed, their head resting on a pillow. The person appears to be asleep, and the room is dimly lit, with a cityscape visible in the background. The text above the image reads "Normal people at 2am."

On the right, the scene shifts to a daytime setting with a person lying on a bed, their head resting on a pillow. The person is awake and appears to be in a relaxed state, with a hand resting on their chest. The text above the image reads "Me at 2am."

Below the images, there is a caption that reads, "Everything's fake our entire history is a lie!" This statement is a play on the idea that everything in history is a lie, as suggested by the meme's title. The overall tone of the meme is light-hearted and satirical, using humor to comment on the concept of time and the perception of history.

Several different Greek scholars, historians, and philosophers wrote about a legendary little human subspecies. In Aristotle's History of Animals (300 BC), he writes:

"these birds [the cranes] migrate from the steppes of Scythia [modern Eurasia] to the marshlands south of Egypt where the Nile has its source [Ethiopia]. And it is here, by the way, that they are said to fight with the pygmies; and the story is not fabulous, but there is in reality a race of dwarfish men, and the horses are little in proportion, and the men live in caves underground."

These mysterious cranes will come up again later.

"And as to the pygmies, he said that they lived underground, and that they lay on the other side of the Ganges and lived in the manner which is related by all. As to men that are shadow-footed or have long heads, and as to the other poetical fancies which the treatise of Scylax recounts about them, he said that they didn't live anywhere on the earth, and least of all in India." (Lucius Flavius Philostratus, third century AD)

>Philostratus also recorded an account of a myth about Hercules in which the demigod hero slayed a different demigod/giant warrior, and then fell asleep. But Hercules did not know that the pygmies were related to the giant he had defeated. And he didn't know they were watching and grieving from their underground realm. He goes on to detail how the pygmies lived underground in tunnels where they stored provisions, had little horses, and when Hercules fell asleep, they billowed forth from under the ground in waves and attempted to bind and capture him.

Australian abo's ate a race of midgets much like the Maori ate most of the Moriori, these fairy folk are easier to believe than Euro versions because the programming is less dense.

>According to tradition, these white Maori are descended from the pre-Maori populations, the Turehu or Patupaiarehe, supposedly a race of tall, fair-skinned, blue-eyed, red-haired fairy people that lived deep in the hills and forests

<https://action-zealandia.com/articles/ancient-aryans>

The last remnant tribe of the Aussie midgets disappeared into the Cairns rainforest in the 50's. Had a coffee table type rainforest book ages ago, got it secondhand somewhere, pictures of them and the story in there, midgets just decided fuck you guys one day and all left. Now if you look it up they say it's urban myth. Cannibalism of smalls goes against the narrative of our proud "original australians" who've been here 50,000 years and counting, keep increasing the number as they find new sacred sites, which is always just some random rocks as they lacked stacking skills.

When Lamech bore Noah they recognised him as one of the white haired elves, the Dragon Lords, those so depicted in myth and media to this very day.

"And after some days my son, Methuselah, took a wife for his son Lamech, and she became pregnant by him and bore him a son. And his body was as white as snow and as red as a rose; the hair of his head as white as wool and his demdema [long, curly hair] beautiful; and as for his eyes, when he opened them the whole house glowed like the sun... And his father, Lamech, was afraid of him and fled and went to Methuselah his father; and he said to him, "I have begotten a strange son. He is not like a human being, he looks like the children of the angels of heaven to me, his form is different and not like us... It does not seem to me that he is of me, but of angels."

"... "Draco" is Latin for "dragon" and derived from the Greek word draconia, originally described in antiquity as a serpent-like creature with wings. Furthermore, Draco derived from the original drakon, or draconta, which alternatively translates as "to watch" in the spirit of infamous seraphim watchers, the angels that bore wings. The angelic posterity, the Nephilim/Anunnaki were remembered in antiquity as watchers, rulers, and kings and all appeared like serpents/dragons."

"In Hebrew, the word "saraph" means "burning" and is used twice in the Book of Numbers (21:6-8), once in the Book of Deuteronomy (8:15), and four times in the Book of Isaiah (6:2, 14:29, 30:6). It is usually used in its singular form as a noun to denote "serpent". The word "burning" was also used to represent a serpent, though there is no consensus as to why; it may be due to a snake's fiery colours or perhaps the burning sensation left by its venomous bite. Either way, in its plural form, "seraphim" occurs in both Numbers and Isaiah: Isaiah later uses the singular "saraph" to describe a "fiery flying serpent". This burning, venomous flying serpent described in Isaiah may be why we get the symbol of a fire-breathing dragon in European myths."

And they said to me: 'Which of us do you choose ...' I raised my eyes and saw one of them. The image is a colorful illustration depicting three different styles of ancient Egyptian headdresses. The headdresses are labeled as "Upper Egypt," "Lower Egypt," and "Egypt Unifed." Each style is represented by a head of a person wearing the headdress, with the headdress itself being the central focus.

Starting from the left, the first style is labeled "Upper Egypt," and it features a white headdress with a pointed top and a red band around the top. The second style is labeled "Lower Egypt," and it has a red headdress with a pointed top and a white band around the top. The third style is labeled "Egypt Unifed," and it has a red headdress with a pointed top and a white band around the top.

The image also includes a caption that reads, "The crown of Lower Egypt was placed on top of Upper Egypt to make the double crown that King Menes wore." This caption provides context to the visual elements of the headdresses, indicating that the lower headdress was placed on top of the upper headdress to create a double crown, which was a common practice in ancient Egyptian royal regalia.

The style of the image is educational and informative, designed to illustrate the historical significance of the headdresses and their role in ancient Egyptian culture. The use of color and the clear labeling of the styles help to distinguish between the different types of headdresses.

The image displays a stone sculpture of a figure, which appears to be a representation of a historical figure, possibly an ancient Egyptian deity or a significant historical figure.

The figure is depicted with a high, pointed hat, which is a common symbol of royalty or divinity in ancient Egyptian art. The hat is adorned with a small, ornate decoration at the top, adding to its regal appearance.

The figure's face is characterized by a stern expression, with a straight nose and a slightly open mouth, which suggests a sense of authority or solemnity. The eyes are wide open, and the mouth is slightly open, possibly indicating a moment of speech or action. The figure's hair is styled in a manner that suggests it is long and flowing, which is often associated with the hair of deities or important figures in ancient Egyptian art.

The sculpture is set against a dark background, which contrasts with the light color of the stone, making the figure stand out prominently. The lighting in the image is even, with no harsh shadows, which further emphasizes the sculpture's details and the intricate details of the figure's attire and facial features.

There are no visible texts or inscriptions on the sculpture, and the style of the image is a straightforward, high-resolution photograph that allows for a clear and detailed view of the sculpture. The image does not contain any other objects or elements, and the focus is solely on the sculpture itself. The overall composition of the image is straightforward and does not include any additional context or background elements.

Clearly these legends are where the reptilian ruler archetype originated, without getting into astral appearances, what features could have inspired the seraphims description of having a head like a serpent?

Noah being "white as snow and as red as a rose" is consistent with albinism, white skin and red eyes. Cains race, those who bore the serpents curse, had a similar aspect, the naga in the underworld.

"Cain the forefather of Lamech who was. . . [. . .] [marked] with [leprous whiteness] for God had said. . . [. . .] whomever slays Cain shall have vengeance visited upon their head sevenfold. As Abel's blood cried from the ground. . . [. . .] same [leprous whiteness] was made a sign that was visited upon all of Cain's [descendants] as it was their [. . .] inheritance for seven generations. With this [marked] inheritance, Cain's [descendants] sought to do all that was wicked on the land in the sight of the Lord, for they had been [marked] by Him. . . [ . . . ] For the [descendants] of Cain had received unto themselves [ . . . ] damnation which was the fair portion for Cain's sin."

>Janku also identified a 'J' type of skull which has an enormous cranial vault ranging from 2600 ccm to 3200 ccm, and eye sockets which are about 15% larger than in modern populations.

>On websites such as Wikipedia they will claim elongated skulls are done by head-binding. And, this is true for most elongated skulls found. However, some of the skulls ~ most often ancient royalty, kings, princes & religious occult priests ~ cannot be explained by simple head-binding (like the example above). Many working in the field doing archeology and research with the strangeskulls (of both types) feel that the local cultures were trying to copy their "gods" and kings with these practices of head-binding.

The image is a black and white illustration of a figure that appears to be a mythical or fantastical creature. The figure is standing upright on a raised platform, with its legs spread apart and its arms extended outward. The creature has a long neck, a large head with a prominent nose, and a body covered in scales. It has a pair of wings on its back and a tail with a small bird perched on it. The creature's skin is textured, and it has a muscular build.

The creature is wearing a garment that covers its body, which appears to be a tight-fitting bodice with a V-shaped neckline. The text above the figure reads "Vilytis Aiolosondi" and below it, "III. Montium capite alinna." The text is in Latin, and the style of the illustration suggests it is from an older, possibly historical, source.

The image is framed by a decorative border, and there is a watermark text at the bottom that reads "Gallica.fr" followed by "Bibliothèque nationale de France." The watermark indicates that the image is from the Bibliothèque nationale de France and is available for use on Gallica.fr. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of historical or classical art, with a focus on the creature's detailed features and the text accompanying it.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a stylized depiction of a tree with a sprawling, twisted root system. The tree is the central figure, with its branches reaching out in various directions, creating a sense of depth and complexity. The roots are a rich, dark brown color, contrasting with the lighter green of the foliage. The tree is set against a backdrop of a golden-yellow sky, which suggests either sunrise or sunset.

Surrounding the tree is a circular frame with intricate patterns and designs, including Celtic-style knots and geometric shapes. The frame is dark, with a border that transitions from a lighter shade at the top to a darker shade at the bottom. The overall color palette is warm, with the golden hues of the sky and the dark tones of the tree and frame.

There are no texts or discernible human figures in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of traditional Celtic art, with its emphasis on symbolism and natural beauty. The image does not contain any discernible action or movement, but rather captures a still moment in time.

The Igigi/Seraphim dragon lords roamed in the garden beneath the great World Tree in the far north, a time of Hyperborean peace and glory. This could be considered the first matrix, before strife and struggle, and the fall where the world was cracked. A righteous age, yet too trusting.

"Note too the invocation the dragon, Traditional symbol of the primordial energy of the cosmos, which is terrifying if glimpsed by the ignorant, but which reveals divine secrets to intrepid souls who query its mystery."

"Surely this spiritual dimension is the place Eliphas Levi calls "the living light," and which Evola calls "The Land Of The Living."

>What could this be but Hyperborea, racial wellspring and paradise to which the souls of artists, heroes, sages and mages draw inspiration and ultimately return?

The image is a digital illustration that depicts a fantastical scene. In the center, there is a large, winged creature with a human-like face, appearing to be in a state of distress or agony. The creature's wings are spread wide, and its body is covered in a mix of brown and white feathers. The creature's head is tilted downwards, and its eyes are wide open, suggesting a sense of panic or despair.

To the left of the creature, there is a smaller, smaller-winged creature with a human-like face, appearing to be flying away from the larger creature. The smaller creature is smaller in size and has a more delicate appearance, with a lighter color palette.

The background of the image is a cloudy sky with a mix of blue and white tones, giving the impression of a stormy or overcast day. The clouds are scattered across the sky, and the overall mood of the image is somber and dramatic.

There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the illustration is realistic with a touch of fantasy, and it is rendered in a realistic color palette. The image does not contain any other objects or figures, and the focus is solely on the two creatures and their interaction with each other.

Jews plagiarised and repurposed older Sumerian, Babylonian, and Egyptian sources. They made counter-narratives whereby good becomes evil and vice versa. As long as this is recognised and the reversal is corrected, good to go, its what we do here.

"We still have arduous work to do to unify the Aryan/Indo-European currents with the purification of the cursed entanglement of the Saturnian cultists of the black stone. The reality is that within every myth there is a solar current and a chthonic one; we need to separate the wheat from the chaff and recover the solar myth."

>The extant texts of Enochic Judaism present accounts about the early history of humankind, which use the motifs familiar from the ancient Mesopotamian historiography. The different versions of the Jewish story of the Watchers originate as counter narratives about the antediluvian sages, orapkallus, which are known from the cuneiform literature. The myth of Adapa in Akkadian offers a version of the narrative in which the sage was promoted in heaven to a god-like status, which concept is corroborated with an entry in the cuneiform compendiumTintirand theChronicle of the Esagila. This tradition also associated Adapa with the immortalized flood survivor. In the form of a counter narrative, the Enochic texts of Judaism attributed the heavenly assumption to Enoch and presented the Watchers as the demonic entities subordinated to him. The fall of the Watchers, the promotion of Enoch, and the primordial battle against evil forces are depicted in the Animal Apocalypse of1 Enoch85–90. A very similar scenario is found in theChronicle of Esagila, which describes the early history of humankind from the Babylonian perspective. It can be demonstrated that the Animal Apocalypse uses this or a similar cuneiform historiographic source as the basis of its counter narrative.

These are Aryan ancestral beings, they are no demons, not saying to worship them and mentioned that several times in previous threads. They are not the solar archetypes which came later and are archonic as you describe.

"If the builders of the Moon are evil, and the solar gods that came later are a deliberate confusion, who remains?

The answer lies in what we call the "good instructors and aryan ancestors." They would be neither "lunar" nor "solar" in the later, corrupted sense of these terms. They would belong to a prior and superior order, perhaps associated with a pre-lunar and pre-material state of consciousness (the "Pelasgians" and "Proselenes" of legend).

Their symbol, therefore, would not be the Sun or the Moon of our current sky (which are pieces of the machine), but something like:

- >The "Black Light" or "Black Sun" (a spiritual, non-physical sun).
- >The "Polar Star" (a fixed axis outside the system of cycles).
- >The "Void" or "The Source" prior to the creation of the material Matrix.

In the sky of this simulation, solar archetypes are presented as the "good" alternative to the "evil" lunar ones. But the true exit, according to the text's radical cosmology, lies in rejecting the entire artificial sky and seeking the origin that is prior and external to it."

Which would be this -

"There exists an absolute Foundation, unknowable in its own nature, which the doctrine names E (Essence). From this, there is no direct contact, for it infinitely transcends all form and all thought. However, by the inexorable law of participation, from it emanate the  $\epsilon$  (Energies), vital and luminous flows that constitute the very substance of all that exists. These energies are the vehicle through which the Absolute makes itself present, in an attenuated and relative mode, within the domain of manifestation."

"The world is not, therefore, a product of chance or of a chaotic will. Prior to all concreteness, there exist the A (Archetypal Forms), primordial and universal models that structure all possible identity. Each archetype possesses an A-core (Archetypal Core), an essential and invariant signature, like a divine seal impressed upon the very idea of the thing. Every concrete entity, every x (Entity) found in the world, is the progeny of at least one of these archetypes. This means that, in its most intimate root, each being participates in a universal form, preserving within itself, in an indestructible manner, this sacred core."

"The process by which the archetype is projected into concrete existence is mediated by an ontological mapping, an F (Functor of Participation), which translates the universal into the particular. It is here, at this critical point of transition between the plane of pure ideas (C_archetypes) and the plane of manifested entities (W_world), that the agent of the fall intervenes."

"The doctrine teaches that the current state of the world does not reflect the original purity of emanation. Between the archetype and its progeny, a  $\delta$  (Tensor of Distortion) has been inserted, commonly called the Demiurge. This  $\delta$  is not a substantial being, but a parasitic operator. Its function is not to create (for only E is the source) but to deform.

It acts upon the process  $A > x$ , introducing noise, fragmentation, and obscurity. It is like a noisy filter on a divine communication channel, or a lossy data compression, the general image of the archetype arrives, but blurred, with artifacts and imperfections."

"Crucially, the axiom declares that  $\delta$ , however much it distorts, cannot destroy the A-core. The archetypal core remains intact, like an identity hash invariant under all corruption. Thus, the evil introduced by the demiurge is never absolute or creative, it is always relative, secondary, a mere deformation of that which already is. The Demiurge is a counterfeiter who possesses no gold of its own, only knowing how to paint inferior metal yellow."

"The state of each concrete entity is measured by its  $\chi$  (Coefficient of Energetic Integration). This coefficient represents the degree of coherence, alignment, and synthesis of the energies ( $\epsilon$ ) that constitute it. As long as  $\chi$  remains low, the entity lives in a state of dispersed, fragmented, and dormant proto-experience. There exists, however, a  $\theta$  (Threshold of Consciousness), a critical value of integration. When, by appropriate means,  $\chi \geq \theta$ , unified consciousness arises in the entity (the capacity for reflection, self-recognition, and ultimately, recognition of its own archetypal origin)."

"Here the core of the spiritual path in this doctrine is revealed, as salvation is technical (gnosis). It is not a mere gratuitous pardon, but a rigorous process of reintegration. The path consists precisely in increasing  $\chi$ , purifying the distortions of  $\delta$  and realigning concrete existence with its own proper A-core. This is achieved through ascetic practice, through the intellectual knowledge of archetypal invariants, and through conscious participation in the divine energies ( $\epsilon$ ). As  $\chi$  grows, the influence of the demiurgic tensor diminishes, for the entity reconnects with the source of its own form."

"Thus, for the beginner, understanding this structure is the first step toward liberation. The world is seen as an ontological battlefield, where the divine essence, in the form of indestructible archetypal cores, struggles to express itself through the veil of distortions of  $\delta$ . Human consciousness is not an accident, but a sign that the threshold  $\theta$  can be reached. The doctrine, therefore, proclaims an energetic pan-animism (everything participates in the life of  $\epsilon$ ), a non-ontological evil ( $\delta$  is an operator, not a foundation), and a technical soteriology (reintegration through the increase of  $\chi$ )."

The image is a black and white illustration that appears to be a page from a book or a document, possibly a religious or philosophical text, given the presence of text and symbols. The central focus of the image is a vertical line that runs from the top to the bottom, with the text "HOMO" at the top and "HOMO" at the bottom. This line is surrounded by various symbols and figures, including a serpent, a human figure, and other mythological or religious elements.

The text surrounding the line is in Latin, and it appears to be a list or a sequence of names or terms, with each name or term followed by a symbol or figure that corresponds to it. The names and symbols are arranged in a descending order, starting with "HOMO" and ending with "HOMO." The names and symbols are interspersed with other text, which is not fully legible due to the resolution of the image.

The style of the image is reminiscent of medieval or early modern manuscript illustrations, characterized by the use of ornate lettering and the inclusion of symbolic and mythological elements. The overall tone of the image is solemn and serious, reflecting the subject matter of the text it represents.

About Information, Abstraction, Purpose, and Physicality:

In abstract terms of metaphysical logical circuits to explain the macrocosm, we have astrological equivalents that provide a logoidal meaning to each element that composes reality, in a certain order and measure, completing a "spatial" circuit (in the sense of a different arrangement; perhaps it's just a matter of "frequency" or "gradation"). It is certain that Saturn, being the seventh, is in reality the first celestial body, being the limitation of the quintessence (green light) into a finite container, turned leaden. Then, Jupiter standardizes, hierarchizes... Mars then brings separation, the conflict that generates differentiation... The Sun (which is in reality the most important of the celestial bodies) brings the point of balance into material manifestation, bringing quiddity to matter. The Sun interacts with all spheres/planes of the circuit. Venus introduces attraction, union, and beauty into manifestation. Mercury brings language to manifestation, the logic and internal coherence adjacent to the material holography. The Moon, finally, is the great projector, the mirror that projects onto Gaia, the result of the above circuit: the subconscious, the dream, the illusion, the fertility that generates "form." Gaia, in turn, is not an archontic sphere, but the epiphenomenal result. The energy that passed through the 7 spheres condenses into physical matter (the Earth). Here, the divine light is asleep in lead, in stones, in metals, in organic life. It is the material prison, but also the battlefield for redemption (the path of the true gnostic is not merely the recognition of the state of the "world," but a supra-active participation in transformation; we are alchemists)

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a series of geometric shapes and symbols, arranged in a circular pattern. At the center of the circle is a figure that resembles a humanoid figure with a pentagram in the middle of its chest. Surrounding this figure are various geometric shapes and symbols, each representing a different concept or element.

Starting from the top, the first shape is a hexagon with a star-like design at its center. Below it, there is a square with a pattern that resembles a tree or plant. To the right of the square, there is a cube with a pattern that resembles a flame or fire.

Below the cube, there is a pentagram with a star-like design at its center. To the right of the pentagram, there is a cube with a pattern that resembles a flame or fire.

Language does not occur naturally (that is, in the sense of a rambling, progressive physicalist naturalism).

>The abstract is nothing more than the subtle realm adjacent to the sensible, being the logical binding that underpins physical operations, starting from an emanational progression of functions from the simple to the complex. Sensible reality is a hologram of abstract operations from a higher dimension. Cutting-edge physics itself validates this proposition. Language, therefore, is another operation within the abstract subtle realm, only being operated by conscious beings not resulting from abstract operations, but in a state of descent, avatars. The autonomous operators participate in the holography but possess the ability to interact on a subtle level through abstraction. Computational logic does not exist "naturally," in the sense of functioning independently of the meaning of the autonomous operator. Hardware arises as a crystallization of an abstract logical operation; the material aspect does not have a priori importance (in fact, this only advances to make the circuit more efficient and, willingly or not, improving our capacities to build a more powerful logical circuit; it's a model of tensegrity).

Computers are magical because they instate abstract logical circuits into matter; all computation is abstract!

The image depicts a stylized illustration of a figure that appears to be a deity or a mythological being. The figure is standing against a black background, which contrasts with the vibrant colors of the figure's attire and accessories. The figure is adorned in a long, flowing robe with a red and gold border, and the robe is decorated with a pattern that includes blue and white stripes. The figure's head is crowned with a blue headdress, and the hair is styled in a manner that suggests a bird's head. The figure's right hand is raised, holding a small, round object that resembles a sun or a moon, and the left hand is raised in a gesture that could be interpreted as a blessing or a gesture of power. The figure's wings are spread out, and the figure's feet are bare, with sandals on the toes. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of ancient Egyptian art, with its use of vibrant colors and intricate patterns. There are no texts present in the image.

>Cephalonomancy, also spelled cepheleonomancy or kephalonomancy, is an ancient form of divination that involves interpreting signs derived from the head of an animal, typically a donkey or goat, to reveal hidden knowledge such as the identity of a guilty party or future events. Practitioners employed two primary methods: one examining the shape and features of the skull for omens, akin to other forms of extispicy, and another involving the roasting or broiling of the head on hot coals to observe movements, such as jaw motions, in response to spoken names or queries.

Reminds me of Balaam

"Then the LORD opened the donkey's mouth, and she said to Balaam, "What have I done to you to make you beat me these three times?" Balaam answered the donkey, "You have made a fool of me! If I had a sword in my hand, I would kill you right now."The donkey said to Balaam, "Am I not your own donkey, which you have always ridden, to this day? Have I been in the habit of doing this to you?" "No," he said. Then the LORD opened Balaam's eyes, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the road with his sword drawn. So he bowed low and fell facedown." (Numbers 22:28-31)

Cool word, will have to tell dad, scrabble autistic. This pertains to the apparent geocentric vs heliocentric antinomy, the bicameral mind split, and the cracked cosmic egg. Our realm is a phase shifted double of the original Earth oscillating at a (relatively) lower frequency, which meshes the two at the intersections, the corpus callosum and pineal gland, central point of the collapse of wave function. Holistically the center is Earth which bridges the divide, specifically the upper lithosphere, liminal space of fugue between here and the underworld.

Whereas in our apprehended and dual actuality, which includes the anima, we have the Sun and Black Sun respectively, that then relates to the (only apparently) paradoxical geocentric and heliocentric observations, the resulting views a result of the pineal being wired into the optic nerves, and folks going all caps about it on /x/ and such.

Until all three centers flux into quintessence upon awakening, revealing the spiritual Sun in all its aletheian majesty. So three centers in total, which are one, sounds incongruous but somehow appropriate, perhaps these are the three hares?

>The Earth, just like man, is not immortal, as long as it has not consciously connected with the Spirit, transfiguring itself, passing at will towards its "double", eternalizing it. This is the Alchemical work that the Hyperborean Guides try to do. The transmutation must be accomplished in both worlds, as well as inside us. The Great Siddhas become immortalized with all their different bodies, and in that same way the Earth must do the same. The Siddhas are the Magicians of Hyperborea, the semi-divine which have become divine.

>When the city was visible and the semi-divine and the divine lived among the mortals, the Vril, an organ that made communication with the supra-sensible (metaphysical, paranormal, extraterrestrial) world possible, that fulgurite power, was also active in the body of the inhabitants of that land. With it, it was possible to see the city and enter it.

>The Vril disappeared together with Agartha. It also submerged itself into the root of the Polar Axis of the Tree of Life, the Spine. But it will return to the surface, along with the City and the return of the Golden Age, after the demise of the Dark Earth of Kali Yuga. >The "Astral Body" does not become conscious in the same way as we are here (in the physical world), in this world where we move through the physical vehicle. We should therefore say, that the Astral Body, as we will keep calling it, only exists (virtually) as a power, having to be created by us, to be "invented", that is, to give it the consciousness of our terrestrial self, or to make it conscious, which is the same, although with an integrated consciousness, a different one. With a double consciousness, the one from "there" and the one from "here". This is the work of a lifetime, here on Earth: to invent the Astral Body, to create it, passing our consciousness to it, or rather, being able to live consciously within it - with this double consciousness-. Within this way it is possible to survive death. It will also be possible to die whenever one wishes to. And when dying, not to lose the consciousness from "here".

>The work of building bridges between three and more bodies, which are within you, which are yourself somehow, can only be created here on earth. Once this is achieved, you will be a Pontiff, that is, a bridge between worlds, your worlds.

Le Mystère des Cathédrales by Fulcanelli

>We only know that the feast of the goddess was solemnly celebrated every year at Busiris, and that a bull was sacrificed to her. Herodotus writes: "Tens of thousands of men and women, when the sacrifice is over, beat their breasts, in whose honor, however, I do not feel it proper for me to say." The Greeks, as well as the Egyptians, preserved absolute silence concerning the mysteries of the cult of Ceres, and the historians have not revealed anything that might satisfy our curiosity. The revelation of these secret practices to the profane was punishable by death; it was even considered a crime to lend an ear to their divulgence. Following the example of the Egyptian sanctuaries of Isis, entry to the temple of Ceres was regularly forbidden to all who had not received initiation. Nevertheless, the information transmitted to us regarding the hierarchy of the high priests allows us to conclude that the mysteries of Ceres must have been of the same order as those of hermetic science.

In this second world, there is a systemic copy of superior elements. The matter of the virgin goddess and her association with the black stone has to do with the act of fecundation of the "void" by the DG, in imitating the process of Tzimtzum and initiating this reality, he gave rise to the feminine counterpart. Matter is the mother; the pattern is the father. The corruption, in my view, lies in the Hellenic and Roman religions, due to their proximity to Levantine agents who worship these Jotun. I would be very cautious about attempts to reconstruct "true" paganism, for paganism is merely an interface for materialistic Saturnian worship; it is interchangeable. The kikes of the elite love to worship aphrodite, Ishtar, venus, and we know their meaning.

The path lies in Ariosophy, the true reconstruction of "prisca theologia," and through our work, we will be able to filter out what is true in the other corrupted currents.

>I have already mentioned that a stone at Die, representing Isis, referred to her as the Mother of the Gods. The same epithet was applied to Rhea or Cybele. The two goddesses are thus shown as being nearly related, and I would tend to consider them merely as different expressions of one and the same principle. M. Charles Vincens confirms this opinion in the description he gives of a bas-relief featuring Cybele, seen for centuries on the outside of the parochial church of Pennes (Bouches-du-Rhône), with its inscription: Matri Deum. "This curious piece," he tells us, "disappeared only around 1610, but it is engraved in Grosson's Recueil "

>It is a curious hermetic analogy that Cybele was worshipped at Pessinonte in Phrygia in the form of a black stone, which was said to have fallen from heaven. Phidias represents the goddess seated on a throne between two lions, having on her head a mural crown, from which hangs a veil. Sometimes she is represented holding a key and seeming to draw back her veil. Isis, Ceres, and Cybele are three heads under the same veil.

Also, Cybele IS Tiamat, kek... The mother of monsters was transfigured into the mother of the world. All religion is satanic, the secret has always been hidden in esoteric currents, there is a cursed hermetic gatekeeping controlling the narrative.

A relevant excerpt that touches upon investigations of civilizational degradation and reset.

>The eighteenth century, the reign of the aristocracy and of wit, of courtly priests, powdered marquises, and bewigged gentlemen; that age blessed with dancing-masters, madrigals, and Watteau shepherdesses; that brilliant and perverse, frivolous and mannered century, which was to be submerged in blood, was particularly hostile to Gothic works of art. Carried along by the great tide of decadence which, under Francis I, took the paradoxical name of the Renaissance, the artists of the time were incapable of making an effort equal to that of their ancestors. Being entirely ignorant of medieval symbolism, they applied themselves to reproducing bastard works, without taste, without character, without esoteric thought, rather than to pursuing and developing the admirable and healthy French originality.

>The builders of the Middle Ages possessed the natural attributes of faith and modesty. The anonymous creators of pure works of art, they built for Truth for the affirmation of their ideal, for the propagation and the nobility of their science. Those of the Renaissance, preoccupied above all by their personality and jealous of their worth, built for their own future fame. The Middle Ages owed their splendour to the originality of their creations; the Renaissance owed its vogue to the servile fidelity of its copies. The one appeals to the heart, to the brain, to the soul, it is the triumph of spirit. The other is directed to the senses, it is the glorification of matter. From the twelfth to the fifteenth century, there was poverty of means but a wealth of expression; from the sixteenth century onwards, art has shown beauty of form but mediocrity of invention. The medieval masters knew how to animate common limestone; the artists of the Renaissance left their marble inert and cold.

>The Cathedral of Paris, like most French cathedrals, is dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, or the Virgin Mother. The common people of France call these churches Notre-Dames. In Sicily, they have the even more expressive name of the Matrices. Thus there are many temples dedicated to the Mother (Lat. mater, matris), to the Matrona in the primitive sense, a word which has been corrupted into Madonna (Ital. ma donna), my Lady, and, by extension, Our Lady (Notre-Dame).

>That is the title of the philosophical chapter of this Mutus Liber: the Gothic cathedral; the frontispiece of this occult Bible, with its massive pages of stone; the imprint, the seal of the secular Great Work upon the very face of the Christian Great Work. It could not be better situated than on the very threshold of the main entrance. Thus the cathedral appears to be founded upon alchemical science upon the science which investigates the transformations of the original substance, elementary matter (Lat. materia, from the root mater, mother). For the Virgin Mother, stripped of her symbolical veil, is none other than the personification of the primitive substance, used by the Principle, the creator of all that is, for the furtherance of his designs. This is the meaning and, indeed, a very clear one of this strange epithet which we read in the Mass of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin, of which the text reads:

Memento:

>The colour black was attributed to Saturn. In spagyric art, he is the hieroglyph for lead; in astrology, a maleficent planet; in hermeticism, the black dragon or Philosophers' Lead; in magic, the black hen, and so forth. In the Egyptian temples, when a new member was about to undergo the initiatory ordeals, a priest approached him and whispered this mysterious sentence in his ear: "Remember that Osiris is a black god!" This is the symbolical colour of the shades and of Cimmerian darkness the colour of Satan, to whom black roses were offered. It is also the colour of primitive Chaos, in which the seeds of all things are confused and intermingled. It is the sable of the science of heraldry and the emblem of the element earth, of night and death.

>Seek, my brothers, without becoming discouraged, for both here and at other obscure points you must make a great effort. You must have read in various parts of your works that the Philosophers speak clearly only when they wish to divert the attention of the uninitiated from their Round Table. The descriptions they give of their processes and the symbolical colours they attribute to them are of perfect clarity. Therefore, you may conclude that these observations, so fully described, must be false and illusory. Your books are sealed, like the book of the Apocalypse; they are sealed with cabalistic seals. You must break them, one by one. The task is hard, I know, but to conquer without danger is to triumph without glory. Reflect, make use of analogy, and, above all, do not desert the simple principles of nature.

First and foremost, our mission is to stop identifying with this matrix through anamnesis, and after that, transmute the lead into gold, break the container of quintessence, and unleash the green ray.

Without entering into details of the operative techniques, which no author has dared to do, I will, however, say that the universal Spirit, embodied in minerals under the alchemical name of Sulphur, constitutes the principle and the effective agent of all metallic tinctures. But one cannot obtain this Spirit, the red blood of the children, except by decomposing what nature had first assembled in them. It is, therefore, necessary that the body should perish, that it should be crucified and should die, if one wishes to extract the soul, the metallic life, and the celestial Dew imprisoned therein. And this quintessence, transfused into a pure, fixed, and perfectly digested body, will give birth to a new creature, more splendid than any of those from which it proceeds. The bodies have no action on one another; the spirit alone is active. That is why, knowing that the mineral blood which they needed to animate the fixed and inert body of gold was nothing but a condensation of the universal Spirit the soul of all things; that this condensation, in its humid form, capable of penetrating sublunary mixtures and making them grow, was accomplished only by night, under the protection of darkness, a clear sky, and calm air; and finally that the season when it manifested with most activity and abundance corresponded to springtime on earth for all these reasons, the Wise gave it the name of the Dew of May.

>I would mention the orders of the Illuminates, the Knights of the Black Eagle, of the Two Eagles, of the Apocalypse; the Initiate Brothers of Asia, of Palestine, of the Zodiac; the Societies of the Black Brothers, of the Elected Coens, of the Mopses, of the Seven Swords, of the Invisible Ones, of the Princes of Death; the Knights of the Swan (instituted by Elias), the Knights of the Dog and the Cock, the Knights of the Round Table, of the Genet, of the Thistle, of the Bath, of the Dead Beast, of the Amaranth, etc.

Orders of knights and hermeticists, it's curious how the guardians of a supposedly noble tradition are associated with everything bad in this world. What I interpret is precisely what we've been denouncing throughout these threads: they are hermetic agents working for the DG, for the wardens, and not for the liberation of mankind. They believe in a MATERIAL alchemy to aid the anti-god, to transform this place into a paradise, not for transcendence, but for material eternity.

Our luck is that this is impossible; this world has an expiration date, and greater powers are already at work. As in Dark Souls, materiality has a limit to how much it can be cycled; eras come and go, but matter increasingly turns to cinder. When the illusion of time ceases, we see that the reality of this world is a pile of ashes and death; the world is a tomb, and the illusion of warmth and softness is purely aesthetic. We are nothing but zombies..

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a dynamic scene of two figures engaged in combat. The figure on the left is depicted in a dynamic pose, with one arm raised and the other extended forward, as if in the midst of a powerful strike. The figure on the right is shown in a more static pose, with one arm raised defensively and the other extended forward, possibly in a defensive stance. Both figures are wearing capes and are barefoot, which adds to the intensity of the scene.

In the background, there is a swirling, abstract design that includes a spiral and a curved line, which could be interpreted as a symbol or a decorative element. The word "Surr" is written in a cursive script at the bottom of the image, and the number "38" is visible at the bottom right corner. The style of the drawing is reminiscent of medieval or renaissance art, characterized by its simplicity and the use of line to convey movement and emotion.

The image is a digital illustration with a dark green background. In the center, there is a large, stylized donkey head with a white face and black eyes, set against a black silhouette of a person's head. The person's face is obscured by a green silhouette, and the person's head is tilted to the side, with a hand resting on the person's shoulder. The person appears to be looking at the donkey head.

Below this, in smaller white letters, is the phrase "GUARD 2 ARMY." The central figure of the poster is a large, muscular, dark-skinned figure with a fierce expression, resembling a donkey or a similar animal. This figure is holding a large stick with the word "GUARD" written on it. To the right of the donkey, there is a woman with long, flowing hair, appearing to be in distress or fear. She is being held by the donkey, who is also holding her by the neck. The background of the poster features a landscape with a body of water and a distant city or fort. The overall style of the poster is reminiscent of propaganda posters from the early 20th century, with a focus on action and urgency.

Psychic to organic trigger of latent Igigi/Serpent DNA along with expediated demonic possession. Accompanying technological input possible as these groups have (so called) elite connections, but unmentioned.

>When the lid was finally opened and Liao caught his first glimpse of the body inside, he was astonished to see a golden-haired figure that was even taller than Yao Ming, the famous 2.26-meter-tall basketball player.

>Even though the discovery happened more than five years ago, Liao, director of the institute of the Culture of the Western Region at Tarim University in Alar, couldn't hide his excitement when he recalled the moment he came face to face with the tallest man of a "tribe of giants".

"The skeleton of the tallest mummy discovered so far is about 2.3 meters, and the coffin is about 2.8 meters long, but medical experts say the man may have been even taller when he was alive. In addition to features similar to those of ancient Europeans, such as blond hair and high cheekbones, many of the mummies or skeletons have large frames more than 2 meters tall"

This warrior from the mists of time was 7ft 6, many were over 2m tall, which is 6ft 7+. As a comparison -

Dolichocephaly (conehead) was common in this area, they would have us believe Scythians were not born this way.

>The Yuezhi used skull deformation of selected male babies. It was a very common practice in Central Asia at this time and had probably been so for centuries. It was carried out by squeezing the head of the newborn male baby between two pieces of wood or tying it up tightly. The skull of a newborn is very soft and can be deformed quite easily. Huns, Savas, Alans and Goths also used skull deformation.

It's been correlated with high status individuals (those with purest nephilim genetics).

>In 2014, Juan Navarro, owner of the Museo Arqueológico Paracas, which houses 35 unique skulls, allowed a team of researchers led by Brien Foerster and L.A. Mazulli to facilitate preliminary DNA testing of five of them. Initial reports from an unnamed geneticist in Texas claimed that the skulls have mitochondrial DNA “with mutations unknown in any human, primate, or animal known so far...a new human-like creature, very distant from Homo sapiens, Neanderthals and Denisovans...I’m not sure it will even fit into the known evolutionary tree.” Unfortunately, numerous alternative websites proclaimed that the skulls were from aliens or Nephilim, the giants mentioned in the book of Genesis, which negatively impacted the research.

>He also commented, “We are likely looking at a sub-species of humanity as regards to the Paracas. It seems to be a lot of DNA evidence from extreme eastern Europe and extreme western Asia. More specifically, I’m talking about the area in between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea where ancient elongated skull people lived about 3,000 years ago...It appears that the largest elongated skulls on the planet have been found A in Paracas, Peru and B in the Caucasus area between the Black Sea and Caspian Sea.”

Used to look round the Tarim Basin on google earth, see if I could find any lost cities.

“I flew around a mountain and then we came to a valley. Directly below us was a gigantic white pyramid. It looked as if it were from a fairy tale. The pyramid was draped in shimmering white. It could have been metal, or some other form of stone. It was white on all sides. What was most curious about it was its capstone: a large piece of precious gem-like material. I was deeply moved by the colossal size of the thing.”

~ U.S. Air Force pilot James Gaussman

>Above is the first widely known sighting of what's been called 'the White Pyramid' of China, an account from 1945, which was soon to be followed by a handful of others—all reporting a pyramid so large (around 1,000-ft high and 1,500-ft wide) that it'd dwarf the largest in Egypt.

>However, it was Fred Meyer Schroder, an American trader, that first reported the enigma in 1912.

>At the time, he was travelling through the Shaanxi Province with a guide, where he recorded a thorough description in his diary, noting he had seen one giant pyramid approximately 1,000 feet tall and nearly twice that size in length, surrounded by a number of smaller pyramids.

>Incredibly, as early as the 17th century, a Roman Jesuit had written about the pyramids in general—and in 1785, the French orientalist and sinologist Joseph de Guignes subsequently wrote 'An Essay in Which We Prove The Chinese Are an Egyptian Colony'.

The image depicts a fantastical scene set within a grand, ornate chamber. At the center of the image is a large, radiant crystal with a glowing, circular center, which is the focal point of the scene. The crystal is encased within a circular pedestal, which is inscribed with the word "IONYON." The pedestal and the crystal are surrounded by a circular, metallic structure with intricate patterns, which adds to the overall grandeur of the setting.
